Brown To Stay Around

Communications consultant Dave Brown — the man studying government information services — will likely be around for a while in government employ.

Brown's study, commissioned by the Social Credit government, will probably be in the hands of the provincial cabinet by the end of the month.

But even after the $22,000 report is turned over indications are that Brown won't be leaving the government.

Although he will have no official role after the study is completed, Brown indicates he will "likely" be involved in the implementation of his recommendations if they are accepted.

"I certainly hope to have the chance to be involved in synthesizing the ideas," Brown said Tuesday.

Brown, a former Socred advertising consultant has been working on the report since late January at a salary of $150 a day.

He was originally appointed Jan. 20 by cabinet order for 90 days, but his term has been extended several times since then.

The latest extension — to Aug. 31 — should be the last, he said.

Brown's study includes public relations, advertising, government publications and all press services provided by the government departments, corporations and agencies.

Brown said he thinks Premier Bill Bennett was optimistic in thinking the study could be finished in 90 days. A similar report for the Manitoba government took a year to complete.

Brown said he has also been getting involved in other tasks, although they are not officially part of his job. The other tasks include the occasional writing or rewriting of press releases.

"I've pretty well got it all together now," said Brown.

Ford Sweeps Ahead

Times News Service

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Gerald Ford has apparently clinched today's nomination by winning a crucial vote at a late-sitting, often unruly session of the Republican party convention here Tuesday.

His supporters put down, by 111 votes — 1,180 to 1,069—the attempt by Ronald Reagan to force Ford to name his vice-presidential choice before the nomination is decided tonight.

It was a symbolic test of strength between the candidates, each of whom had predicted he would win the nomination on the first ballot.

The Republicans, divided by strongly-felt emotions, had the rowdiest night since their 1964 convention, when similar emotions prevailed about the nomination of conservative Barry Goldwater.

Proceedings came to a standstill several times because of demonstrations and the convention broke up following a hot-tempered scuffle involving Ford and Reagan supporters.

There was another round in the clash between the candidates' wives. There were boos and jeers on both sides during debate on the rule known as 16C, which would have required Ford to announce his vice-presidential choice by 9 o'clock this morning.

The most likely choice, now to be made by Ford on Thursday, assuming he wins the nomination as expected, is Senator Howard Baker of Tennessee.

But there may be an attempt to get Reagan on the ticket, something that up to now he has said there was "no way" of persuading him to do.

Ford's rule-change victory crushed the Reagan forces' main defence against what now seems a certain decision by the convention to send the 62-year-old president against Democrat Jimmy Carter in the November presidential election.

The procedural vote exceeded the strength claimed by the Ford delegate-counters and shattered the claim by Reagan manager John Sears that the former California governor had 40 to 50 secret supporters hidden in the convention ranks.

SIX PROJECTS EXCLUDED

Colwood Freeze Backed by Gov't

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The provincial government and Capital Region Board have drafted a compromise plan to temporarily freeze land development over most of 1,500 acres in Colwood and Langford.

Board chairman Jim Campbell said today the proposal exempts about six housing schemes already started but covers the majority of land the board is concerned about.

The area involved is bounded approximately by Happy Valley and Sooke Roads, Wishart, Applegate, Metchosin Roads and the southern boundary of the Colwood-Langford electoral areas, a line roughly between Briarwood Lane and Winter Road.

The 850-acre Colwood Development Project, a long-term housing project for up to 22,000 people unveiled by Dunhill Development Corporation earlier this year, lies at the centre of the area the regional board wants temporarily frozen.

The compromise proposal is the third attempt by the region to keep the development lid on the land until its own regulations can ensure co-ordinated building, with acceptable greenbelt and sewage disposal programs for the whole area. Two previous attempts were blocked by the provincial goverment.

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis told the board earlier this year that an all-encompassing freeze was impossible because some subdivision schemes had reached a "substantial commencement" stage and could not be stopped by what in effect would be retroactive legislation.

If the revamped bylaw which goes before the regional board later today is approved, it would establish the 1,500-acre block as a "development area," with the exception of the half-dozen subdivisions under way.

That designation would allow the region to negotiate land-use contracts with any developers who met its terms. The bylaw would remain in force only until the end of next March.

This time the bylaw is assured approval by the provincial government, possibly as soon as Thursday's cabinet meeting.

Death Toll Tops 5,300 In Philippines' Quake

Times News Services

Fresh earthquakes shook Brisbane, Australia and Japan south of Tokyo today as the official death toll from Tuesday's earthquakes and tidal waves in the Philippines soared to more than 5,300.

No serious injuries or major damage was reported from either the Australian or Japanese earth tremors although two houses were destroyed and another 238 damaged on the Izu peninsula, 75 miles southwest of Tokyo. The seven-second Australian quake caused some cracks in house walls.

In Manila, the national disaster co-ordinating centre said 3,103 deaths have been confirmed and that there are at least 2,282 missing, 688 injured and 28,716 homeless following Tuesday's catastrophes.

The casualties were concentrated in the towns and cities along Mindanao Island's 500 miles of coastline around the Moro Gulf, on the northern side of the Celebes Sea.

The Philippine air force was flying tons of medicine, food and other supplies to Cotabato, on the eastern shore of the gulf, and Zamboanga, across the gulf at the tip of the Zamboanga peninsula. They were among the hardest-hit cities.

Navy ships stationed in Zamboanga were transporting relief goods to other stricken areas along the coast.

Casualties were reported in the provinces of North and South Zamboanga, Basilan, North and South Lanao, Cotabato and Misamis Oriental, and the cities of Zamboanga, Basilan, Cagayan de Oro and Cotabato.

Other provinces in the central Philippines and on southern Luzon Island also felt the tremors, but there were no reports of casualties in those areas.

New Construction Tie-Up?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A further disruption in the B.C. construction industry appears imminent as Local 170 of the Plumbers, Pipefitters and Steamfitters Union prepare to walk off the job.

Chuck McVeigh, president of Construction Labor Relations Association (CLRA), said he had been advised by Stu Cleavely of the plumbers union that the local's 250 members might withdraw their services from the jobs of 15 of CLRA's contractors at 4 p.m. Thursday.

Cleavely said the members met last week and voted to reject the Kinnaird report as amended by CLRA, which represents 850 B.C. contractors.

He said CLRA has not asked for a meeting and unless something is settled, there will be a plumbers' strike Thursday.

McVeigh said the plumbers have been in a legal position to strike for the last two and a half months and that one of the contentious issues in the dispute is downtown parking privileges for plumbers.

Cement masons said last week they were upset over a proposed wage discrepancy between their union and the iron workers and would walk off the job sometime this week.

CLRA and the cement masons met Monday, however, and signed a memorandum of agreement which the union is to vote on tonight.

VOLCANO SPEWS GAS

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — The Soufriere volcano continued to pour out clouds of deadly sulphur gas and ash today, and the scientists observing it said they still believe a catastrophic eruption is coming. But they were unable to predict when it will happen.

The outpouring of gas, steam and ash covered the top of the volcano and prevented the scientists flying over the crater.

N. Koreans Axe Down U.S. Soldiers

SEOUL (AP) — About 30 North Korean guards armed with axes and metal pikes killed two United States Army officers and wounded four American enlisted men and five South Koreans during a clash in the demilitarized zone today, the United Nations Command announced.

Military sources said three North Koreans also were believed killed, but there was no confirmation of that.

The UN Command said the two American officers were brutally murdered in an unprovoked assault.

North Korea, however, said its guards acted in self defence after "U.S. aggression troops" armed with lethal weapons beat them.

The Pentagon in Washington said the identities of the slain men would be released after their families were notified.

A pike, generally used in prebayonet times, is a long wooden shaft with a metal head, sometimes with a pick on the side.

The UN Command gave this account of the attack:

The two U.S. officers, a South Korean offiecr and several other U.S. soldiers were escorting five Korean service corps workers who were trimming trees in Panmunjom, the truce village in the centre of the buffer zone between North and South Korea.

Two North Korean officers and several North Korean guards came to the area in mid - morning as the South Koreans were trimming branches from a tree in the joint security area. The tree was about 35 to 40 yards from a UN Command checkpoint at the south side of the Bridge of No Return, over which prisoner exchanges took place after the Korean armistice.

After some discussion during which one of the North Korean officers expressed objection to the tree trimming, the North Koreans demanded that the South Koreans stop the work.

Shortly after, a North Korean vehicle brought additional guards, and one of the North Korean officers was heard to tell them to kill the Americans and South Koreans. The attack followed.

It was the second violent incident in the demilitarized zone this month. On Aug. 5, the UN Command reported a six-minute exchange of fire between North and South Korean troops, but no casualties or damage was reported.

PASSENGER TURNS STRIPPER

LONDON (Reuter) — A British Airways pilot reduced the temperature aboard his jumbo jet today in an unsuccessful attempt to make a male passenger put his clothes back on.

The man, from the Gilbert and Ellice Islands in the Pacific, did not respond and travelled all the way from Frankfurt to London sitting naked.

The man, aged about 30 and travelling from Hong Kong, removed his clothes shortly after takeoff from Frankfurt. A steward tried to cover him with a blanket, but he threw it aside.

Police in London took the man away in handcuffs shortly after the airliner landed there.

"It was better than the in-flight movie," one passenger said.

Premiers Meet

EDMONTON (CP) — The 10 provincial premiers were greeted by nearly 100 pickets today as they entered Government House to open the 17th annual premiers' conference.

Signs reading "Edmonton workers against wage controls," and "make the rich pay" were waved at the premiers, who were also handed a statement from the Edmonton general strike committee attacking the program.

Inside Government House, more than 60 delegates, including the 10 premiers, gathered to hear Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed welcome them.

Among the issues to be discussed during the conference is that of bringing the British North American Act to Canada from the Parliament in Westminster.

It is expected Canada's constitution wil play a more important role at the conference than official statements in advance have indicated.

Lunar Landing

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union successfully landed an unmanned spacecraft on the moon today, its eighth landing in six years, to carry out new lunar exploration.

Walkout Shunned

MONTREAL (CP) — The 12,000-strong Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of the United States and Canada has decided not to support the Canadian Labor Congress call to stage a walkout Oct. 14 in protest of anti-inflation controls, a union spokesman said today.

Gold Tumbles

LONDON (Reuter) — The price of gold fell to its lowest level in almost a month today on the London bullion market. The metal was fixed today at $110.25 U.S., a drop of $1.50 from Tuesday afternoon, but it continued to fall, reaching $107.50 before holding later at $105.50.

Defector Leaving

MONTREAL (CP) — Diver Sergei Nemtsanov, the Olympic Games defector who decided after three weeks in Canada to return to his Soviet homeland, will fly back to Moscow later this week, the Soviet consulate said today.

Baths Discouraged

QUIBERON, France (AP) — The three-month-old European drought has led to such a severe water shortage in this Britanny fishing and vacation area that authorities urged inhabitants today to refrain from baths, showers and all other non-essential uses of fresh water.

3,000 Residents Flee Lethal Spill

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — About 3,000 Virginia residents today were ordered to leave the shores of Chesapeake Bay after a barge carrying 1,000 tons of chemicals capsized just offshore.

The chemicals were sulphuric acid, which can produce a poisonous gas when mixed with water, and Oleun, an oily, irritating chemical used to make nylon fibers.

An emergency was declared and persons approaching the scene were advised to wear protective clothing and breathing apparatus. Marine traffic was warned to stay clear of the area.

The U.S. Coast Guard said the barge appeared to be leaking. A spokesman said the acid could corrode ships and boats moving in the area and "it is lethal" to marine life.

The spokesman said the 125-foot barge, owned by the Allied Chemical Co. of Hopewell, Va., was under tow by a tug when it capsized.

Allied Chemical also manufactured the pesticide kepone and has been charged in connection with the dumping of the chemical into the James River, which empties into the bay.

The coast guard said about 80 per cent of the barge's cargo was acid and 20 per cent was Oleun, which produces a sharp choking odor. Mixed with water, it produces heat and an irritating mist.

The Coast Guard dispatched two vessels to the area to monitor the spillage.

Ottawa's Bilingual Program Lambasted by Report

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A highly critical report on federal public service language training — which costs about $310 million a year — says that less than 10 per cent of graduates have achieved the threshold of bilingualism by the end of their courses.

The report, prepared under the direction of Dr. Gilles Bibeau, of the University of Montreal, adds that with only rare exceptions do graduates have the background needed to continue by themselves to perfect their second language skills.

It recommends that levels of competence below the bilingualism threshold be eliminated.

As soon as the harshly critical report was released Tuesday, Treasury Board President Jean Chretien rejected its major criticism.

He said he could accept neither the assessment of failure, nor several key recommendations.

But he admitted the government shares some of the concerns expressed by Dr. Bibeau and his colleagues. In fact, it has already undertaken an active review of government programs in bilingualism.

The report says the norms now required and, to a large extent, those achieved since the beginning of intensive continuous courses in 1973, do not in any way constitute a means of bilingualizing the public service.

"Rather, they allow the creation of lists of public servants with the label of 'bilingual', a label which has only the most minimal relationship with the possibility of communicating in the second language," it adds.

While 53,584 positions have been identified as bilingual, there are only 40,568 full time employees in bilingual positions, the report says.

Some 46 per cent of the incumbents of bilingual positions have been tested by the Public Service Commission and are certified as bilingual. Another seven per cent have stated they are bilingual but without having been tested.

This would indicate that approximately 53 per cent of the incumbents of bilingual positions are now bilingual, leaving some 19,000 incumbents who will require language training.

The report declares that neither the identification of bilingual positions nor the identification operation itself corresponds to real needs in government departments and agencies.

The identification of bilingual positions should be completely redone, this time not starting from some vague desire to provide service, but rather basing it on the true needs of the population.

The report adds that French language units within the public service are far from having achieved the effect hoped for.

The ineffectiveness of French language units, usually resulting from a numbers problem, provides little opportunity for language school graduates to continue using their second language.

The report's harshest criticism, however is directed at the level of language capability which qualifies a public servant for a "bilingual" label.

The report indicates that more than 30 per cent of Anglophone language students

LRB to Hear Firemen-City

The Labor Relations Board will hold an informal hearing at 10 a.m. Thursday in an effort to avert a strike by Victoria firefighters.

The Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association which bargains for the city was meeting today to hammer uot its presentation to the hearing, called when the city asked for a special order to avert the strike.

Indications are the city will argue that the award brought down by arbitrator John Davie which grants wage parity with Vancouver firefighters was not a binding award and therefore morally subject to an appeal through the courts.

Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith, who heads the GVLRA, said today "no one signed a solemn pact" that the award would be binding.

Only the union can elect to go to arbitration and the city "is stuck with the arbitration award."

Firefighters union president Ross Cameron, however said the city's position is "ridiculous. The city never admits they're wrong."

Under the B.C. Labor Code, he said, essential services have the right to apply for the minister to appoint an arbitrator in a dispute, and although that was the firefighters' course of action in 1973-74, the union didn't need to go that far this time before getting agreement from the city.

"We submitted a list of four possible arbitrators and they picked one. They clearly agreed, binding arbitration was their choice."

The union served 72-hour strike notice which is up at 10:15 a.m. Thursday — after the city announced it would appeal Davie's award through the courts. Cameron accused the city of immoral actions, saying it had agreed to binding arbitration and then reversed its position.

If the informal hearing fails, a formal hearing would have to take place, and in any case the board will not issue restraining orders until a strike has actually begun.

If the city argues that the arbitration award is not binding, said Cameron, it means negotiations are not completed, "and there's no way an injunction can be ordered. In that case we're in a legal position to strike."

No Escaping Pump Station

A huge sewage pumping station has to be built at least in the vicinity of Shoal Bay or close by to fit into the regional disposal design, a consultant's review said today.

In a report before the Capital Region Board, Ker, Priestman and Associates Ltd., said:

"The difficulty with which we are faced is in finding a site for a pumping station in the vicinity of Shoal Bay which is acceptable to the local residents and can be legally acquired.

"It would appear that the first essential is to determine whether or not it is legally possible to build the pumping station at the optimum location.

"If the site cannot be acquired, it is suggested that the alternative locations in the near vicinity be investigated, with the aid of a small committee of local residents."

The review was ordered by the regional board after local residents launched fierce protests before Oak Bay council last month over the proposed building of the 60-foot square concrete pumphouse on the little bay in the 500-block Beach Drive.

The pumping station is part of a multi-million program to carry sewage from Oak Bay, Saanich and Victoria to Clover Point where it will be discharged out a 6,000-foot outfall. The regional board is servicing as a co-ordinating agency for the three municipalities on the project.

Regional directors are expected to forward the review to Oak Bay council after they have considered it today.

The consultant's report says that whatever course of action is taken, a pumping station will be required in the vicinity of Shoal Bay if Pollution Control Branch approval is to be obtained for the regional project.

Bottom and current conditions are so hostile near Trial Island that an outfall there is economically unfeasible, it says.

Mayor Backs Bylaw

Mayor Mike Young said Tuesday on his return from vacation that attempts to have the city's demolition freeze on 77 houses quashed will be resisted in court.

A bylaw is in effect that suspends demolition permeits already granted for three properties, owners of two of which have given notice they will seek a B.C. Supreme Court order to quash the law, or have their properties exempted.

Earlier, city solicitor Jakob de Villiers said city council must decide how it will proceed before Sept. 9, the date set for the Supreme Court hearing.

The bylaw was passed to be effective for five months, in which time the heritage value of properties affected may be determined.

CITIES WANT ONE VOICE

The B.C. Labor Relations Board will hold a hearing in Victoria Sept. 24 on a bid by municipal employers to form a common bargaining front.

Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith, chairman of the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association, said today the LRB hearing will consider submissions on the association's application for accreditation.

The accreditation application to form a single collective bargaining agency is on behalf of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Capital Regional District and Greater Victoria school board.

Smith said last March local municipal employers would seek accreditation to bargain as one group with 21 union locals. Major unions are Canadian Union of Public Employees, International Association of Firefighters and the policemen's unions.

The association has already engaged Carl Anshelm, former president of the trucking employers bargaining agency Transport Labor Relations,as its negotiator.

Bilingual Plan Rapped

uation. Some 49 per cent used French "sometimes" and only never used French after grad-20.6 per cent used the language "quite often."

The percentages were even more discouraging in the case of public servants taking second language instruction in their respective departments.

"If the government depends on the present levels of bilingualism to advance bilingualism in the public service, it is in danger of deluding the Canadian public and itself being disappointed, because, of the four present levels, only the two highest (01 and 02) approach what we (after the Council of Europe) have called the threshold of bilingualism, and even here the proportion attaining it is not very great.

Among the report's recommendations.

—An entire reworking of the identification of positions in terms of the language competence they require;

—More time for the language bureau and departments to prepare future students for language training;

—The setting of the approximate duration of language training in relation to the requirements of positions and the language aptitude of public service students;

—That the present four levels of bilingualism be replaced by two categories representing complete bilingualism and functional bilingualism. The latter to correspond to the present top level;

— That the Public Service Commission establish a new language training evaluation policy;

— That each department carry out a realistic study of the further training needs of its employees in second language and mother tongue and that it undertake organization of its own training program in accordance with its bilingualism objectives.

The report recommends that Treasury Board set up a permanept organization to periodically verify whether the objectives of the Official Languages Act are being achieved, and whether the government's policy is realistic.

The report also calls for the government to create a national centre for documentation and research on the teaching and learning of languages, and a national language authority to monitor the application of the language policy of Canada

the weather

Afternoon temperatures were very low across B.C. on Tuesday with record low readings for the date being set at a numbr of southern stations. At Blue River the afternoon temperature reached only 11 degrees in the rain and at Revelstoke it managed only 14 which broke the old record of 16 set back in 1907. The disturbance which produced the rain of the past few days has now moved east of the province and only a few lingering showers are expected in eastern sections. Skies will begin clearing and afternoon temperatures will be a little warmer in some regions. This trend will continue into Thursday.

Mars 'Plowed Field' Patterns Puzzle U.S. Space Scientists

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—New pictures of Mars' northern regions reveal mysterious patterns resembling contour plowing on the planet's red surface, and scientists say they are hard pressed to find a natural explanation.

"We're getting some strange things. It's very puzzling," said Michael Carr, a member of the team interpreting pictures of Mars taken by the orbiting Viking 2.

The lander of Viking 2 is due to touch down Sept. 4 in the northern region of Mars.

Carr said Tuesday that the newest pictures of the target zone showed huge, striped patterns that resemble an aerial photography of a farmer's field after plowing.

It is "hard to think of a natural cause, because the stripes are so regular," he said.

The geologist said there are some stripe-like patterns in the Sahara desert, caused by the wind creating rows of dunes that are very regular and evenly spaced.

"But generally, these dunes don't change directions like the ones we're seeing on Mars," Carr said.

Meanwhile, life-searching experiments aboard Viking 1 continued the second-phase of testing, repeating earlier tests to verify results.

Those tests have hints as to the possible existence of life on the red planet, but scientists said the seemingly positive results could be the products of life-mimicking chemical processes on Mars.

Rhodesian Tobacco Seized

LONDON (CP) — Some 165 tons of tobacco bought by the Macdonald Leaf Co. of Tillsonburg, Ont., and claimed by British authorities to have been imported illegally from Rhodesia, have been confiscated by British customs authorities.

The company had one month in which to appeal the order of seizure issued July 15 but did not do so.

United Nations sanctions against Rhodesia forbid such imports but a British customs spokesman said Tuesday that "a good deal of Rhodesian-grown tobacco has found its way into Europe" since UN sanctions were imposed 10 years ago.

The tobacco valued at $360,000 arrived in Britain a year ago last spring after being bought by the Tillsonburg company, a subsidiary of Macdonald Tobacco Co., and was destined for the Manchester Tobacco Co. Ltd. of Manchester, Eng., in which Macdonald had a minority interest.

The deal was made through Intabex, a Belgian company whose officials were quoted as maintaining the tobacco came from China, not Rhodesia.

A Macdonald spokesman has said the company was repaid by Intabex after the consignment was seized. Intabex declines comment on this point.

The tobacco, in bond for more than a year, now is in the Queen's warehouse in Manchester where its quality soon will be assessed. If it is in good shape, it may be auctioned with proceeds going to the British treasury. Otherwise it will be destroyed.

Lassa Threat Fades, Hospital Reopening

TORONTO (CP) — Outpatient services reopened today at Etobicoke General Hospital, which was closed last Thursday after a patient was suspected of having Lassa fever, a rare African disease.

Ontario ministry of health announced Tuesday that outpatient services would reopen today because repeated blood and urine samples from 56-year-old Oga Kamckey have not produced Lassa fever virus, leading doctors to believe she is not in the contagious stage of the disease.

The ministry said the hospital may be fully reopened within a week.

Alfred Storey, hospital administrator, said in an interview today that doctors are seeing outpatients in the hospital's emergency receiving section because their 10th-floor offices still are isolated.

Emergency services have not been resumed, Storey said.

He said final laboratory tests from the Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., are expected by late Thursday and if they are negative, the administration will schedule the gradual reopening of the hospital.

James Bain, director of communications for the ministry of health, said Mrs. Kamckey, of St. Catharines, Ont., is still being treated as though she is suffering from Lassa fever.

If the latest test results are negative, she will be removed from isolation.

Dr. Boyd Suttie of the ministry said Mrs. Kamckey's condition is serious, but she is conscious, alert and able to co-operate with hospital staff.

She was admitted to hospital Aug. 2 after she fainted at Toronto International Airport following her arrival on British Airways flight 601 from London.

New Fighting In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian and Palestinian commandos skirmished in Lebanon's central mountains today and Arab League mediators tried to patch together a new cease-fire.

Leftist and rightist reports said Christian troops moving into the mountains from the north and west traded artillery fire with leftist outposts around Aintourah, 19 miles northeast of Beirut.

Close-in skirmishes with automatic rifles and machineguns were also reported, but it appeared the two sides were holding back from a full-scale "battle of the mountains" while their leaders negotiated a possible truce.

LAST WAGON MAKES IT

PEACE RIVER, Alta. (CP) —The only remaining wagon in the Great Canadian Wagon Train finally reached its destination at noon Tuesday.

John and Barbara Houghton, a brother and sister frm Toronto, and their father, John Sr., had been on the road since May 15. They made a desperate, unsuccessful attempt to arrive in this northwestern Alberta community in time for the parade that opened the town's annual agricultural fair. They drove from 10:30 a.m. Monday morning until rain stopped them at 10:30 p.m. Monday night nine miles from Peace River.

"Thank God we made it, sorry we missed your parade," was John Houghton's greeting to town residents.

The brother and sister were part of the original 30-member group which left Toronto April 11, 1975, headed for the Peace country with intentions of homesteading. Bickering and grumbles among many members of the original party ending in its disbanding in cold weather outside of Winnipeg last fall.

The Houghtons decided to carry on.

John Houghton said he plans to get a job in the town for a year and then make his application to homestead north of Peace River.

Troops Tear Gas Blacks

Times News Services

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa — Riot units fired tear gas at crowds and wielded batons today to break up an outbreak of anti-government rioting by about 4,000 blacks, police said.

Students went on the rampage early Wednesday at Kwazakele High School in the all-black Kwazakele Township at this seaside resort city. They stoned cars and buses and set fire to a bus and a newspaper truck.

There were no arrests, police said, and the "situation was under control by the afternoon." Police said the rioters were particularly hostile to white car drivers but also stoned vehicles driven by backs.

Port Elizabeth is the latest major city hit by current black unrest sweeping South Africa. So far 217 persons have been killed since the first violent clash between students and police in Soweto Township outside Johannesburg on June 16.

In a continuing roundup of prominent blacks, security police arrested a high-school principal, a student leader and a reporter, relatives and associates said today.

A spokesman for the Morris Isaacson High School in Soweto, just outside Johannesburg, said the school's principal, L. M. Mathabathe, was taken from his Soweto home by police today.

Security police in the coastal city of East London have arrested Steven Biko, former president of the Black South African Students Organization, his wife said. She also said police told her they had detained a black woman reporter on the East London Daily Dispatch, Tenjiwe Ntintso.

Meanwhile, a Rhodesian security forces communique said today Rhodesian counter-insurgency troops have killed 22 black nationalist guerrillas in the border area with Mozambique in the past few days.

The CLC's Dangerous Game

No sooner had Canadian Labor Congress president Joe Morris announced the date of his proposed one day national strike when the 177,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada said it wouldn't play the CLC game because the one day "demonstration" would constitute an illegal strike.

While we agree with the PSAC stand, it doesn't mean that the congress' grandstand play to end wage and price controls will be a washout. On the contrary the walkout will probably be supported by CLC members in the heavily unionized provinces of British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Quebec. In the latter province the CLC can count on the 160,000-member Confederation of National Trade Unions and 75,000 militant teachers as well. Whether a large majority of the eight million non-unionized Canadians follows suit, remains to be seen. But millions of clerical workers or the employees of small firms would be doubtful participants, if only out of fear.

To play a numbers game on threatened coercion by the CLC is silly nearly two months before the proposed event. Yet even if one million workers walk off the job Oct. 14 it could have profound effects on the foundations of government controls. A number of provinces, including B.C., have signed up with the federal government on the control program for an 18-month period. Most of these federal-provincial agreements are up for renewal in the spring. When corporate giants like the president of Dow Chemical say they won't invest another penny in Canada until profit controls are lifted provincial administrations prick up their ears. If this kind of talk is followed by an even partially-successful one day national strike, some provinces will have second thoughts about renewal. Carried to a logical conclusion such erosion of the control program would leave Ottawa in rueful isolation.

Naturally the CLC is hoping for just such a development. At the same time the congress is said to have proposed a tripartite social and economic planning council, composed of business, labor and government representatives, that would formulate economic policies. Committees under the council would administer council programs. A labor market board, with extensive powers to control government and business investment projectd to achieve full employment, is also part of the plan. One wonders what parliament would have left to do under such a system.

Only Neanderthal free enterprisers would deny labor a voice in shaping national policies. Since the building of the CPR, merchants of one sort or another have exercised undue influence on Canadian government policies. But having a voice is far different from the sweeping powers that labor wants in conjunction with business and government. Prior to the implementation of controls the Trudeau administration pointedly asked CLC representatives to participate in advisory boards on controls. The Congress flatly refused. Now is has the unmitigated gall to propose a one-day general strike while at the same time asking government for powers tantamount to those of parliament.

In effect, the CLC is saying: "Lift these controls or we'll make trouble, and when you've finished that task we, along with business, will tell you how to run the economy."

Like some of his counterparts in the corporations, Joe Morris appears to be inhaling from a Strange waterpipe. Economic controls are here to stay, at least for another six to 10 months. The duly-elected government of Canada will decide economic policies, not some appointed body of labor and business representatives. Whether the one-day general strike over controls fails or succeeds should not influence governments.

A democratically-elected government must not be blackmailed by corporate presidents cutting off investment or unions threatening general strikes. Attempts by vested interests to coerce governments has reached an all-time high in this uncertain country. Let labor and business propose constructive ideas, but it is up to elected representatives of the people to dispose of them.

NBC Is Calling Yo-o-o-u

One needn't look very far for the reasons NBC is eager to commission a television series on the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. There is the Mounties' undeniable appeal to the adventurous and romantic at heart, though the force would rather that somebody burn all prints of that 1936 Nelson Eddy-Jeannette Macdonald movie, Rose Marie, and its score of awful imitations.

Even without exaggerating, there's plenty in the RCMP archives to make for thrilling viewing. The so-called Lost Patrol, the hunt for "the mad trapper of Rat River", the Riel rebellion of 1885, anti-terrorist work, protection of the Queen and other visiting heads of state and more could provide television with years of thrilling but factual programs on the Mounties.

There are other reasons, too. One is that U.S. television cop shows are imitating each other, saturating the airwaves with the same plots and obligatory car chases stolen from the more successful movies. In a show on the RCMP, a producer could throw in some snowmobile, float plane and dog sled chases to enliven a flagging plot.

But topping the list is probably the sad state of the American Federal Bureau of Investigation. If it weren't for the FBI's badly-tarnished reputation the programmers would be making more series modelled on the successful FBI, made with G-men's co-operation and using its case files.

After all, they want shows about police and their methods, not programs which star the criminals themselves.

These days, how far could a new American series go without depicting such crimes as wilful destruction of evidence, burglaries of political groups and embassies, misappropriation of funds at the highest levels, harassment of black leaders and lying and coverups of same — which were all committed by FBI men, supposedly in the name of law and order?

MAURICE WESTERN

Where Stands Pay-TV?

OTTAWA — The Trudeau government has always been quick to challenge any encroachment on federal jurisdiction in broadcasting matters. In its latest confrontation with Saskatchewan and other provinces, however, there is some reason to doubt that it is standing on the old, firm constitutional ground.

It is not difficult to understand Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve's interest in pay television. The federal government is determined to be the great patron of the arts in Canada. Ministers have become seized — one might almost say obsessed — with the importance of directing advertising revenues to Ottawa-approved purposes. It is an axiom of the new protection in that money must not go for American "junk" when, with proper supervision, it might go for Canadian junk.

The demand for pay television is probably stronger in cities like Regina, where choice is limited, than in other centres such as Vancouver and Toronto, where programs are available on many channels. But the latest move by the Saskatchewan government telephone service, which may have found a way to escape control by the CRTC, has upset federal planners, who are anxious to ensure that the new service develops in what they consider an orderly manner.

Sask Tel Idea

While Ottawa's ambitions are perfectly understandable, they have no obvious relevance to the jurisdictional dispute. It was established long ago that broadcasting is a federal responsibility. There is a persuasive arguement that the cable companies must also come under federal authority because they relay programs emanating from television or radio stations. But what of a closed circuit system which does not pick up radio signals? Is the term broadcasting properly applicable to the scheme proposed by Sask Tel? If not, why should there be any requirement of CRTC approval?

Basic to any consideration of the dispute is the famous radio case, decided by the judicial committee of the British Privy council in 1932. There had been an appeal from the supreme court of Canada to which two questions were referred. The wording of the first is interesting. "Has the parliament of Canada jurisdiction to regulate and control radio communication, including the transmission and reception of signs, signals, pictures and sounds of all kinds by means of Hertzian waves, and including the right to determine the character, use and location of apparatus employed?"

As the supreme court said yes and the judicial committee agreed, the federal jurisdiction over television was established long before television became available in this country.

The decision of 1932 was based largely on the requirements of treaty implementation. This is not pertinent to the present dispute, and, in any case, the committee failed subsequently to adhere to its own doctrine. But the argument did not stop with the contemplation of treaties.

JEANNE SAUVE
. . . enthusiastic about pay TV

The provinces contended even if transmitters were under federal control, receivers were in a different category. The judgment said: "Broadcasting as a system cannot exist without both a transmitter and a receiver. The receiver is, indeed, useless without a transmitter and can be reduced to a nonentity if the transmitter closes. The system cannot be divided into two parts, each independent of the other. . . ."

As will be noted, the judges described "broadcasting," using that term throughout. But here we have a system which is strikingly divisible; there is no broadcast transmitter in the usual sense.

That the federal authority can license receivers is undoubted; it did so for years. But the same instrument may be federal in some aspects, provincial in others. A truck operating between Regina and Yorkton, Sask., comes under provincial jurisdiction but the same truck must be federally approved to operate between Regina and Winnipeg.

The judicial committee also looked at the provincial powers mentioned in section 92 (10) of our constitutional act. It noted that certain matters were excepted and asked the question: Is broadcasting one of them? To this the reply was: "Their lordships are of opinion that it does, falling in a within both the word 'telegraphs' and the general words, 'undertakings connecting the provinces with any other or others of the provinces or extending beyond the limits of the province'."

Movies Under Ottawa?

Interprovincial undertakings are not at issue. But the emphasis on telegraphs is interesting. For obviously telephones are in a different category. In the west they have been provincially-operated without challenge for years.

It is evidently the view in Regina, and in other provincial capitals, that the scheme in contemplation more closely resembles a telephone book than a broadcasting operation. Or perhaps an enlarged movie house. Are cinemas within Ottawa's jurisdiction also?

What the courts may make of this, one cannot say. It would appear, however, that the federal appetite has grown with success. Perhaps the courts nowadays are prepared to read a larger meaning into the world "broadcasting." If so, larger will also mean different for the Sask Tel scheme seems to contrast rather strongly with the system which the judges analyzed and, on the basis of their studies, entrusted to the federal jurisdiction.

Davis Replies

Your editorial (Save the Marguerite—Yet Again) of Aug. 11 implies that the replacement of the Princess Marguerite by the Queen of Surrey is a fait accompli. That is wrong. The B.C. Steamship directors are looking at this possibility for the Seattle-Victoria run but no recommendation has been made to cabinet so far.

Also the Queen of Surrey does not lie idle because of "the higher fares on B.C. Ferries and resultant drop in business." It is idle because with the three big new ferries we have adequate capacity. The Queen of Surrey was not designed as a ferry and therefore does not perform efficiently as such. She was designed as a day cruise ship and is now being considered for the Victoria-Seattle excursion operation.

In September an assessment will be made of the Marguerite's performance and compared with what results could be expected with the Queen of Surrey on the run. An important consideration will be the larger capacity of the latter for both people and automobiles.

The government also has $2 million invested in the Marguerite. The Queen of Surrey can be sold for about $10 million. So there is no guarantee that the economics of running the Queen of Surrey are superior to those of maintaining the Marguerite on the Seattle run.

However, we must also take into consideration that the Marguerite is a very old ship and is becoming increasingly expensive to maintain and operate. All of the figures are not in and we must, of course, allow for the fact that the Marguerite has its own appeal. To use your own words, we must do our best to "preserve the old and the charming" so don't write the Marguerite off just yet. — Jack Davis, Minister of Transport and Communications.

French Preference

The only reference to the French, or, for that matter, the English language, in the British North America Act is paragraph 133, which reads as follows:

"133. Either the English or the French language may be used by any person in the debates of the houses of the parliament of Canada and of the houses of the legislature of Quebec; and both languages shall be used in the respective records and journals of those houses; and either of those languages may be used by any person or in any pleading or process in or issuing from any court of Canada established under this act, and in or from all or any of the courts of Quebec.

"The acts of the parliament of Canada and of the legislature of Quebec shall be printed and published in both these languages."

On the North American continent, French speaking individuals form about one in 40 of the population, and one could hardly expect from a practical point of view that commerce should be conducted in anything but English.

In Canada itself, French is the native language of 30 per cent of the population and should enjoy all the political, legal and social acceptance to which it is entitled by courtesy and the BNA Act. — J. P. Thornton, 943 Wilmer Street.

Censorship

Why is there no restriction against the blatant public display of sex, for example, movie advertising in the paper and on the street? Our environment is being spoiled and principles of behavior which we hope to instil in our children are being negated.

In a democracy it is important to have citizens of good character. Vice should not be exhibited and allowed to flourish unchecked. Pre-occupation with pornography weakens self-control and may be a contributing cause of sexual aberration. Pornography denies love, harming the family, a mainstay of our culture. The spread of its insidious influence must be stopped.

Objectors to any kind of censorship fear loss of freedom. But freedom has to have limits, otherwise we would have anarchy. There are laws against forms of expression such as libel and sedition and against forms of amusement such as cockfighting and gambling. We limit the distribution of alcohol and drugs. Similarly we need to limit the general distribution of sexually-oriented material.

This subject concerns our government particularly the department of education and the department of health, and efforts to improve the situation should be supported by appropriate laws.

Two points to note: (1) All four of the world's great religions include the idea of sexual restraints and responsibility. (2) To prevent the corruption of the arts themselves we need some kind of censorship. At present there is no standard. — Joan Drew, 3328 Gibbs Road.

Newsgirls Too

The repeated appearance of your promotional advertisement on the Times corner newsboy as an endangered species prompts me to write.

Surely such a sentimental appeal does not justify the blatant sexism in this advertisement.

There are corner newsgirls too.

Thank you. — Christine Anderson, 915 Bank Street.

Veterans' Plight

In view of what is happening to the veterans of Victoria and of British Columbia, I would be grateful if you would publish my letter in your paper, hoping that those in power and the citizens of Victoria might find it in their hearts to remember those who were prepared to give their all in both wars, so that these same people might live in peace and comfort.

I would also suggest that those members of the Legion who are not prepared to back up their comrades in their fight for their rights should throw away their uniforms and not have nerve enough to take part in the armistice parade on Nov. 11 and give up all pretence of being a part of the Legion and what it is supposed to mean and represent. The word comrade means nothing to them, all they want is a social club where they can guzzle beer to their hearts' content.

I would also ask the citizens of Victoria whether they be young or old, to turn out and back us up when we have the protest march to show that even if our so-called comrades do not care or turn out, that the citizens of Victoria really care and want to help the veterans in this fight for their rights. — Mrs. E. H. Mills, 1841 Oak Bay Avenue.

Courteous

Recently we made our first trip to Canada, spending several days in your interesting city, and we wish to take this means of thanking all the pleasant, helpful, courteous people who made our stay a most delightful one.

The traffic policeman on the street, the waitresses in eating establishments, clerks in the stores, the motel manager of the Jolly Knight Motel, all seemed willing and anxious to be polite and helpful and this was much appreciated. And we cannot forget the lovely lady who, noticing us standing on a street corner perusing our map of the city, took time to stop and offer to help. Not only did she help us locate several places of interest which we wanted to see, but also gave us such a glowing description of the third floor displays in your provincial museum that we added it to our list. Incidentally, we found it to be one of the most fascinating places we have ever visited!

Given an opportunity, we will certainly visit your city again. — Ruth and Cecil Cunningham, Arnold, Calif.

Meddling

The article by Max Low July 28 requires some facts which your reporter does not seem to have, particularly so with regard to Saturna Island.

Saturna needs population of the right sort and would have had them, were it not for government meddling.

We were forced against our will into the capital regional board, we have had 10-acre freezes, farm freezes, watershed freezes, greenbelt freezes — you name it, we have it — forced on us by Victoria. Barrett jumped our taxes 300 per cent and shut down our shale plant with unjust corporate levies.

Neither government had the honesty to freeze taxes along with the other freezes. Before meddling we were a well-run island and anyone could buy a reasonable piece of property so long as he wanted to live like a reasonable person.

We had our own fire department, cemetery, garbage dump, post office, water works, community club, all of which cost the taxpayer little.

After meddling everything skyrocketed and inflated prices and taxes have brought stagnation.

The "for sale" signs are put up by Victoria real estate people trying to make a fast commission buck, not by the people of Saturna, although it will not be long before they are forced to sell.

The island is overrun by government personnel trying to upset our way of life, breaking down our own institutions, and forcing their inflated taxes down our throats.

The kindest thing the Victoria gang can do to Saturna is to leave us alone. — Jim Money, Saturna Island.

Our Error

Gerard Pelletier may, or may not, be playing a game over there in Paris but he is not the president of CLC and his name has never been Joe Morris (No Wise Men on Our Side, Aug. 14).

The last time I saw the right name but the wrong picture on an article linked the name of the departing U.S. ambassador and the picture of the new chief justice in the U.S.

When I read the Times, I sure read the Times. — Annette Knox, Victoria.

Quite Polite

I wish to comment on the letter Craigdarroch Slam written by a Mrs. Millet which appeared Aug. 10 regarding her treatment by a teacher at the Victoria Conservatory of Music on April 3 at 1:25 p.m. at Craigdarroch castle.

I, the undersigned, attended the weekly student concert which began at noon and ended at about 1:10 p.m. I happen to have good reasons for remembering that particular date. Having time to spare, I wandered upstairs into the room mentioned in the letter and tried the piano which I have done on previous occasions. I stayed in the room for about 25 minutes until 25 minutes to two when I went to catch my bus. Not only was there no class taking place, but, to the best of my knowledge, there was only one other visitor in the castle — a young man who tore a notice from the front entrance and threw it into the garden as I was leaving. There were very few students about. No person came to the upstairs room in question at the time stated in the letter.

I wish to point out that during my long association attending the conservatory concerts, I have found the students kind, courteous and helpful in every way to me, an elderly person. I think they are typical of the pleasant young people in this district. — Thomas C. Shaw, 2116 Richmond Avenue.

U.S. Showing the Way To Multi-Racial Society

By HENRY FAIRLIE
Washington Post

The resurgence of spirit in America owes more than can easily be measured to the revolution — for it has been no less — in the aspirations and the status of the more than one-tenth of the population who are black.

To listen to the impassioned and patriotic eloquence of Rep. Barbara Jordan; to the benediction of the Rev. Martin Luther King Sr. on a white Southern governor; to Rep. Andrew Young saying that there are now no "specifically black problems," that they are now just the problems of the poor; to Rev. Jesse Jackson as he carries his crusade for excellence around the country, proclaiming "there is no one who can save us from us but us" — is to wonder at the intangible resources, within their political tradition, on which the American people can call.

When was the last time that, as spring advanced, we began to read ominous warnings of "the long hot summer" that lay ahead in American cities? The extraordinary thing about the sporadic outbursts against forced busing is not that they take place, but that they are so few and so isolated. There is no way in which the localized issue of busing can be made the basis of a successful national campaign in this election.

Year after year we have been warned of a white backlash; year after year the recoil has been only intermittent and steadily weaker. Election after election the support for George Wallace in the public opinion polls has seemed to be impressive; election after election it has been cut back in the actual results to a hard core of a little more than 12 per cent, until this year it was he who was sent the message.

One may believe that there are things yet to be changed; one may even think that Young overstated the case a little. But that there has been a revolution, in attitudes as well as policy, can hardly be denied.

The importance of this to the world? Its importance can hardly be exaggerated, as the United States stands poised again, tempered by its own ordeals, to give moral leadership to the world. For what America is demonstrating, in ways that were not predicted, and in other ways that are still unforeseen, is that a multi-racial society can be created: the first genuine one the world has known.

Insofar as Andrew Young's statement is justified, that is what he was saying: that the United States has become, or at least is far on the road to becoming, a multi-racial society.

I arrived in America on my first visit during the week of the March on Selma. The first presidential press conference I attended was in the Rose Garden the following Saturday, when President Lyndon Johnson first used the words, "We shall overcome," repeating them two days later to a joint session of Congress.

We Shall Overcome The New Anthem?

Insofar as the convention of a great party is a national occasion, which of course to some extent it is, the gentle singing of "We shall overcome" in New York was the singing of something like a new national anthem. In the mere 11 years in which I have known the United States, it has fundamentally, even if not yet entirely, altered its perceptions.

In a mere 11 years? Well, of course, one can put the symbolic date where one will: the Brown vs. Board of Education decision of 1954, or the stand which the Democratic Party made in 1948 under the leadership of Hubert Humphrey, or the beginning of the brilliantly master-minded crusade of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

But it does not really matter: the fact that counts so that there has been, since the end of the Second World War, a fundamental change on this most complex of issues: a revolution in what William Graham Sumner called the mores or folkways of a people.

It is because the revolution has taken place there in the mores of a people, where it tells, that we can now begin to imagine what a multi-racial society really means, and why I believe that the American example will carry its lessons and encouragement to the world with the resurgence of its own spirit.

It is often said that laws cannot change human nature: that people cannot be "forced to be good." I do not believe this. Laws can change the folkways of a people, and their folkways are part of their nature.

While I was still new to America in 1965, I took myself South — where we all thought the story still was! — and in fact my journey from Washington to Atlanta took me about three months. In Richmond, Va., I spent the evening in the home of the editor of one of the city's newspapers—he is now a nationally known columnist — with his wife and his then still teen-age son.

We talked about the changing attitudes on the question of race, and the father said: "Look at my son: he plays in a music group with Negroes (the word was still naturally used) but when I was at school, white children and Negro children didn't even use the same parts of the library."

But the really penetrating remark was made by the son when he drove me back to my hotel. "It's not that I agree or disagree with my father," he said. "It's simply that almost since I first began to go to school, I have lived with Brown vs. Board of Education, knowing that it is the law of the land, and knowing that it will not go away."

The importance of a law such as is embodied in that Supreme Court decision is not that it miraculously alters the school structure of a whole nation overnight; in fact, as even many of the most devoted advocates of civil rights have pointed out, court-made law in such issues can be a very blunt and misdirected insturment, as the genuine difficulties in busing make only too clear.

No, the importance of the 1954 decision was what the son in Richmond said: that he had lived with it. It was what the father also said: that his son now naturally played in a music group with "Negroes" in Virginia.

This is one thing that the United States has already witnessed to the world.

"The patience of politics" was a phrase once used to me by R.A. Butler, one of the genuinely progressive Conservative statesmen in Britain in recent years. Sometimes, he said, the causes for which one fights seem only to have been defeated. But then, years later, one finds that what one started has been working underground all the time.

There is also the "patience of the law," which works "underground" in the minds and hearts of people. And that patience may sometimes seem to be long.

For example, America and its black people owe a lot to an intellectual revolution that took place in Harvard Law School — then much more pre-eminent than it is today — at the beginning of this century, when men such as Roscoe Pound, seen at the time as iconoclasts, proclaimed that law was not static, but a "social institution which may be improved by intellegent human effort."

To talk of the United States as a "nation of laws" is not just a cliche. The concept of law in this country, from the written Constitution of the United States, to the written constitutions of the states, to the often bizarre but still dynamic relationship between state and federal courts, is something, not wholly or only American, but particularly American.

The majesty of the Supreme Court, even when it hands down decisions we dislike, is the majesty of a social institution that works patiently in men's natures.

And there is no body in this country that can testify — and has by its level-headed tenacity again and again testified — more to the truth of this than the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

How easy it was to despise the NAACP in the 1960s. How dull it was, how respectable, how conventional, how uninteresting to report. But it was the local branches of the NAACP, under its sure-handed national leadership, that went on and on, unperturbed by the militancy and accusations around it, doing what it knew best how to do: taking case after case to the courts, not with slogans, not for publicity, not with raised fists, not with cries of "honky" or "pig" but patiently to change the law.

Britain is Lacking Constitutional Law

If one contrasts — which it is dangerous to do, but still can be done carefully — the handling of the racial question in America in the past decade with that in Britain, it is clear that one of the weaknesses in Britain is the absence of as positive a constitutional law as that to be found in the United States.

The folkways have been changed, then, and what does this tell us, even so early, of what a genuinely multi-racial society is going to be like? It is here that the American example is important and intriguing.

To reach back to an earlier essay, it is vitally important to differentiate between illegitimate and irrational racial prejudice and legitimate and desirable cultural differences.

At the moment they proclaimed that "Black is beautiful", blacks took this crucial step. They took it, not the whites. They proclaimed their culture, not their biology, in a phrase that is far-reaching and liberating.

And it came from America; although the concept of "negritude" in French colonial Africa in some respects preceded it, it could only have come from America.

"Black is beautiful" ran to excesses when the American blacks went through their "Afro" phase. It was misdirected, and I know no black — even those who went through it — who denies that it was misdirected.

I once lived next door in Washington to two black students at Georgetown Law School — a married couple who used to laugh at the fact that their last name was White — and I often argued with them. There was something a little weird in picking up books from their coffee table that traced the culture of black Americans to, of all people, the Queen of Sheba.

I am not for a moment suggesting that the black American does not feel a deep association with the black African. Anyone who has listened to any of them speaking on the subject of the mercenaries in Angola will not make that mistake. "Kissinger's hit-men," as one of them said to me.

But the consciousness of a distinct black American culture is something that has reasserted itself.

It is this assertion — that black American culture is distinct even while it is American, just as it is distinct even while it has African roots — that is the liberating achievement of the past two decades.

What America is showing to the world is that a multi-racial society can be — perhaps must be — multi-cultural. It has always been America's teaching: E pluribus unum.

Martin Luther King Sr. and Jimmy Carter . . . a revolution in attitudes

Labor's Utopian Manifesto

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — A man who is sympathetic to the current dilemmas of the Canadian Labor Congress called.

He suggested that editorialists, reporters and columnists (such as me) were over-occupying themselves in being nasty about organized labor's national day of protest or national general strike.

The prospective general strike, he argued, is only an instrument to maintain solidarity and militancy within the labor movement as the leadership develops, both within itself and in dealings with governments, a place for labor in the system of decision-making in economics which will follow decontrol.

The canniest people in labor, said my caller, do not believe that Canada will ever return to an economy in which collective bargaining for wages is completely free. Therefore, it is fundamental that in the next two years labor should stake out a role of equality for itself in the decision-making system of the future.

Thus the manifesto put to the recent CLC convention was not just loosing windy rhetoric in such sentences as:

"A new stage of history was declared on October 13, 1975 — a new stage in which organized labor will need the power of its solidarity more than ever before — a new stage in which the opportunities for progressive change are greater than ever before."

"Or . . . if we have the vision and the capacity to seize upon the times we can be a leading force for social good. The need for change is clear . . . we have an opportunity to seize the initiative and secure our rightful place as a major force in the policy-making process . . ."

The gist of the manifesto, then, is positive and progressive. Its thrust is not simply negative.

MORRIS
. . . 'exciting' plan

It is not just the mindless reiteration that controls must go, that the AIB system is unfair to organized labor.

My caller nudged me to consider several of the concerns of the CLC which are clear in the manifesto.

First, the CLC knows that it has not had the strength, the structure or the backing, to this stage in labor's history, to really fill the role in "tripartism" which is emerging.

Second, "tripartism" in some form is seen as inevitable, and what it means, simply and bluntly, is a system of economic management under the joint direction of government-business-labor.

Third, this system must begin with a clear recognition that labor's status in the system is fully equal with that of the business community. That the incomes policy to be managed goes beyond wages and salaries to profits and dividends and that business gives up its unilateral right to make decisions on investment and pricing policies.

Fourth, the new system cannot work without stronger central powers for governments — i.e., for Ottawa, for business and industry, and for labor.

For governments this means two difficult changes.

Provincial governments will have to devolve upon the centre much of their economic powers. And Parliament itself, and the provincial legislature, will have to delegate considerable rights to the tripartite body and count much more upon future use of their rights of scrutiny and criticism than upon their rights to legislate.

For business-industry it will mean much more delegation of authority to the groups or associations which the corporations belong to — perhaps even to a single, national association.

For labor it will require the conversion of the CLC to a genuine, indeed, "the genuine" power-centre of organized labor from being just a clearing house and forum. The executive council of the CLC must become, in effect, the government body of organized labor and a functioning third of the tripartite system.

Well . . . that's the argument. It reads like a drama called the utopia of Joe Morris. While it may be criticizable it is exciting. Certainly, it does not seem as bootless as this national day of protest.

The Dead Planet

russell baker

An intergalactic container has traveled incomprehensible distances searching for life on other planets. It is now descending on a tiny planet spinning around a minor star in an unmapped region of a lesser galaxy.

Its descent is monitored on its home planet by an excited group of bottles wearing white coats. The bottles contain a highly-intelligent form of gin, which is the dominant form of life on their planet. They are excited now because their explorer vessel is picking up and transmitting distinct signs of hangover from the strange little faraway planet.

At Lexington Avenue and 59th Street several thousand New Yorkers have noticed the descending container more or less simultaneously. It looks to them like a small garbage can. It is coming down very slowly and is now at a height of 700 feet.

Most of the busy New Yorkers dismiss it with a glance and go about their urgent business. They do not want to look like gauche tourists gawking upward. In any case, in New York there are more curious things to gawk at than garbage cans in the sky.

The vehicle descends with dreamy indolence and pleasant interior gurglings. It plops delicately into the busy intersection. Brakes scream, fenders buckle, humdrum curses pelt it from passing buses, trucks, taxis, but the container cannot detect any of this. It is too busy extending its intricate gin detection gear.

Back at its home planet, the most distinguished gin of the scientific community is reading the data. It is not encouraging. The atmosphere of the host planet appears to be too hostile to support gin.

Staggering quantities of carbon monoxide gas, compounded with fumes of very old, frying, sheep fat suggest an atmosphere in which gin would find it almost impossible to reproduce the race.

Officers Perez and Flynn leave their squad car and try to lift the vehicle onto the sidewalk. It is surprisingly heavy. They call for a tow truck, but not before the container's cameras have transmitted incredibly clear pictures of their shoelaces.

To the 670 billion fifths of gin that inhabit its home planet, these shoelaces snaking in and out of neat eyelets over the constabulary arches are utterly baffling. They could be sinuous beds of ancient gin rivers which dried up eons ago, or perhaps the ruins of some long-abandoned, archaic distilling device.

While the transmissions continue, a dog-walker pretends not to notice that his pets are using the intergalactic exploratory device for a fireplug. The device automatically responds by extending a sample scooper. It scoops up one of the dogs and thrusts it into its unbelievably complex interior for scientific analysis.

The home planet monitors study the computer readouts with dismay. It registers nothing but a few low-grade nutrients, a quantity of hair, and some fleas.

It is decided to move the device to more promising territory. Obedient to intergalactic command, it rises slowly from 59th Street. Officers Perez and Flynn are relieved. Now they will no longer have to write a report. A child points out that there is a garbage can flying north on Lexington Avenue, but is hushed by the explanation that it is just another movie somebody is making about New York.

As it crosses 86th Street, a crowd in a movie line spots it. Everyone amuses himself by shouting, "Jump! jump! jump!" The vehicle cannot hear them. It is too busy picking up traces of gin throughout the entire sector.

Analysis reports at its home planet show, however, that this is gin of an extremely low order and utterly without the slightest trace of the intelligence characteristic of life. The gin analyzed in the vehicle's sampler shows no grasp of either the Pythagorean theorem or the first law of thermodynamics. It is such a sterile form of gin that one can no more imagine it ever developing the atomic hangover than one could imagine vermouth inventing the ice cube.

By the time the vehicle has completed its short flight and come to rest at a curb in the Bronx, its masters are already meeting on the far side of the cosmic ocean to issue orders for its move to the next planet. At this very moment, however, four young men are approaching it with tire irons.

It has been a disappointing job. The thing has had no hubcaps, distributor, fenders or bumpers, and when they were finished the tangle of wires and shattered metal has netted them less than $2 apiece. They have kept the fleas, but will not realize it until tomorrow.

COMINCO HIKES PRICE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cominco Ltd. announced Tuesday it has raised its lead zinc prices to the United States by three cents a pound.

Cominco spokesman Herb Lett said the company is following what all other zinc producers are doing in raising its prices.

U.S. Steel Prices On Rise

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Another round of steel prices increases — the third this year — appears almost certain because of Friday's announcement that the United States Steel Corp. will raise some prices by 4.5 per cent this fall.

Other steel companies are expected to follow suit and the effect will be felt before the end of the year in higher consumer prices, particularly for 1977 model automobiles.

U.S. Steel, largest steel company in the U.S., said it would boost prices for sheet and strip products. Sheet steel is also used in the manufacturing of home appliances, tools and similar products.

In addition, U.S. Steel said it will raise prices an average 5.8 per cent on alloy and special quality bar products. The increases will be effective Oct. 1.

Various classes of sheet steel will be increased by as much as 17.15 cents per pound, while rolled bars will be raised as high as 16.8 cents a pound.

Between April and June, major steel producers announced increases of 6 to 9 per cent for most finished products.

Ice Cream Sales Not so Hot

TORONTO (CP) — For the ice cream industry a hot summer means hot sales so 1976 is not likely to be a vintage year.

"Summer business normally is about double what it is the rest of the year," Charles Scott, president of Dominion Dairies Ltd. of Toronto, said in an interview. "There is no question that the weather affects sales."

Dairy processors and ice cream vendors report that rain and cool temperatures in most of central Canada and in British Columbia have hurt sales so far this summer.

They predict 1976 business will not match that of 1975, described as a good year.

About 62.8 million gallons of ice cream was manufactured in Canada last year. This total would rise to more than 70 million gallons if ice milk, sherbet, water ices and milkshake mix was included.

Scott said sales are down for his firm which supplies ice cream to Ontario and Quebec markets.

Peter Knoepfli, vice-president of marketing and sales for Silverwood Industries Ltd. of London, Ont., said sales are "off slightly" and will continue to drop unless the weather improves.

A spokesman for Quebec-Lait Inc. of Montreal said ice cream sales were good in June but final July results "likely will be less encouraging because of the inclement weather."

In British Columbia, the outlook appears to be much the same.

"I think we've had even less good weather here than you people in Ontario," said Jack Aird, marketing manager of the Fraser Valley Milk Producers Association of Vancouver.

He said June ice cream volume was down eight or nine per cent.

Harold Galazner, sales manager for Palm Dairies Ltd. of Calgary, said "we're barely holding our own across the west."

In Halifax, James Moore, sales manager for Twin Cities Co-operative Dairy Ltd., largest Maritimes-based ice cream manufacturer, said sales "are either holding their own, or are down slightly from last year."

In addition to the weather, his firm has been hurt by a move to a new plant. While the move was being made, Twin Cities had to bring in ice cream from suppliers outside the province.

Meanwhile, ice cream retailers are experiencing a sag in sales but may be doing better than the manufacturers.

Donald Hillhouse, senior vice-president of Laura Secord Candy Shops Ltd. which operates 186 ice cream outlets across Canada, said sales have ranged from terrific in Alberta to spotty in Ontario.

Sale Approved

NEW YORK (AP) — The way appears clear for sale of W. T. Grant Company's controlling interest in Zeller's Ltd., to Field's Stores Ltd., a Canadian-owned firm based in Vancouver. The $32.6-million deal had awaited action by the Canadian government, which earlier decided not to approve a bid by Macleod Stedman, Ltd., a Winnipeg firm owned by a United States parent concern.

Payment Queried

AKRON, Ohio (Reuter) — B. F. Goodrich Co. says a detailed audit shows that the company had made questionable payments at home and abroad of $326,140 from 1969 to 1973. Goodrich said certain senior executives — including current Chairman O. Pendleton Thomas, President John Ong, and Executive Vice-Presidents Thomas Nantz and Anton Vittone — made questionable political contributions during the period.

MINING PROJECT APPROVED

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta cabinet has given approval to coal development applications from Luscar-Stereco and Gregg River Resources to proceed with coal-mining projects in Western Alberta.

Luscar is about 30 miles south of Edson, and Gregg River is 10 miles south of Hinton.

The information was released by Business Development Minister Bob Dowling in an interview heree.

Dowling said the 20-year industrial development permit granted to the companies will "spell out that there must be an opportunity for Albertans and Canadians to participate in the operations and that the Alberta content in the construction phase and throughout the life of the permit, must meet the standards as dictated by the business development and tourism department."

He added that other standards that the companies will have to meet will be from the department of municipal affairs, regarding housing their employees, the transportation department concerning transportation routes to and from the mine sites, and from the environment department concerning reclamation requirements.

Dowling said it is the government's hope that the companies will respond favorably to the applications.

Terrorists' Aid Backed by Libya

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy told the fifth summit conference of non-aligned nations today that Libya will continue to back "just causes" despite charges that it supports terrorism.

"If terrorism is the struggle of the people of Zimbabwe (Rhodesia), then we support terrorism," the Libyan president shouted. "Zionists are terrorists. It is they who attack schools in the Middle East."

Khadafy, wearing darkly tinted glasses, and a flowing white robe, said the third world must not be misled on the meaning of terrorism.

"The Libyan Arab Republic, in its efforts to support just causes, is quite prepared to pay the price," said Khadafy, who has acknowledged financing Moslem insurgents in the Philippines, gunmen in Northern Ireland and political extremists in the United States.

In Cairo, the newspaper Al Ahram quoted Maj. Omar El-Meheishi as saying Khadafy has set aside up to $1.5 billion to finance a "small army" of terrorists. Meheishi, a former member of Libya's ruling revolution command council, fell out with Khadafy last year and was later granted political asylum in Egypt.)

But earlier, Malaysian Prime Minister Hussein Onn urged the leaders of 85 Third World nations not to support self-styled national liberation governments fighting lawfully established governments.

He said non-aligned nations should support national liberation movements fighting against "colonial rule, foreign domination and occupation" but cautioned against backing others.

North Korea continued to pursue its campaign for a strong anti-American stand by the summit.

An attack on any member of the non-aligned movement, said North Korean Premier Pak Song Chul, should be considered an attack on all, requiring total cut off of political and economic relations with the aggressor.

North Korea, which has brought a large staff and its own ship into harbor here, has proposed a lengthy summit resolution critizing "imperialist manoeuvres to provoke a war in Korea." During his speech before the summit Tuesday Pak said the United States might start "a new war, including nuclear war, . . . which would be expanded to a war of Asian and world-wide scale."

VIETNAM SEES U.S. TIES

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Vietnam offered a hand of friendship to the United States on Tuesday at the summit conference of non-aligned countries after North Korea and Panama assailed the U.S. presence on their boundaries.

Vietnam Premier Pham Van Dong said his country wants to develop economic ties with capitalist countries and normal diplomatic relations with the United States.

Dong's speech was one of the most moderate and conciliatory toward the West in general and the United States in particular on a day in which North Korean Premier Pak Sung Chul and Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos turned the fifth non-aligned summit meeting into an anti-U.S. forum.

Poison in Chesapeake Bay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Contamination from the pesticide Kepone is spreading slowly into Chesapeake Bay, but it is too soon to tell how much of a threat it will be to human health and the fishing industry, says the head of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Russell Train, EPA administrator, said Tuesday that pesticide contamination above federal safety levels in seafood remains a problem primarily in the southern portion of the bay. Bluefish have been hardest hit by the poison, he said.

Kepone contamination from Virginia's James River is of great concern in the bay area because of the economic importance of the fishing industry.

Recent tests conducted by the Food and Drug Administration detected what the FDA considers non-hazardous levels of the pesticide in fish caught hundreds of miles from the bay. Only fish caught in the southern parts of the bay so far have shown contamination above levels considered safe for human consumption.

Train agreed with statements made last week by Dr. Jack Blanchard, chairman of the EPA's Kepone study group, that the spreading contamination may pose a severe hazard to the bay in the future.

Train said the source of the contamination was the now-defunct Life Sciences Products Co., of Hopewell, Va.

Kepone production at Life Sciences ended in July, 1975, after many employees came down with illnesses associated with Kepone poisoning.

The contamination led to grand jury indictments of Life Sciences officials, the city of Hopewell, Allied Chemical Corp., for which Life Sciences made Kepone for 16 months, and several individuals.

The Life Science plant has been dismantled and disposed of in a special landfill. Train said soil around the plant site is contaminated with Kepone and may have to be removed to prevent escape into the atmosphere.

Discharge Given Windowbreaker

A lawyer for a Sidney firm which had a window broken June 5 stood up Tuesday in Victoria provincial court to defend the windowbreaker — and the case wound up with an absolute discharge which left the accused without a criminal record.

Michael Nelson Townsend, 21, of 10377 McDonald Park Road, pleaded guilty to a charge of mischief in causing more than $50 damage to a window of the recently-opened law firm of Dale Hanley and James Robertson, 2456 Beacon.

Robertson, and prosecutor Robert Mulligan said it was a case of "horseplay" as one of a group of youths pushed Townsend, who fell back through the window. Since then, Townsend had made arrangements to repay the firm. Mulligan said Townsend had a clean record and he would not oppose a discharge.

Judge William Ostler, who reluctantly granted discharges twice recently after prosecutors supported them, said this was an ideal case for an absolute discharge.

He said Townsend "behaved in a thoroughly exemplary manner" by arranging payment and added that "I can't think of anything more he can do" to show good citizenship.

Actual damage to the window was $139 but all was insured except about $50 for the lettering. Police found out who broke the window but Townsend made the repayment arrangement before he and Robertson learned police decided a charge should be laid.

Once they were advised, Robertson agreed to go to court for Townsend to speak to sentence.

High filtration.

Canadian smokers have searched for a long time to find a cigarette that had an efficient filter and good flavour. Several cigarettes were introduced with highly effective filters. But they filtered out most of the flavour too!

At last, new Dumont SELECT MILD Cigarettes bring you the answer to both mildness and flavour. Here is a cigarette with full, rich tobacco flavour. An unusually satisfying cigarette. At the same time, Dumont SELECT MILD has an advanced dual filtration system which makes it truly, sensibly mild. Try a pack and judge for yourself. You'll enjoy its flavour . . . and welcome its mildness.

SATURDAY DEADLINE FOR QUARTER-FINALS

Time is running out all you Times tennis players!

With only two days left before the deadline, there are still 14 quarter-final matches unreported as the third annual Victoria Times Public Parks tennis tournment draws to a close.

Because the quarter-finals must all be competed in time for the grand finals day (1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 4, at Henderson Park), the results of those 14 matches must be in to the Times by noon this Saturday or the players involved will be defaulted.

Salmonbellies Drop Bakers In Deep Hole

League-champion Victoria McDonalds came face-to-face with the possibility of elimination from the playoff race Tuesday night in New Westminster.

Bakers blew a four-goal lead in the final period and were topped 17-14 in overtime by Salmonbellies at Queen's Park Arena.

It was the second straight overtime win for New Westminster, which now takes a 3-1 lead into the fifth game of the best-of-seven Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League semi-final Thursday at 8 in Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Burnaby Cablevision advanced to the final the same night by beating Richmond Roadrunners 13-10 in Burnaby to take that series in four straight games.

"If we can't do better than we did tonight, we don't deserve to be in the final," said Victoria general manager Bob Reid after the game.

"We didn't have anything left for the overtime and they ran all over us."

McDonalds, who held a 9-6 lead after the second period, boosted the margin to four goals 26 seconds into the third frame but seemed content to coast the rest of the way.

The Peter Black-coached Salmonbellies whittled away at the lead and tied the score 13-13 on a short-handed goal by Steve Manning with only 26 seconds left on the clock.

Mario Govorchin and Doug Hazelwood sparked Salmonbellies with three goals each while Manning, Bruce Shipley, Shawn Cahill and Dan Richardson scored twice each.

Tej Labh set the pace for Victoria with three goals while Bob Cool, Jim Boyd and Ken King each scored two and singles were added by Kevin Alexander, Steve Buckley, Gerry Cadwallader, Davoe Lowden and Steve Hepburn.

It was a cleanly-played game with each team drawing only 10 minutes in penalties.

Mark Schnarr fired four goals to lead the Burnaby attack while Rico Bellusci came up with three for Roadrunners.

SOVIETS SNAP RELAY MARK

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's national women's team has set a world track record for the 4x800-metre relay race.

Tatiyana Providokhina, Valentina Gerasimova, Svetlana Styrkina and Tatiyana Kazankina had a time of seven minutes 52.3 seconds, 1.9 seconds faster than the mark posted by an East German team earlier this month.

The Russian foursome set the record at a meet in Podolsk.

Some Tips From Top

Guthrie Able To Hush Critics

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eric Guthrie surprised his critics Tuesday night as his British Columbia Lions rose to third place in the Western Football Conference with a 22-14 win over Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The Blue Bombers' high-powered offence was held to one touchdown before 21,505 fans at Empire Stadium.

Guthrie had been criticized in B.C.'s previous two games as he quarterbacked the Lions to just a single touchdown in each game. Against Winnipeg, however, he directed the Lions to a total offence of 393 yards.

"Eric threw the ball well in key situations and found his receivers when he had to," said Lions coach Cal Murphy. "That gave us ball control in the second half when we needed it."

Guthrie, a Vancouver native, completed 17 of 29 passes for 245 yards, one touchdown and two interceptions.

The Lions now have won three of five games and are solidly in third place, two points back of Edmonton Eskimos and Saskatchewan Roughriders and four ahead of Winnipeg, which has one win in five games.

Guthrie had plenty of help from running back Mike Strickland, who rushed for 102 yards in 20 carries, and an overpowering defence.

Defensive end Bill Baker led a charge which dumped Winnipeg quarterback Ralph Brock six times. Defensive tackle Don Wunderly and rookie linebacker Glen Jackson took care of anything Baker overlooked, it seemed, as both recovered fumbles which led to B.C. scoring.

Brock generated a total offence of 376 yards, but lost 35 yards in one play. The only Winnipeg touchdown came on a 34-yard scoring run by Jim Washington.

Guthrie threw four yards to Lou Harris for one B.C. touchdown and Strickland scored the other on a five-yard burst up the middle.

Rookie Lui Passaglia accounted for the other 10 B.C. points. He kicked field goals of 48 and 15 yards, punted for singles of 50 and 57 yards and converted both touchdowns.

TWO FIELD GOALS

Bernie Ruoff of the Bombers also kicked two field goals—28 and 16 yards—a single on a missed 24-yard field goal and a convert.

After the first quarter, the teams were tied 1-1 and Washington's touchdown and Ruoff's field goal gave the Bombers an 11-1 lead in the second.

Passaglia kicked both his field goals late in the half to reduce Winnipeg's lead to 11-7 at the half.

The second half belonged almost entirely to the Lions.

Brock completed 19 of 38 passes for 294 yards and one touchdown. Eight of the passes were caught by Gord Paterson for 123 yards but Paterson dropped two other passes for possible touchdowns.

B.C.'s next game is here Tuesday against Ottawa Rough Riders, while the Bombers play the Roughriders at Regina on Aug. 27.

DALE DEFEATS U.S. CHAMPION

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Dale Shaw of Victoria took a 4-up lead on the front nine Tuesday and held on for 1-up victory over defending champion Beth Daniel of Charleston, S.C., in the first round of the 76th United States women's amateur golf championship.

Miss Daniel, 19, didn't win a hole until the 11th, and her chances of surviving died on the 18th when the 29-year-old Miss Shaw sank a seven-foot putt to halve the hole.

National collegiate champion Nancy Lopez of Roswell, N.M., won her opening match easily, 7 and 5 over Janet Engesser of Long Beach, Calif. Cynthia Hill, the 1974 women's amateur champion, eliminated Mary Elizabeth Callaghan of Los Angeles, 5 and 4.

Miss Shaw shot sub-par golf on the front nine to build her 4-up advantage over the defending champion. She was 2-up with two holes to go but lost the 17th with a bogey before both parred the final hole.

Marlene Streit of Stouffville, Ont., defeated Jane Booth of Whittier, Calif., 3 and 2 while Marilyn Palmer of Vancouver lost 5 and 4 to Helen Kirkland of Colorado Springs.

A Foxy Effort By Royal Oak

Bob Bugslag and Mike Wallace came up with some timely hits and Ken Fox hurled a two-hitter Tuesday night to lead Royal Oak Sporting Goods to a 5-1 victory over Sooke Merchants in the third game of a best-of-five Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League playoff semi-final series at Central Park.

Royal Oak now leads the series, 2-1.

Bugslag connected for two singles and a triple in three trips to the plate to score once and drive in one run.

Wallace made his one single in three trips count during the first inning. He drove in two of the four runs and then scored another run.

Fox retired the first 16 batters in order before Terry Barwis beat out a bunt single in the sixth inning.

The fourth game of the series is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Central while Seaboard Construction and Ingraham Hotel square off in the fourth game of their series tonight at Central.

At Heywood Avenue Park, league-champion Capital Builders bounced Hygrade Radio 6-2 in the opening game of their best-of-five Heywood Men's League playoff final.

Bob Butler drove in three runs with a triple and two singles to spark the Capital attack while Ray Beveridge struck out eight and allowed only two bases on balls while hurling a four-hit victory.

Andy Woltoin was three-for-three to score once and drive in one run for Hygrade.

Lorentz, Spencer Signed by Sabres

BUFFALO (AP) — Buffalo Sabres announced Tuesday that centre Jim Lorentz and winger Brian Spencer, who had become free agents, have signed National Hockey League contracts.

Lorentz scored 17 goals and added 24 assists in 75 games last season while Spencer scored 13 times and assisted on 26 goals.

Tracy Shares Third; Ontario Leads Teams

REGINA (CP) — Ontario took a commanding seven-stroke lead Tuesday in the first round of the Canadian junior women's team golf championship.

Leading the way for Ontario, which has won the team title three of the last four years, was Stacy West of Thornhill, who shot a 75 which also gave her the lead in the 54-hole individual battle.

Judy Ellis of Kitchener carded an 82 and Cathy Abel of Hamilton had an 83 for an Ontario total of 157. The top two scores for each team are counted each day.

In second place, with an aggregate of 164, is the Quebec team of Louise Tremblay, with an 80, Josee Perusse with an 84 and Michele Guilbault with 86.

B.C. was third with 165 and Alberta and New Brunswick tied for fourth at 167, with 18 holes remaining.

Counting for B.C. were Tracy Pierpoint of Victoria, with a 79, and Patti Murray of Vernon, with 86.

In second place after an opening round 76 was Jackie Davies of Edmonton, Miss Pierpoint and Jill Badger of Vancouver were tied for third.

Other B.C. scores included Sydney Thomson of Victoria with an 83, Anne Newman of Campbell River with an 87, Jill Johnson of Salt Spring Island with 88, Laurel Iwasaki of Kamloops with 80 and Lisa Young of Prince Rupert with an 86.

West, a one-handicap golfer who was the first to tee off at the par-73 Regina Golf Club, covered the front nine in four over-par 39, and then finished strongly with a two-under 36. She picked up four birdies on the round, three of them on the back nine, where she birdied the 10th, 13th and 15th.

Davies, who at four feet, 10 inches and 87 pounds is the smallest competitor in the field of 69, had trouble on the front nine, picking up four bogeys before responding with a one-under score of 37 on the back nine to stay within one stroke of West.

Badger landed in trouble on the 2570-yard back nine going four over par before playing the front in 37, the best score of the day recorded on the front nine.

The list of competitors was reduced before action got under way when Louise Bereziuk of Calgary and Joy Hamilton of Victoria dropped out. Bereziuk dropped out after learning that her grandmother had died, and Hamilton was forced out when she needed eight stitches to close a cut on her head suffered Monday night.

A third competitor, Jackie Cole of Edmonton, was disqualified by tournament officials when she played the wrong ball. She was allowed to play the final two rounds for experience.

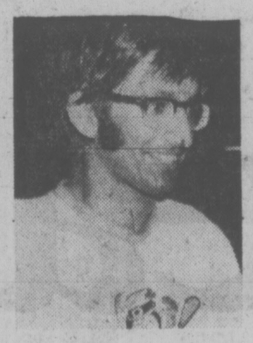
Control, Not Penalties, In Shamrock Game Plans

Victoria Shamrocks will "try to move the ball a little better and let Vancouver take the penalties" during the deciding game of their best-of-seven Western Lacrosse Association playoff semi-final series tonight at Memorial Arena.

Victoria-coach Nirmal Dillon said today his club plans to start off a little better than they did against the Burrards Monday in Richmond.

Shamrocks trailed 6-1 after the first period in that game but bounced back to win 18-9 and force the seventh game with a gritty performance in the final 40 minutes.



NIRMAL DILLON

Dillon will go with the same lineup as Monday and said the club had a few injuries "but nothing to worry about."

He said the Irish will be watching Doug Hayes and Bob Salt but plans no special coverage for the two Vancouver players or for Rico Bellusci, who he said Vancouver will probably pick up from the junior "A" Richmond Roadrunners.

Roadrunners were eliminated Tuesday from the Western Canada League playoffs.

"We're also going to try to control the loose balls and faceffs," added Dillon.

Queen's Prize To Quebec Shot

OTTAWA (CP) — Lieut. Richard Savinsky of Chicoutimi, Que., won the Queen's medal Tuesday in the annual service rifle matches at the Connaught Ranges by chalking up an aggregate score of 552 out of a possible 775.

The medal was the top individual honor awarded during the three days of service rifle competitions, which started Sunday and were open to members of the Canadian reserve army and the RCMP.

Lieut. Savinsky also picked up two other awards as a member of the 12-man team that won both the General J. A. Dextraze and the Atlantic trophies for the small arms competitions. His team was from the eastern militia area.

A total of 31 awards were presented during the competitions, which were cut short by four days this year because of the armed forces commitments at the Montreal Olympics.

Sgt. J. M. L. Mercier of Quebec City also managed to win three of the wards, including the prize for the competitor with the highest aggregate score in the individual Dominion of Canada Rifle Association matches.

Orr May Be Able to Join Team Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Bobby Orr of Chicago Black Hawks could join his Team Canada team-mates in scrimmages here by Thursday, a spokesman for Sam Pollock, managing director of the Canadian entry in the six-country Canada Cup series, said Tuesday.

Orr was in Chicago Monday and Tuesday for examination of his left knee. He underwent surgery on the knee last winter and has been following an exercise program to strengthen the limb. Further examination was ruled necessary before allowing him to join the team that will face the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland and the United States beginning Sept. 2.

Orr, who signed a $3 million, multi-year contract with the National Hockey League club last summer, was scheduled for another examination today or Thursday by Dr. John Palmer in Toronto, the spokesman said.

"There is a chance he could be here to scrimmage with the team Thursday," the spokesman said. "Preliminary reports of the Chicago examination are very optimistic."

The Canadian team has been practising daily at the Forum since Aug. 9. It played its first of two intra-squad games Monday night in which the Whites, coached by Al MacNeil of the American Hockey League Nova Scotia Voyageurs, blanked the Red team, coached by Scotty Bowman of Montreal Canadiens, 5-0.

Bowman said the completion of the first intra-squad game took care of the first phase of the three-week camp.

With team changes and the possible addition of Orr, the second phase is expected to be more rugged than the first.

"Don't forget last week we mostly concentrated on conditioning and we only had the one real scrimmage," Bowman said. "Now we're into game conditions so this week will take on a different look."

Left winger Bobby Hull and defenceman Serge Savard did not work out with the team Tuesday. Hull had muscle spasms in his back and Savard had his right knee examined.

Savard twisted the knee in Monday's intra-squad game when he was checked heavily by Lanny McDonald of the Whites in the second period.

All games in the Canada Cup series will be televised on Channel 8 in the Greater Victoria area.

Here's Battery with Performance

By The Associated Press

If it weren't for Mark Fidrych, Bruce Kimm might not even be playing in the major leagues.

If it weren't for Kimm, Fidrych might not have won his 14th American League baseball game for Detroit Tigers on Tuesday night.

Kimm, the ninth hitter in Detroit's batting order, hit Frank Tanana's first pitch of the eighth inning into the upper deck in left field to give Fidrych a 3-2 win over California Angels.

The homer was the first in the major leagues for Kimm, who got his chance with the Tigers early this season when other catchers were hurt but stuck around largely because he and Fidrych worked so well together.

The game drew 51,822 fans, the largest crowd of the year at Tiger Stadium. In his last 10 starts, home and away, Fidrych has drawn 476,489 spectators— an average of 43,317.

In Tuesday's other American League games, Kansas City Royals edged Cleveland Indians 4-3 on George Brett's steal of home in the 10th inning, Oakland A's nipped Milwaukee Brewers 5-4, New York Yankees shaded Texas Rangers 2-1, Baltimore Orioles trounced Minnesota Twins 10-3 and Boston Red Sox split a doubleheader with Chicago White Sox, losing the opener 2-1 and winning the nightcap 11-7.

In National League games, Atlanta Braves shaded Cincinnati Reds 3-2, Philadelphia Phillies whipped Montreal Expos 11-3, Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed New York Mets 4-3, St. Louis Cardinals routed San Diego Padres 9-4, Houston Astros turned back Chicago Cubs 8-1 and San Francisco Giants edged Pittsburgh Pirates 7-6.

Fidrych fell behind 2-0 as Ron Jackson homered for California in the fifth, but the Tigers tied it in the sixth on a walk to Kimm, Ron LeFlore's triple and Alex Johnson's sacrifice fly.

Fidrych wound up with his 16th complete game in 19 starts and improved his record to 14-4. Tanana completed his 19th game in 25 starts but his record fell to 14-9.

Brett stole home with two out in the bottom of the 10th. He singled with one out, stole second and continued to third on a wild throw by catcher Rick Cerone.

With Dave Nelson at bat, Brett broke for the plate and was two-thirds of the way home before reliever Dave LaRoche noticed him and he slid safely under the pitch.

It was the fourth successive victory for the Royals and enabled them to remain eight games ahead of second-place Oakland in the West.

With the A's trailing 4-3, Phil Garner walked with one out in the seventh, stole second and scored on Bill North's single. North took second on the throw to the plate and came home with the winning run on a single by Bert Campaneris.

New York's Graig Nettles hit his 19th home run of the season on rookie Tommy Boggs' first pitch in the bottom of the ninth inning to break a 1-1 tie.

Lee May drove in five runs with a homer, triple and single as Baltimore won its fourth in a row.

Boston's Bob Montgomery drove in five runs with a three-run homer and a two-run double in the nightcap while Rick Burleson had seven hits in 10 at bats during the twin bill. However, Chicago won the opener as Pat Kelly singled home one run and then doubled in the ninth and scored on a single by Bill Stein.

Hapless Alouettes Shake Up Roster

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes, winless in their last four Canadian Football League games, made a series of roster changes Tuesday in a bid to improve the club.

Defensive end Mike Fanucci, an American, was traded to Calgary Stampeders for future considerations.

Fullback Steve Ferrughelli, who joined Montreal in 1974 from the National Football League, was sent to Edmonton Eskimos in exchange for John Beaton, a Canadian defensive halfback.

Offensive tackle Pierre Galinas, on the injury reserve list with a groin injury, was added to the roster and linebacker Brad Cousino, who played college football at Miami of Ohio, was brought in for a five-day trial.

Also expected to come in on a five-day trial is linebacker Steve Booras, who played eight games for the Alouettes in 1970 and was in Toronto Argonuts training camp this year.

Montreal coach Marv Levy denied Tuesday's player shuffling was designed to "shake up the troops."

"I wouldn't call it a shakeup. It's not that kind of a move. We'll announce things when they happen."

Levy also said the moves should not be interpreted as a knock against any of the departing players.

"I'm not faulting anyone. I'm just trying to strengthen the team. I'm not thinking in terms of fault."

The Alouettes currently have 19 Canadians and 13 Americans on their roster.

Tennis Favorites Advance Easily

SPOKANE (AP) — The top three contenders for the Western Division American Express Card Challengers tennis title have moved into the second round on the tour's final stop without swinging a racquet.

Matt Mitchell of Stanford University and Dick Bohrnsted of Redlands, Calif., drew byes for Tuesday's first round play.

Bohrnsted has 40 points gleaned in five previous tourneys. Mitchell has 38.

Peter Pearson of San Francisco, with 34 points, won over Norman Werner of Dearborn Heights, Mich., by default.

Other seeded players advancing by victory or default were Paul McNamee of Australia, Butch Tomlinson of Encino, Calif. and Dave Sherbeck and Tony Graham of Los Angeles.

The two point leaders after the tournament will be admitted directly into the draw at the U.S. Open in Forest Hills, N.Y.

Tiler to Coach Portland Team

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Brian Tiler has been named as head coach of the Portland Timbers of the North American Soccer League.

Tiler, currently, assistant coach, will succeed Vic Crowe, who earlier announced plans to retire at the end of this season. Ray Martin will take over as assistant coach for the 1977 season.

Clippers Move

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Clippers, members of the American Hockey League since 1962, have announced that the club will join the Southern Hockey League for the coming season. Operating independently last season, the Clippers lost about $250,000 and finished last in the standings.

BLUES TO FOLLOW PLAGER?

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Barclay Plager is coming to Kansas City and the rest of St. Louis Blues may not be far behind.

Plager, a 35-year-old defenceman for the Blues, was named player-coach of the National Hockey League club's new Kansas City Central Hockey League farm team.

At the same time, Blues president and general manager Sid Salomon III said there was a chance the Blues might move to Kansas City if they could not resolve financial problems concerning the St. Louis Arena.

Kansas City's financially troubled NHL franchise, the Scouts, was tentatively moved to Denver earlier this month after efforts to sell it to local buyers were unsuccessful.

Salomon said the Blues lost a "great deal of money" during the 1975-76 season because of their ownership of the arena and said the city of St. Louis should either purchase the building and lease it back to the team or build a new arena.

GRAND PRIX VICTORY

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — John MacDonald of Hong Kong won the Selanger Grand Prix automobile race Sunday by four seconds.

Graas Captures Batting Crown

Dave Graas and Mike Squire were the big gunners in the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League during the regular season.

They fashioned the fattest batting averages, both whacking the ball at better than .400 clip, and they grabbed off a healthy share of honors in other hitting departments.

Swinging for Kubicek's Home Service, Graas captured the league batting crown with a sizzling .449 average and set the pace in doubles with 14.

Squire rapped the ball for a .402 mark with the Gorge Hotel club and topped the circuit in runs scored (30), home runs (5) and runs-batted-in (26).

Three other players — Russ Holmes (.387), Ian Hood (.378) and Rick Mark (.361) posted batting marks above .350.

Rick Cook of Gorge, Roy Moretti of Graves Movers and Derek Drinkwater of Gorge were the most effective pitchers.

Winning eight decisions and being charged with only one loss, Cook notched the best won-lost mark and shared the lead in shutouts with Gerry Lister of Kubiceks, each with three.

Posting a second-place, 10-3, won-lost record, Moretti had the most strikeouts (91) and the leading earned-run average of 1.36, followed by Drinkwater (1.94) and Cook (1.98).

Dave Hill Joins Club

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Dave Hill won $2,064 for his 288 score and 22nd place in the final round of the PGA golf championship Monday to become the 11th professional golfer in history to earn more than $1 million.

Hill now has won $1,000,660 during his 18-year professional career.

PLAYOFF SQUARED

Mark Lawless sparked Greaves Movers to a 2-1 decision over Kubicek's Home Service on Tuesday night at Lambrick Park that squared their best-of-three Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League semi-final series.

The deciding game is scheduled for tonight at 6:15 in Lambrick.

Lawless had two hits in three trips to the plate and scored what turned out be the winning run in the sixth inning. He hit a two-out single, stole second and then scored on a single by Dave Piercy.

Grant Boland drew a one-out walk, was sacrificed to second and then came in on a throwing error to first on an infield grounder to score the other Greaves run in the fifth inning.

Terry Karpiuk picked up the pitching victory with a five-hitter.

Dayliner on the move . . . a ghost train now

There's no chance of claustrophobia aboard the Dayliner these days

Aboard the 70-Seat Dayliner
You Ride Almost Alone With Memories of the Past

Max and the Little Old Lady

Strange the magic attraction trains have always held for small boys and girls.

I remember as a youngster in New Zealand being captivated by the old-fashioned, smoke-belching monsters that rattled through the countryside, pointing their arrow-shaped cow-catchers ahead of them. And I remember, often, the excitement of running out of steam on a steep stretch of track; of slipping back a little until stopped by screeching brakes; and of waiting while they sent to the nearest station for an extra engine to help push us over the hill. Marvellous!

Last Friday I took a trip on a train again. And it was a weird sensation. Not only was I returning to the train-riding days of my boyhood, but I was also stepping back in time to those years when the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway ran a bustling train, alive and vibrant and packed with passengers.

In your mind, you can see them — the passengers, in their long clothes and big hats. But the passengers are no more. When you board the train in Esquimalt, it's like boarding a ghost train. You sit in an almost empty carriage for the three-hour trip to Parksville, accompanied only by memories of days gone by.

There was only a little old lady in a black hat sitting alone in the 70-seat diesel rail car when I boarded the Dayliner at Shawnigan Lake.

But I kept awake by chatting with a couple of old timers, conductor Ed Lee of Duncan (he has been with CP Rail for 37 years) and engineman Don MacLachlin of Victoria (35 years on Island trains).

And I learned a little more about the sad railway line no one wants to run.

Construction began on the railway from Esquimalt in 1884 and the original stretch to Nanaimo was completed in 1886. In 1905, CP Rail acquired the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway and took over operation of the line in 1912.

Yet, rather strangely, the name has never been changed. The latest schedule still lists the line as being run by the E and N. Perhaps CPR has never been too proud of its little up-Island line.

In 1969, the CPR applied to the Canadian Transport Commission's Railway Transport Committee for permission to discontinue its passenger service between Victoria and Courtenay which it had operated since 1914. That application was denied and CP Rail was ordered to "maintain acceptable standards in the service."

But in June last year, the company declared French Creek Bridge, just north of Parksville and a second bridge at Tsable River unsafe and closed the Parksville-Courtenay section of the line from July 1.

CP Rail admitted to the CTC that it was not able to apply for abandonment of the northern 44-mile section of the line because of a marginal profit shown for that portion. But it stopped running trains and asked that it not be forced to replace the bridges. It also applied again for permission to end all E and N passenger service over the entire line from Victoria to Courtenay.

There has been no formal ruling yet on that second request but CP Rail was told following CTC hearings that it must reconstruct the bridges (something the company estimates will cost it $2.2 million) and to do all that is necessary to reinstate rail service between Parksville and Courtenay.

At the hearings, CP Rail had its knuckles rapped for allowing the bridges to deteriorate. And, in a 41-page decision, the CTC accused the company of illegal conduct in the closing of the northern section of the line and warned that any unnecessary delay in resuming service will bring charges.

CP Rail vice-president Leslie Smith says the company is going to obey the order. But he also says the company is studying ways of appealing the ruling. He warns that freight rates may have to be increased 40 per cent to pay for the bridges.

Meanwhile, the ghost train continues its shorter journey and CP Rail doesn't go out of its way to attract passengers.

It's a sad state because for a railway buff it's a pleasant journey.

You chug along at a comfortable 45 miles an hour around the winding track that takes you hundreds of feet above the road over two high trestles near Goldstream, rumbling through a tunnel in the Malahat, and cruising through the kind of forest scenery you don't always see from the highway.

And yet you would need to be a railway buff to bother with it for the ticket prices are all the discouragement you'd need. There's only one Dayliner trip up and down daily (leaving Esquimalt at 8:15 a.m., reaching Parksville at 11:20, and then returning between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m.) And it costs $10.05 for a one-way ticket.

In contrast, Vancouver Island Coach Lines offer six trips daily to and from Parksville and for an adult one way it's only $5.20.

Though the Dayliner will stop almost anywhere — at the tiniest of stations and even at some lonely spots where the line crosses a road — on my trip there aren't many people flagging it down.

A boy rides from Cobble Hill to Duncan; a woman and her small daughter take the short hop from Ladysmith to Nanaimo.

But, when we finally slide into the quiet station in Parksville, there are only Don at the controls, Ed with very little to conduct, and me . . . and the little old lady in the black hat.

City Faces Suit Over Vote Cards

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The Fairfield Community Association will take Victoria city to court over clerk Morran Waller's refusal to issue voter registration cards in bulk.

Association president Sid Langfelt today charged Waller is violating the Municipal Act in refusing to give the association cards to distribute to its members.

Langfelt said he has been refused twice, once on July 27 and again today when he appeared with lawyer Bob Milne before Waller.

Langfelt said Section 38 of the Municipal Act requires a city clerk to furnish applications to anyone who requests them.

"And that's applications in the plural sense," he said. "Waller is going beyond his office in refusing to allow us to take more than one or two cards out."

Waller, in an interview, said anyone asking for a card will get one, "but it's only for the applicant and his family . . . these cards are not for bulk issuance."

He said he interprets the act to mean a clerk must provide a card to any person applying—"but that suggests only one person at a time."

WALLER
. . . refuses

Langfelt said his association had offered to set up booths to encourage everyone to register before the voters list closes Aug. 31. But the city turned down the offer.

Snapped Waller: "They're not going to run my office. If I want help I'll ask for it.

"In this kind of job you just can't have voluntary help. I would have no control."

He said it is a simple matter for a person to check to see if his name is on the voters list. All it requires is a phone call to city hall. If the voter's name is missing, a card, together with an addressed return envelope, will be mailed out.

Langfelt said the clerk's office had given bulk quantities of the cards to the James Bay and Fernwood Community Association about 1½ months ago.

However, Waller said they had been given out by mistake, and a junior clerk had been reprimanded.

A spokesman for the municipal affairs department refused comment on what a city clerk's responsibilities are with respect to handing out batches of cards to persons requesting them.

He indicated however Waller's interpretation of the act, although "fairly rigid" is reasonable.

Saanich clerk Gordon Hayward agrees with Waller that control over registration is vital. He said he has handed out bulk quantities of cards in the past to the Association of Women Electors which has aided the municipality in registering voters, and that on those occasions there were never any problems.

In Esquimalt, a municipal spokesman said bulk orders of cards would probably be granted, provided the group making the request is "responsible".

In Oak Bay, municipal clerk Jean McQueen was unable to say whether she would approve such requests.

"All I can say is I would consider the request if I ever got one, that is," she said.

Thursday Closing For Safeway Stores

Greater Victoria's 10 Safeway stores will close at 6 p.m. Thursday until further notice, area manager Jack Fidler said today.

Business was so hectic Monday and Tuesday, he said, that supplies have dwindled. Stores in Ladysmith and Duncan will also close Thursday.

The 250 fulltime employees here will continue to report for work for clean-up duty until layoff notices go into effect Saturday, he said.

One store at Powell River closed Tuesday and indications are the rest of the province's stores will shut by Saturday. Some in Vancouver are expected to remain open until early-next week.

Meanwhile, customers continued the rush today for perishable goods marked down to half price as the result of a lockout which began 12 days ago at MacDonald's Consolidated Ltd. warehouses. The firm supplies Safeway stores.

FIDLER
. . . hectic wind-up

There are no new meetings scheduled between the company and the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, representing 800 workers at warehouses and Safeway brand production plants.

Union representative Al Peterson said the union has no interest in requesting an industrial inquiry commissioner, but would rather settle the contract dispute through two-party negotiations.

The company, however, has further stalled talks by asking for assistance through the Labor Relations Board, he said.

Q. Could you please tell me, in PSI, how much air pressure there is in an average new tennis ball? — R.G.

A. Tennis balls are of two kinds, the traditional one with resilience provided by a gas under pressure in the cavity, and a newer design embodying elasticity in the cover, one maker of which refers to it as "permacore," which never goes soft. Packaging does not show under what pressure balls are sold, but we suggest you write to the manufacturer's agent for Slazenger, of England: Kennedy Ltd., 636 West Sixth Ave., Vancouver.

FLOUR UP; BREAD NEXT?

Yeast makes bread rise, but this time flour may cause the upward movement — in price.

Wholesale cost of flour increased 55-cents a hundred pounds this week, and the increase will likely be passed along to the retail customer.

Flour has been selling for about $12 a hundred pounds wholesale.

Len Miller, regional manager of McGavin Toastmaster, said the 55 cents "is a significant increase and could be reflected in the (retail) price of bread."

McGavin Toastmaster is the parent company of McDonald's Bakery in Victoria.

Miller said the company's entire costing procedure would have to be studied before price increases were considered.

And then any hike would have to be submitted to the federal Anti-Inflation Board.

Bread went up three cents a loaf in Victoria June 29 following an increase in January.

Current suggested retail prices of McDonald's bread are 64 cents for a 24-ounce loaf and 45 cents for a 16-ounce loaf.

City Rejects Blanket Ban on Housing Demolition

Victoria city council Tuesday rejected a proposal for a total ban on housing demolition.

The proposal was made by five neighborhood associations which have banded together under the name Communities United for Action in an effort to block destruction of useable family housing to make way for apartment, townhouse and condominium construction.

CUA delegates were told at a council caucus meeting the city cannot at this time consider a blanket moratorium on housing demolition.

Mayor Mike Young said the city is preparing an official community plan, to include some downward rezoning of higher density residential property, for presentation to the provincial government Nov. 1.

Some members of the delegation expressed disappointment at the reception given their presentation.

One said the group had failed to convince council of the urgency of the situation, in which 274 living units had been knocked down or earmarked for demolition since Jan. 1.

"If it were your homes that were being demolished it would be different," he said to aldermen. "We are the ones on the front line. I've lived in a home being demolished and had to find another place for my family."

Young said a response to the brief would be drawn up for CUA after there had been reference to the city Advisory Planning Commission.

He also asked for a schedule to expose the new community plan, perhaps area by area, before it is presented in final form.

Young said he was extremely concerned about the loss of housing but reluctant to comment on immediate steps as the group proposes.

"I don't think the atmosphere should be conducive to destroying homes that are habitable," the mayor said.

Lawyer Bob Milne, a James Bay resident and counsel for the group, said the proposal would have the effect of a disincentive to development by removing the apartment-type zoning in areas now occupied by houses.

Group spokesman Max Hopper, of James Bay Community Association, said demolition permits are now issued without requiring a developer to put forward a proposal for the new use, and that leads to block-busting.

Young said council policy is already opposed to block-busting, and that rezoning does not follow demolition as a matter of course.

Milne said there is precedent in other parts of Canada for massive rezoning while development plans are being prepared, thereby blocking demolitions.

The mayor drew a distinction between massive and carte blanche, and while he agreed with many of the suggestions, he said if action is taken "indiscriminately, effectiveness would be lost rapidly."

A woman said the real problem is economic, that new housing taking the place of old houses "is beyond the purse of the people displaced."

Ald. Ron McKenzie said the city would be courting economic disaster if it refused demolition permits. (There are very narrow restrictions on granting permits.)

It is "courting social disaster" to eliminate housing people can afford, the woman replied.

Hopper said it appeared the council missed an important point, that the nature of the city is what had attracted many people to Victoria, including thousands of tourists. They are not drawn by the Empress Hotel and the Wax Museum, he said.

"What they're destroying today is the very thing the tourists come to see — the atmosphere. . . ."

Barking Dog Crackdown

Saanich police may spend more time in court soon . . . laying charges against owners of barking dogs.

Saanich council has instructed municipal solicitor Doug Patterson to determine whether policemen and pound inspectors are authorized to lay such charges.

The problem is that two people or more must lay charges and usually there is only one resident complaining.

"The prosecutors have advised the police it is essential to have evidence from more than one person," Patterson told council.

Ald. John McDonald, however, thought the police should not be used.

"Are they going to be busy in court over everybody and their neighbors complaining about their dogs? The police have more important things to do."

Mayor Ed Lum said pound inspectors could be used but Ald. Sandy Noel remarked, "Pound inspectors work bankers' hours. They don't come out at night, when most complaints are made."

Ald. Fred Severson didn't believe it would take too many charges being laid to correct the problem. "One or two occasions of being taken into court would be the end-all."

'ALL SAFELY GATHERED IN'

LONDON (CP) — The British army called those elastic-at-waist-and-knee panties passion killers. The Royal Air Force dubbed them blackouts. Now the retired chief of the Wrens, Mary Talbot, has revealed the navy's name for those voluminous bloomers Britain's wartime service girls wore. They were called Harvest Festivals because "When you wear them, all is safely gathered in."

VETS IN WINNIPEG

The oldest veteran organization in Canada will open its 33rd biennial national convention in Winnipeg on Monday.

About 200 delegates will attend the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans of Canada week-long convention, 50 of them from Vancouver Island's branches at Victoria, Ucluelet and Sidney. The national body was formed in 1837.

Among Victoria delegates will be president Frank Thompson, first vice-president Tony Emerick and second vice-president "Buz" Davidson.

The convention will be officially opened by Lieutenant-Governor William McKeag of Manitoba and the main speaker on the first day will be Veterans' Affairs Minister D. J. MacDonald.

Among items to be debated will be whether to allow policemen, firemen and other similar para-military groups to become active members; whether members of veterans' immediate families should be permitted to become active members and whether non-veterans should be allowed to join.

Before The Judge

A 29-year-old Saanich man was fined $1,200 Tuesday in Victoria provincial court's traffic section by Judge Blake Allan — the largest fine for impaired driving since a law change in April raised the maximum levy to $2,000.

John Richard Grigg, 29, of 3969 Braefoot, was fined and put on probation for 12 months after pleading guilty to a Victoria charge laid Aug. 7 when a car hit two elderly pedestrians on Cook near Merritt. One, a woman, suffered a severe pelvic injury.

Allan took into consideration two previous drink-drive convictions for Grigg, although the prosecution did not present proof required for imposition of a mandatory jail term for a third offender.

Only other major drink-drive case involved Louis Aleck Tom, 29, of 963 Pauchachin Lane, who pleaded guilty to a Sidney charge of impaired driving March 27 and was sentenced by Allan to an intermittent 14-day jail term.

In the court section of Judge William Ostler, a charge of attempting extortion Aug. 8 by trying to induce one Victoria resident to pay $150 to another, was read against Daniel Allan White, 20, of 455 Ellery.

White asked for a week to obtain a lawyer and was released on an undertaking to return next Tuesday. Ostler ordered that White have no contact with both persons named in the charge.

Daniel Robert O'Brien, 35, of 1145 Mason, charged earlier with attempting to extort "a sum of money" Aug. 8 from a Victoria resident, was released by Ostler on own-recognizance bail of $1,000 to return Sept. 24 for a preliminary hearing. O'Brien, who chose trial by judge and jury, was ordered to obey an 11 p.m. curfew and not to contact the resident.

A curfew of 10 p.m. "every evening" was a condition of release ordered by Ostler for Miklos Gabor Simon, 17, of 136 Conard, who pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of stealing a car early Tuesday.

Prosecutor Robert Mulligan said police tried to stop the car about 4:20 a.m. in the 1500 block Rockland but it "accelerated to a high rate of speed." The car finally stopped when it hit a pole on Fern and Simon and the three passengers were not hurt.

Ostler remanded Simon to Sept. 3 for a pre-sentence report and sentence.

Douglas Eric Ostergard, 28, was charged with escaping and being unlawfully at large March 20 from William Head. He chose trial in provincial court and asked for an adjournment to Aug. 31 for plea.

Sidney RCMP said Monday a suspect was arrested on the Patricia Bay Highway in Sidney less than half an hour after they received a phone call from an off-duty Victoria police constable who thought he recognized a man in a car on the highway at Elk Lake.

Alberta resident Theresa Graham Rayfuse, formerly of Victoria, was fined a total of $450 by Ostler and placed on probation for six months following pleas of guilty to two charges.

One followed the theft of money from a washing-machine cashbox in a basement at 912 Selkirk in Esquimalt April 20 while the other resulted from an assault on a Victoria policeman five days later.

Mulligan said the officer had chased and caught a man wanted on a parole-suspension warrant when Miss Rayfuse twice hit the policeman on the back of the head and then climbed on his back. He said that "a private citizen helped to take her off."

A two-count charge was read against Monique Nerdelli, 29, of 452 Craigflower, who was charged with doing acts "on or about May 23" likely to make two boys juvenile delinquents by encouraging them to break and enter a residence and commit theft there. At her request, Ostler remanded the case to Monday for further hearing.

Pleas of guilty were entered by Dolores Anne Crawford, 47, of Castlegar, B.C., to a two-count Victoria charge of shoplifting seven items worth a total of $75.98 Aug. 13 from The Bay and the T. Eaton Co. Ostler chose penalties of a $200 fine on one count and a nominal one-day jail term on the other.

Tudor Ave. Widening Approved

Ten-Mile Point residents Tuesday won their first round against the Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association in a fight to have Tudor Avenue widened to protect pedestrians and cyclists.

A delegation of Tudor residents convinced Saanich's public works committee the road shoulders should be widened by three feet.

The committee allocated $5,000 for a start.

Spokesman R. M. Boss, 2905 Tudor, told the committee his three children can't go to school safely because of the road's narrowness and speeding cars.

Boss said a six-hour traffic count had monitored 1,100 cars and 100 cyclists.

The Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association wants Tudor Avenue left alone and has sent letters to every Ten-Mile Point resident asking for support.

Instead of widening Tudor, the association wants a "children's safety path" built from the west end of Sea View through dense bush to Green Vale.

Ten-Mile Point mothers, however, say the danger to children would be greater in the bush than on Tudor. They fear molesters.

In a letter to council, association president Peter Corley-Smith said his group has "an overwhelming mandate to preserve as far as possible the rural character of the roads in the area. Until we receive clear evidence that a majority of residents want this policy changed we are bound to oppose any alterations on Tudor."

That evidence surfaced at Tuesday's meeting when the committee received a petition signed by 63 Tudor property owners, representing more than 85 per cent of the residents on the road.

Municipal engineer Cliff Warren said the $5,000 was available and would be enough to widen the shoulders for betwee one half and two-thirds of the road's length.

He was ordered to have the work started immediately and report back to the committee.

Nature Society's Future Cloudy

Saanich council is going to take a hard look at the operating costs of the Swan Lake-Christmas Hill Society and decide who is going to foot the bill.

Municipal administrator Bill Tremayne told the council's environment committee on Tuesday the society intends to employ three permanent staff members with a 1977 budget of $100,000.

"I do not believe that it was the original intent that the society was to be the operating arm of the municipality with a requirement of approximately $100,000," he said.

Tremayne suggested the funding of operating costs should be fully debated by council.

The three permanent employees will be conducting tours of students through the nature centre site for studies of the flora and fauna.

"Council should have the opportunity to see how involved they want to get. Education is the responsibility of the school board rather than a municipality's," Ald. Roy Wootten said.

"I'm puzzled by the whole proposal . . . it's a laudable operation." Ald. Murice Johnson said, adding "I am always very cautious about operating societies if they are not under a trust setup."

He suggested Tremayne be asked to "set the perimeters" for the society's operation.

Tremayne will make his recommendations at he next council meeting which will be attended by society representatives in order that they can make a presentation.

$159,050 VOTED FOR GARBAGE

Saanich is going to spend $159,050.69 to upgrade its garbage collection equipment.

The public works committee agreed Tuesday to recommend three 29 cubic yard refuse packers be bought from Suburban Motors at a cost of $74,765.72 and three side-loading refuse packers be purchased from F and F Equipment Ltd. at a price of $84,284.87.

The aldermen also endorsed the recommendation of the municipality's equipment purchase committee that the three packers now in use should be sold by auction next spring so as to realize a larger return than would be received if they were used as trade-ins.

Earlier this week, council also voted to spend $13,000 for a gulley sucker (used to clear catch basins, manholes and drains).

U.K. Panic-Buyers Grab Vegetables

LONDON (UPI) — British housewives are hoarding canned and frozen vegetables amid reports that Europe's prolonged drought is stunting the nation's vegetable crop, storekeepers report.

"People are panic-buying deep frozen vegetables," a spokesman for a chain of food suppliers said Tuesday.

Londoners also found it took longer to fill a kettle or run a bath Tuesday when water pressure was reduced by 25 per cent to preserve dwindling supplies in Britain's worst drought in 250 years.

The cutback on London's water pressure affected 6.5 million consumers and was aimed at saving 40 million gallons of water a day.

"The situation is serious," Thames Water Authority chairman Peter Black said. "Unless every household can save a quarter of the water they are now using, serious restrictions are inevitable."

The drought has cut back vegetable crop yields by 40 per cent from last year, according to food processors, and prices already are at least 50 per cent higher.

Agriculture Minister Fred Peart, concluding a two-day tour of farmlands, said further price increases were inevitable. Skimpy pastures in the southern half of the country have been eaten bare by cattle and sheep.

Wholesalers anticipated a shortage of cabbages, cauliflowers, lettuce, carrots and potatoes. One grower said Brussels sprouts might not be available at all.

Falling Slabs Close Plaza In Saskatoon

SASKATOON (CP) — Part of the midtown plaza remained closed Tuesday after slabs of precast concrete fell through its roof from the outside wall of the adjoining CN tower Monday.

The offices of the Royal Trust Co. were demolished in the accident less than an hour after the plaza had closed for the day. The slabs weighed between 3,000 and 4,000 pounds each.

Engineers were still at the site Tuesday and a plaza official said part of the plaza would remain closed until the area was secured. Several major department stores housed in the plaza were not affected by the closure.

The concrete slabs were outside panels on the eighth and ninth levels of the CN Tower. On impact, the slabs ripped through the fire sprinkler system, causing flooding to nearby areas of the plaza.

Cause of the accident has not been determined.

'Swaggering Bully' Sought

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard Tuesday issued a sketch of a "swaggering bully" they believe was the ringleader of a trio who killed a defenceless boy at a swimming pool before 1,000 witnesses who ignored his screams for help.

It was the first major development in the nearly six-week-old murder of Enrico Sidoli, a friendly, talkative 15-year-old with a nervous tic who was beaten and held under water while a crowd estimated at about 1,000 persons watched.

For a month, Scotland Yard detectives could not get a single witness to talk about the July 8 attack which resulted in young Enrico's death.

Then, a newspaper's offer of a reward brought forth a flood of information which enabled detectives to issue the drawing of their chief suspect whom they described as a "swaggering bully" in his late teens.

Their description is complete even to the kind of badges the 17 or 18-year-old suspect wears on his T-shirts and the kind of boots he wears.

Less detailed descriptions have been obtained of the other two youths involved in the attack. Scotland Yard sources said all three youths were believed to be still in the Kentish Town area where the slaying took place.

"At long last we are reaching them," detective chief inspector Harry Clements said Tuesday, referring to the sudden surge of witnesses coming forward to talk about the killing.

"Groups of youngsters are now coming to their senses," Clement, who for 37 days had met what he called a "wall of silence" on the case, said.

"They are coming into the police station at Kentish Town and asking, 'what can we do to help?' they are stopping police in the street, asking for details of the youths we want to interview and then going off to look for them.

"The co-operation is wonderful," Clements said. "It is so different from what it was a few weeks ago."

Kentish Town, the North London area where Enrico lived, teems with teen-age gangs who prey on younger children. Local people were not suprised at what one Scotland Yard source called "a complete wall of silence" around Enrico's murder.

"All the kids know what could happen if they speak up," said 16-year-old Eva Britton. "If their names got out they would be beaten up."

How Did Bank Guards Miss Sewer Bandits' Digging?

PARIS (Reuter) — Controversy was growing today over how guards at a Paris bank were unable to detect robbers who tunnelled from a sewer into a vault at the weekend and rifled at least 130 safe deposit boxes.

The Societe Generale bank said the gang might have been caught in the vaults of its branch on the exclusive Ile Saint Louis but for a "human failure" by the guards, who belonged to a private security company.

The security company admits its guards noticed "noises" during the three-day holiday weekend, but says it reported the incidents and checks by bank staff revealed nothing.

Security is a touchy subject for the state-run Societe Generale, for this robbery was a repeat of last month's raid on its branch in Nice, where thieves were believed to have fled with at least 50 million francs ($10.26 million).

The size of the Paris haul was not immediately known, but indications were that it was huge.

The branch is the only bank on the Seine Island, home of many show business personalities and politicians who put jewelry and other valuables in safe deposit boxes before going on holiday.

Like the Nice raiders, the Paris thieves used mechanical equipment apparatus to tunnel from the sewer to the vault.

Police said the bank's alarm was linked to their headquarters but it did not go off, the gang apparently bypassing the system.

The identical methods used in the two robberies prompted police speculation that the Nice "Sewer Rat" gang may have struck again.

The Societe Generale has offered a one-million-franc ($216,000) reward for information leading to the arrest of the Nice robbers.

Council of Churches Condemns S. Africa

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — The World Council of Churches Tuesday accused South Africa of perpetuating apartheid racial policies by making South Africans "foreigners in their own country" in granting Transkei province independence.

It also agreed to continue aid to black nationalist groups and said South Africa was a threat to world peace.

The council's central committee adopted a resolution condemning "the continued oppression of the people of Southern Africa, the arbitrary imprisonment and detention of political leaders and the continued denial of human rights."

The resolution specifically condemned South Africa for "perpetuating and consolidating apartheid by the creation of the so-called independent Transkei, by which three million South Africans will be made foreigners in their own country."

It called on member churches to urge their governments to "oppose this policy, to withhold recognition of the Transkei as an independent state and to have no direct or indirect diplomatic, commercial or other relations with the Transkei."

The South African government has announced that Transkei will be given its independence Oct. 26 despite the objections of black leaders.

SADLER RETIRING SEPT. 1

Human Resources deputy minister Jim Sadler will retire Sept. 1 after 39 years with the provincial government.

Sadler, 62, has been deputy minister since 1974 but started with the provincial government in 1937.

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said he expects to name a replacement for Sadler next week.

"Jimmy is more than a civil servant, he is an institution," said Vander Zalm.

"More than anyone I have met since coming to Victoria, Jim Sadler has helped, guided and sometimes cajoled us through both trying and exciting times," the minister said.

Sadler said he has no immediate retirement plans but intends to do some fishing at his cabin on Babine Lake in the Interior.

One of Sadler's first major projects for the provincial government was to relocate Saskatchewan drought victims into the Burns Lake area in 1939.

BCGEU Cleared On Vote

An internal committee of the B.C. Government Employees' Union has absolved the union from charges that balloting was mishandled in the recent vote to affiliate with the National Union of Provincial Employees.

The committee's report, however, does blame membership apathy for much of the trouble that grew out of the vote.

The 17-member committee was appointed by the executive to investigate charges, largely from the Victoria area, that the union was negligent in some instances of the balloting procedure that took the BCGEU into the recently-formed naional body.

The report concluded apathy caused more missed votes than failures in the system.

Kootenay Courses To Resume

Three institutions have combined to ensure university programs in the Kootenays for the coming academic year, Deputy Minister of Education, Walter Hardwick, said Tuesday.

Dr. Hardwick said first and second year programs will be offered in both Nelson and Castlegar by Selkirk College while third and fourth year programs will be available at Notre Dame University in Nelson.

He said this will be the last year of the Notre Dame degree as it is currently known. Future programs on the Notre Dame campus will depend on the recommendations of the Winegard commission on university programs in non-metropolitan areas.

The report is expected next month.

MAINTENANCE TO HALT DAYLINER

The Esquimalt and Nanaimo dayliner will not run Saturday in either direction due to major maintenance on the track near Cassidy, CP Rail announced Tuesday.

Freight operaions also will be suspended for about 48 hours to permit reconstruction of a retaining wall where the railway embankment runs along Haslma Creek.

Work adjacent to the track will begin after the southbound passenger train passes Cassidy Friday afternoon, and the job is scheduled to be completed Sunday afternoon.

Indian Education Director Named

Education Minister Pat McGeer said Tuesday that Dr. Saul Arbees, 37, has been appointed director of Indian education for B.C. Dr. Arbees is managing director of the Coqualeetza education-training centre for Indians at Sardis in the Fraser Valley. He holds degrees in psychology, education and anthropology of native peoples.

Pacific Press Talks Collapse

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hopes for a settlement in a dispute which has halted production of the city's two daily newspapers evaporated Tuesday with the announcement by a B.C. Labor Relations Board mediator that talks had broken off.

Both Pacific Press Ltd., which produces the Sun and Province, and the Joint Council of Newspaper Unions, representing seven unions, had been meeting with board vice-chairman Ed Peck in an effort to resolve the dispute, which began with the company's refusal to pay the full raises ratified in a recent contract.

Pacific Press suspended publication of both newspapers Aug. 7 after more than a week of work slowdowns which had delayed several editions and finally halted publication entirely.

The dispute arose when the company's general manager, Dave Stinson, said raises above the anti-Inflation Board guideline of 8.3 per cent would not be paid until the board rules on validity of a new two-year contract signed a month ago.

The company said it would agree to pay the 8.3 per cent and bank the rest of the raise until the board ruled on the contract, which gave 1,400 union employees a 16-per-cent wage increase retroactive to Nov. 1975 in the first year and eight per cent in the second year. A senior reporter made $320 a week under the previous contract.

Peck, in announcing the talks had broken off, said there would be "no useful purpose" in continuing the meetings.

He said the labor board would hand down non-binding recommendations on settlement of the dispute today.

The original dispute has widened, with one of the matters under discussion now being the company's refusal to pay workers for times spent in study sessions to protest the company's decision to withhold some of the pay.

The board also is considering the company's stand that the work stoppages constituted an illegal strike, thus allowing the company to sue the unions for money lost by not publishing.

The Labor Relations board has already ruled that the company was justified in withholding raises above the Anti-Inflation Board guidelines until a ruling on the contract is handed down.

Wages Pegged To Gold

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The first strike in the history of Cominco's gold mine here ended Tuesday after workers ratified a 27-month agreement which pegs wages in part to the fluctuating gold market.

The gold price adjustment scheme means that workers will get progressively more money if the price of gold goes up to a ceiling of $160 an ounce. The maximum bonus will be 65 cents an hour on top of the regular wage.

The current gold price is $110 an ounce, a far cry from the golden days of 1974 when it was some $200 on the London market.

About 185 workers walked off the job two weeks ago after the United Steelworkers of Americca, Local 802, failed to reach agreement on a new contract after the old one expired July 31. Spokesmen for both sides said that the main issue was wages and the recent plunge in gold prices did not help.

Strike Tokenism —Ginn

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Reg Ginn, national president of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, said Tuesday the national strike called for Oct. 14 by the Canadian Labor Congress to protest federal anti-inflation policies is little more than tokenism.

Ginn said in an interview, if labor is convinced Ottawa is controlling wages and not prices, it should stage an indefinite strike, not a one-day effort that will accomplish nothing.

"I think before anything of this nature is tried or before a protest is called, they (CLC) want to make damn good and sure that the majority of people that are affiliated with the CLC are going to participate," Ginn said.

"To have something like this go half way or sort of fizzle out would do a hell of a lot more harm than it would ever do good, even if it was a success."

Ginn said it would be nice if labor could get together for a strong show of resistance, but a one-day strike is of no use at all.

He said the labor movement across Canada is losing public sympathy because of the frequency of its strike action and the problem is that only a third of the country's labor force is organized.

Every time a group of organized workers get a big increase it causes prices to go up and those who are not organized are paying these prices and a resentment builds up, Ginn said.

"We've got to do a better PR job because the things we do are justified as hell, but you've got to tell people that, show them why they're justified," Ginn said.

Vanderhoof Harassment To Be Heard

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The B.C. Police Commission plans to hold a public meeting in Vanderhoof in September to discuss charges of harassment of native indians.

The B.C. Human Rights Commission requested the meeting after an investigator looked into the charges.

Bishop Remi De Roo, human rights commission chairman, said Monday if half of the investigator's report was true the issue in Vanderhoof was a "heartbreaking" situation.

A police commission spokesman said the commission had decided to hold the meeting prior to the request and will notify Bishop De Roo that it will meet with the human rights commission to discuss the issues in Vanderhoof.

The investigation came after charges by native indians that they were being harassed, intimidated and threatened in the community.

The charges were made by Stoney Creek Band members, who allege that police investigation into the July 3 death of band member Coreen Thomas was not concluded.

The 21-year-old woman was struck by a car and killed as she was walking to the reserve from Vanderhoof's 50th anniversay celebrations.

Cannon Trial Set

ASHCROFT (CP) — A trial date of Oct. 19 has been set for Peter Alan Ranta, 28, of Cache Creek, charged with possessing an explosive substance after a cannon was fired in a parking lot in Cache Creek on Aug. 9. Police said Tuesday that Ranta had been released on his own recognizance.

German Surprises Newcombe

TORONTO (CP) — Top-seeded Guillermo Vilas had an easy time against John Whitlinger of the United States in his opening round match at the $155,000 Canadian Open tennis tournament Tuesday.

The left-handed Argentinian took barely an hour to put the 22-year-old Wisconsin player out of action 6-2, 6-4.

Vilas, who turned 24 Tuesday, took control of the match immediately and held it except for one small break at 5-4 for Whitlinger in the second set. Vilas allowed the challenger four easy points.

Highlight of the evening round was the upset of Australian veteran John Newcombe by Hans Pohman of West Germany, Pohman knocked off the fifth-seeded Newcombe, 7-6, 6-4 to advance to the second round.

For the second time in two days, a Canadian advanced to the second round.

Toronto's Greg Halder defeated Tim Noonan of the U.S. 7-6, 7-6. It is the first time in two years that a Canadian male has advanced to the second round. The last occasion was when Don McCormick of Victoria beat Ken McMillan of the U.S. in the first round.

McCormick lost his second-round match to Vilas who went on to win the tournament.

Monday, Toronto's Barbra Brankovska overpowered Britain's Glynis Coles 6-2, 6-2 to advance to second-round play today in women's singles against top-seeded Sue Barker of Britain.

Halder, who spent the last two years touring Europe and the U.S., said he was having trouble coping with the extra pressure from the home town crowd.

He meets the No. 11 seed Wotjek Fibak of Poland today.

Fibak lost in the final of the Indianapolis clay court tournament Monday to Jimmy Connors.

Canadian champion Jim Boyce of Toronto lost his opening-round match with South Africa's Bob Hewitt, 6-3, 6-1, Boyce defeated Halder in the Canadian championship in Winnipeg last weekend.

Susan Stone of Vancouver, Canadian three-time women's champion, lost to Helga Masthoff of West Germany 6-3, 6-0.

Masthoff, who is not seeded, is the captain of the German Federation Cup team.

No. 3 seed Mina Jausovec of Yogoslavia defeated Vera Komar of Cambridge, Ont., 6-0, 6-1 and Romanian Virginia Ruzicki defeated Marjorie Blackwood of Ottawa, the 1975 Canadian junior champion, 6-4, 7-6.

In other singles action, two seeds were eliminated. No. 8 seed Ross Case of Australia was upset 7-5, 6-1 by American Billy Martin.

Martin, who likes playing in windy conditions, capitalized on the twisting currents that twirl around the new $1 million tennis centre at York University, the permanent home of the Canadian Open.

No. 2 seed Terry Holladay of the U.S. was dumped 6-3, 6-3 by Belgian Michelle Gurdal.

Holladay's opening-match was postponed one day when she failed to arrive in time.

Bowler Shows Record Form

LONDON (Reuter) — West Indies fast bowler Michael Holding plunged England to a shattering defeat when he ended with a record-breaking match score of 14 wickets on the final day of the fifth and final cricket test at The Oval on Tuesday.

England, set 435 runs to win, tumbled to defeat by 231 runs when it was all out for 203 in its second innings by late afternoon.

Holding added six wickets Tuesday to the eight he captured in the first innings for a record test total by a West Indian. His match figures were 53.4 overs, 15 maidens, 149 runs and 14 wickets.

The previous best bowling performance by a West Indian was 12 for 121 by Andy Roberts against India in the West Indies last year.

The West Indies won the series 3-0 with two draws to give England its biggest thrashing in England since Don Bradman led Australia to a 4-0 victory in 1948.

The 23-year-old Jamaican destroyed England's hopes of either winning or saving the match by taking four wickets in his first 37 balls. He finished the innings with six for 57 off 20.4 overs.

Stout defence by David Steele (42), Alan Knott (57) and Geoff Miller (24) gave England some hope of forcing a draw, but in the end it was the superior pace of the West Indians, and especially Holding that proved decisive.

Steele and Knott were festured in a stubborn sixth-wicket stand which carried England from 78 for five to 148 in just over two hours. It ended when Steele was caught behind off Vanburn Holder.

Pecher Top Rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Pecher of Dallas Tornado has been named the North American Soccer League rookie of the year and will be honored Aug. 26 at the league's annual banquet at Seattle.

The 194-pound defenceman has been sidelined since July 10 because of a shoulder seperation he suffered against Seattle. He will be back in action for the playoffs.

Pecher is the second Tornado to receive the honor, which is voted by the league players. Kyle Rote Jr. won the award in 1973.

The Creative Peach.

The Certo season is here. Time to create your own fresh-tasting jams, jellies and preserves with luscious, just-picked peaches and Certo* fruit pectin.

ANOTHER WAY TO SAY "I LOVE YOU" TO YOUR FAMILY.

Just watch those faces light up when your family tastes the fresh-picked flavour of jams, jellies and preserves you've made yourself.
Nothing tastes so good. Or so special.

GOOD EARTH PEACH JAM MADE WITH CERTO LIQUID.

Makes about 11 medium glasses.
4 cups prepared fruit
(about 3 lb fully ripe peaches)
¼ cup lemon juice
7½ cups sugar
1 bottle Certo liquid fruit pectin.

First prepare the fruit—Peel, pit and grind or chop very fine about 3 pounds peaches. Measure 4 cups into a large saucepan. Stir in lemon juice.

Then make the jam—Thoroughly mix sugar into fruit. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in Certo. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim for 5 minutes to cool slightly to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into sterilized glasses.

Cover at once with ⅛-inch hot paraffin.

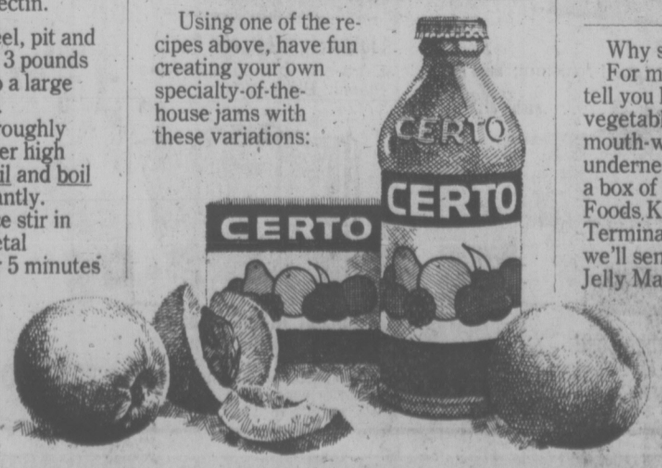
GOOD EARTH PEACH JAM MADE WITH CERTO CRYSTALS.

Prepare fruit as above using a total of 4 cups prepared fruit. Stir in 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Measure 5½ cups sugar and set aside. Add 1 box Certo crystals to fruit in saucepan. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a boil. Stir in sugar. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and continue as previously described. Makes about 8 medium glasses.

3 CREATIVE ADDITIONS.

Using one of the recipes above, have fun creating your own specialty-of-the-house jams with these variations:

1. Peach and Nut Jam—Prepare Peach Jam as directed, adding ½ cup chopped almonds and ½ teaspoon almond extract to prepared fruit.
2. Rosy Peach Jam—Prepare Peach Jam as directed, adding ½ cup chopped or slivered maraschino cherries to prepared fruit.
3. Peach Ginger Jam—Prepare Peach Jam as directed, adding 1 tablespoon chopped candied ginger to prepared fruit.



USE THE SHORT-BOIL OR FREEZER METHOD.

They both give you fresh-picked fruit flavour. So you choose.
Either way, you'll make luscious jams, jellies and preserves every time.

ENJOY THAT JUST-PICKED FRESH FRUIT FLAVOUR YEAR 'ROUND.

Why stop here? You've just begun!
For many, many more recipes that tell you how to turn the fruits (and vegetables) of every season into mouth-watering delicacies, take a peek underneath the label of a bottle or into a box of Certo or write to General Foods Kitchens, P.O. Box 4019, Terminal "A", Toronto, Ontario and we'll send you our booklet "Jam & Jelly Making: A Pleasurable Art".

Pigeon Race For the Birds

NEW YORK (AP) — As a promotional stunt, it was for the birds.

Ten homing pigeons left the top of the Empire State building at 11:07 a.m. Tuesday in a race for their coop at the harness-thoroughbred track at the new $300 million New Jersey sports facility.

The distance was six miles as the pigeon flies — supposedly.

"We want to demonstrate to the world how close downtown New York is to the centre of our situation," said Jack Krumpe, president of the development, which also has a stadium that will be home for New York Giants of the National Football League.

But instead of a matter of minutes, the race was not completed for one hour and 40 minutes — and then when eight of the birds swooped down as one, straight for the feeding trough.

The ninth pigeon showed five minutes later — and the 10th was reported missing in action — leading to a rash of one liners such as "he was probably mugged over Central Park."

"They probably could have gone to Chicago," said the man at the finish of the race held by the International Federation of American Homing Fanciers Inc.

The gimmick for the whole thing was to prove to New York bettors that still another track is closer to them than some of the other New York metropolitan tracks, and also to show football fans that the Giants are just as close — if not closer — than when they played in Yankee Stadium.

What better way than a dash by pigeons, which certainly couldn't get hung up by traffic.

George Woertz, chairman of the race, said the pigeons were each two-months-old and, although trained, had never raced before officially.

"Never trust a two-month-old maiden race," somebody said.

Before the big event, publicist Joe Goldstein conducted a post-position draw with nine of the birds being named after Hall of Fame harness racing drivers. The 10th, for an unexplained reason, was called Drum Sticks.

The harness racing theme was emphasized because that sport will be launched the night of Sept. 1 and is expected to run until next August when thoroughbred racing begins its debut, probably also at night.

HAWAII UPSETS TAIWAN

GARY, Ind. (AP) — Hawaii upset four-time defending champion Taiwan 4-3 and Richmond, Va., whipped West Germany 10-0 Tuesday in first-round play at the Senior Little League World Series of baseball for boys 12-15.

In a game of Monday's first-round losers, Surrey, B.C., eliminated the Dominican Republic with a 4-3 victory.

It was the first time in five years of competition that the team from Taiwan has lost.

Ontario Neglected in Soccer?

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Frank Pike, a provincial coach, believes Ontario has been ignored in the selection of Canada's World Cup soccer team.

Eighteen players, all of whom hold Canadian citizenship, will be chosen by Eckhart Krautzen, coach of Vancouver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League. Krautzen has also been designated as the coach of the World Cup squad.

There is currently a pool of 22 players being considered but only five are from Ontario.

And that bothers Pike.

The Canadian Soccer Association is allowing professional teams, the Whitecaps for the 1978 World Cup and Toronto Metros-Croatia for 1982, complete control of who is chosen.

"A team like the Whitecaps is only thinking of its own interests when it picks the team," said Pike, who coached Canada's first entry in World Cup competition in 1972-73. "And it will be the same with the Metros.

"I blame the Canadian Soccer Association for abdicating its responsibility in letting the professionals make the selection."

Most of the players likely to represent Canada are from British Columbia, a situation Pike feels is a contradiction to soccer's national scope.

"Ontario, British Columbia and Quebec, in that order, are where the main soccer centres are located," Pike said in a telephone interview from Toronto. "It should be the provincial associations who should hold trials and send players to a national camp.

"Certainly the CSA may have a case by claiming it has no money, but the associations would fight for funding and would receive support from the province for each player on a per capita basis."

At a meeting of the Ontario-based semi-professional National Soccer League held in Toronto last Saturday, Pike presented a proposal that an Ontario-select team play Canada's World Cup squad. The provincial team would consist of NSL players.

The league agreed to screen players submitted by the member clubs and the final list may be ready next week.

"My job is to make damn sure eligible players from this province get a chance to be on the World Cup team," Pike said. "We want the Whitecaps to look at these players and we're prepared to take them . . . wherever."

Canada must announce members of its team by mid-September before the zone playoffs against Mexico and the United States later in the month.

Pele Sparks Cosmo Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Pele scored one goal and assisted on another as New York Cosmos defeated Washington Diplomats 2-0 in a North American Soccer League first-round playoff game Tuesday night.

The win, in the only NASL playoff game Tuesday, sent the Cosmos into the quarter-finals against Tampa Bay Rowdies, the defending league champions, in Tampa on Saturday.

Sale Offer For Hialeah

HIALEAH, Fla. (AP) — A final offer to purchase the half-century old Hialeah Park race track is expected this week and may signal its eventual demise.

James Donn, president of Gulfstream Park in nearby Hallandale, was reported to be preparing a purchase offer of about $13 million to be made to Hialeah lawyer Charles Sacher later this week.

Two attempts to sell the park to interests that had promised to keep Hialeah open have failed.

On Monday, Hialeah officials were granted a 10-day extension of the deadline for appealing the board of business regulation's award of the choice 1977 mid-winter racing dates to Gulfstream.

Hialeah has been given spring dates of March 8 through May 4 next year.

Junior Curlers Get New League

Something new will be added to the Victoria curling scene next winter.

Scheduled to start on Oct. 10 is a junior men's masters league that will be limited to 16 rinks.

Junior curlers (19 and under as of July 1) are invited to attend a league meeting in Victoria Curling Club at 12 noon on Aug. 28, when additional information will be available.

Death Laid to Landlord After Tenant Froze

BUFFALO (UPI) — The death of an elderly woman who froze to death in an unheated apartment last January when the owners of the building failed to pay the fuel bill was officially classified by the police Tuesday as a homicide.

Homicide squad chief Leo Donovan said the case of Mrs. Ida Holden, 83, has been turned over to the district attorney's office for possible criminal action.

The Erie County medical examiner's office, Donovan said, attributed Mrs. Holden's death to frostbite and exposure to cold.

Donovan said the heat had been turned off in the apartment building for "about four days" in January when it was so cold — with temperatures dipping to minus 24C — that tropical fish aquariums in other apartments froze over and the fish died.

"Apparently no one took the precaution to check the building to see if somebody might need help," Donovan said. "Some of the other tenants had lift the premises and gone to other residences and they came back after the heat was turned on."

Mrs. Holden's body was found in her apartment Jan. 26 by a friend who called to visit.

"As far as she was concerned," Donovan said, "the heat, which was fuel oil, was included in her rent. The corporation (which owned the building) failed to pay the bill and the fuel company refused to replenish the supply until it was paid. The fuel company notified a representative of the corporation that they were going to run out of fuel.

"A couple of the other tenants in the building had aquariums," Donovan added, "and the aquariums froze over and the fish died."

Donovan said his squad interviewed members of the corporation and the fuel supply company. He said he expected the case to go before a grand jury next month.

Donovan refused to name the corporation which owned the building.

TV Violence 'Health Threat'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Massive doses of violence on television were branded Tuesday as "a major health threat" to the U.S.

Dr. Thomas Emendorf, past president of the California Medical Association, told a house communications subcommittee hearing investigating sex and violence on TV that the medical profession is "deeply concerned about the effects of TV on youth."

"By the time they are 18 years old they have spent 11,000 hours in schooling and 15,000 hours watching TV," Elmendorf said. "They have seen some 18,000 murders and some highly detailed incidents of (other violent crimes).

"Concurrent with the massive overdose of violence on daily TV programming, there has been a rise in crime."

Rep. Henry Waxman (D—Calif.) co-chairman of the hearing, said program "contentiousness" has not declined since implementation of the so-called "family hour," adopted by the industry early in 1975.

The "family hour" concept, the subject of pending litigation in Los Angeles over its constitutionality, was enacted to gear the language and themes of prime-time programs to family audiences.

BARGES BEAT ARCTIC ICE

PRUDHOE BAY (AP) — The massive sealift carrying supplies to Alaska's Prudoe Bay oil fields was completed Tuesday with the arrival of the last four barges.

D. J. Moon of BP Alaska said that firm's last two barges arrived at the starting point of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Monday afternoon.

The arrival of the 21 barges completed the crucial freight run from Seattle which is only possible during the brief summer breakup of Arctic ice.

Investment Advice in Comics?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the 3,750 investment advisers in the United States have relied upon astrology and even comic strips for help in placing their clients' investments, says a report prepared by Representative John Murphy (Dem.) N.Y.

The federal government is "relatively powerless" to prevent such persons from operating in the $130-billion industry, says Murphy. He supports legislation calling for tighter qualifications for investment advisers.

"Under current law, virtually anyone can become a registered investment adviser, regardless of age, prior experience, or education in financial matters, and regardless of whether that person possesses any financial responsibility," Murphy said.

In one case, he said, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) resorted to a letter filled with complex legal terminology in an attempt to discourage a 15-year-old Californian from registering as an adviser.

Murphy said the commission cannot legally prevent such registration, even though the youth is not of age and any contracts with clients would be [illegible]

He said [illegible] operates in [illegible] registered [illegible] viser, using his [illegible] an office.

An SEC official said [illegible] anybody can become an investment adviser upon payment of a $150 registration fee unless the person has been convicted of larceny or embezzlement.

HERBS MAY NOT BE GOOD FOR YOU

CHICAGO (UPI) — Herbal cigarettes, teas and capsules, available in health food stores and by mail order from suppliers, may cause unpleasant mental and physical reactions, a report says in the recent journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Ronald Siegel of the UCLA School of Medicine said the herbal products contain substantial amounts of psychoactive substances. He said their use may result in a number of intoxications requiring medical attention.

Siegel said 192 distinct herbs are commercially available as smoking substances, mostly in cigarettes. Often the cigarettes contain non-psychoactive ingredients like yerba, santa, rosemary, thyme, mulein and spearmint.

But nearly half of them do contain plants with known mind-altering effects, he said.

Siegel said two men experienced severe hallucinations and highly unpleasant physical and emotional reactions from smoking "mint bidis," hand-rolled cigarettes imported from India. The cigarettes, made from Indian herbs, were found to contain high amounts of mind-altering substances.

Siegel said 396 herbs and spices are commercially available for use as herbal teas, 43 of which contain psychoactive substances, but generally in such small amounts that they have little or no behavioral effects.

However, he said, an individual occasionally will have problems. One woman, after drinking a tea consisting of two ground nutmegs in a glass of warm water, hallucinated that monsters were trying to engulf her.

Other herbal products are available as capsules, some with excessively high doses of caffine and other substances, he said.

In conserve and jelly, grapes are delicious

Homemade Grape Jelly Can't Be Beaten

Mary Moore

By MARY MOORE

On the Pitts' farm, near Perth they have miles of wild grapes climbing over cedars, maples and countless other trees.

I had some spare time and energy and called to Dan and Dave to gather them. They brought baskets full. The jelly was the best I ever made or tasted.

Concord grapes made into jelly or conserve are an economical effort so while in season make a batch.

GRAPE JELLY

5 c. grape juice (takes about 4 lbs. Concord grapes and 1 cup water — see below)
1 pkg. powdered pectin
7 c. sugar

To prepare the juice sort, wash and remove stems from ripe grapes. (You need about 6 cupfuls stemmed grapes.) Turn them into a large pan and add 1 cup water. Bring boil on high heat, then reduce heat and boil gently for 10 minutes (NOTE: Use a large pot so that when mixture boils and spatters it does not slash you or stove or wall with purple spots.) Drain through cloth-lined strainer or colander overnight. In morning measure juice. You should have 5 cups. Turn into large kettle, add powdered pectin, stirring. Bring to full rolling boil which cannot be stirred down. Add sugar, stirring and bring to full rolling boil again and boil hard for 1 minute, stirring. Remove from heat, skim off foam and pour into 11 six-oz. jars). Cover with clean hot paraffin, adding second coat when first is cool. Cover with lids, wash sides of glasses, if necessary, label and store.

GRAPE CONSERVE

4 c. grapes with SKINS REMOVED (reserve skins — wash about 4 lbs. Concords before skinning)
1 medium-large orange (unpeeled) hot sterilized jelly jars (10 or
4 c. sugar
½ tsp. salt
Skins from grapes
1 c. chopped nuts (optional)

Sort and wash grapes and remove from stems. Slip skins from grapes. Drop pulp into your 4-cup measuring cup at left and skins into bowl at your right. When you have 4 cups pulp turn them into a large pot, bring to boil and boil for 10 minutes or until seeds show. Press through fine sieve to remove seeds. I had 2 2-3 cups of thin puree. Chop orange FINELY removing seeds and centre pith. In a large pot add the orange, sugar, raisins, and salt to grape puree and boil rapidly, stirring almost constantly, until it begins to thicken and clear — 10 or 12 minutes. Add grape skins and boil, stirring constantly for 10 or 15 minutes or if using thermometer to 221 deg. Fahr. (Do not overcook for this mixture thickens more on second day.) Add nuts, if used, stir well. Remove from heat, skim off foam and stir for 5 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jam jars, filling to within ½" of top. Cover with clean, hot paraffin, adding second coat when first is cool. Cover, wash if necessary, lable and store.

FLYING HIGH TO CELEBRATE

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Follweiler got "high" again for their anniversary.

They managed to attain a six-mile altitude on a jet on the way to Las Vegas for the celebration of their 45th year of marriage.

The two began their marriage in 1930 with a ceremony aboard a single-engine plane. After that, they took many other air trips together, celebrating their 10th, 25th, 30th and 35th anniversaries.

Follweiler, a graduate of a flying school, retired several years ago as an insurance salesman.

Tags for Chips

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers crunching potato chips may never know the difference, but the U.S. agriculture department is proposing to establish the first federal grade standards ever for potatoes used in the snacks.

The proposed new standards would not apply to the finished chips, but, if adopted, "would provide a uniform method of determining chipping quality of potatoes and a basis for establishing prices between potato growers and chip manufacturers," the department said.

Under the proposal, two grades — U.S. No. 1 for potatoes at least 1⅞ inches in diameter and U.S. No. 2 for potatoes at least 1¾ inches in diameter — would be created.

The plan also would include tolerances for defects and optional ways to determine the "fry color" of the finished chips.

Tomatoes Are Late, But Good as Ever

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Dear Lynn and Joel:

It's about this Boston Fern named George. He came to us from a local greenhouse about eight months ago — lovely, lush, verdant — a rare beauty. It's been downhill ever since. Even though he's loved, talked to, wanted, watered and fed, his fronds have become limp, he's pale green, and the tips of 90 per cent of his leaves are brown. Any advice would be appreciated — especially by George. — M.H.

Here's how to take care of George — or George Jr., if George should suddenly go off to plant heaven. Keep him in a light, cool place. Be sure he's hanging or on a pedestal so his leaves can breathe. Spray him daily with a fine mist of warm water, and be sure to water him thoroughly at least once a week, trimming out any brown fronds when you do.

Tomatoes come into many homes only during late summer as the local fruits ripen outdoors. At other seasons their cost and their lack of flavor keep them from being enjoyed. Fortunately this is one fruit which does not lose its food values when canned, either as whole fruit or as juice. Many homemakers take advantage of this fact while waiting for garden-fresh ripe fruits in late summer.

This year our first ripe fruits are three weeks late, but the crop is progressing well and we look forward to picking sun-warmed ripe tomatoes each day from now to frost.

At first there is no problem as to how to use them. For table serving, just wipe with a damp cloth and slice with a sharp knife.

Some people like a few grains of salt on the slices; others a few grains of sugar; while a dab of plain homemade yogurt with a touch of garlic juice and a smidgeon of sweet basil herb is a delight to many.

Serve ripe tomatoes at room temperature if you want their true flavor. You may find that visitors who taste them this way for the first time question the flavor. Some say they are too sharp, but then you know they have never before eaten a vine-ripened tomato. Plain homemade yogurt takes off the sharp edge until one gradually becomes accustomed to it. Or look for plants of the Golden Jubilee or Golden Queen variety next year. These have a wonderful tomato flavor without the sharp acidity.

A nine-year-old child told me some years ago that she really didn't like our tomatoes because they had juice inside and looked so red. She had only known solid, pale pink tomatoes, like an apple almost, bought at the market and then peeled and sliced.

But ripe tomatoes "grow" on you as you enjoy their flavor. With lettuce, cucumber, zucchini, cheese slices, beet, green or red sweet peppers, and hard boiled eggs, any number of appetizing salads can be arranged — every one loaded with the minerals and vitamins for daily living. Add homemade wholewheat or other wholegrain bread or buns to these salads to complete a nutritious meal.

Noon Lunch at Home

A light pan-cooking of tomato slices makes a delicious lunch for the first days back at school. There is little preparation and the tomatoes go into the pan as soon as familiar sounds outside indicate the youngsters are near.

Have a large frypan ready with a tablespoon of soft margarine or your favorite oil. Heat pan and oil.

hilda beastall

Add thick tomato slices, sprinkle with a few grains of salt and sugar. Cook until slightly soft, about 3 minutes.

Remove tomatoes with spatula onto split half-buns on separate plates; add a little more margarine and some lemon juice to pan and stir together with spatula or wooden spoon.

Pour this as a sauce over the tomato slices and the buns. Top with a slice of cheddar cheese and a sprinkling of parsley or chives. A spoonful of homemade yogurt is a good way to include more milk for those who may not like drinking a full glass at noon.
ing a full glass at noon.

Serve milk, a dish of fruit and a homemade cookie as dessert.

To slice tomatoes with less squishing, stand tomato on stem end; slice from top to bottom. It helps to have a thin-bladed, sharp knife. If you've had tomato juice squirt on the kitchen wall when slicing, you'll know what is meant by squishing.

To make Stuffed Tomatoes use large fruits, and some left-over cooked brown rice, perhaps already partly seasoned.

STUFFED TOMATOES
(Hot or Cold)

6 large tomatoes
¼ cup soft margarine
1 garlic clove
¼ cup chopped parsley
1½ cup cooked brown rice
2 tsp brewer's yeast (torula)
paprika

Take top slice from each tomato; scoop out soft centres and set aside to use later in recipe.

Set tomatoes upright in suitable glass baking dish.

In small pan, soften margarine; cook crushed garlic clove and parsley in the pan for two or three minutes; add rice and stir well to mix and heat through.

Add and stir in brewer's yeast and paprika.

Stuff the tomatoes with this mixture.

Spoon the mashed soft tomato centres over the tops and around the tomatoes.

Bake in warm oven 163 deg. C. or until bubbling hot.

Or, if desired, these stuffed tomatoes need not be put into oven at all; substitute a little chopped onion or chives for the garlic. Serve at room temperature. The rice filling can be heated or not as wished, as the rice is already cooked. Serves 6.

As the season progresses, tomatoes may be quickly broiled on toast, made into soups or added to dozens of baked-bean and grain casseroles.

By Thanksgiving, tomatoes come back to the table as colorful accents in salads of all kinds which lighten the heavier meals thought necessary to the season.

Sun-ripened and still sun-warm, tomatoes at their best are remembered from one year to the next by those who know and relish their flavor.

For those with enormous crops of ripe fruits, the answer is to can (bottle) as many as possible, and make juice of less than perfect shapes and sizes.

GALLERY IN TROUBLE

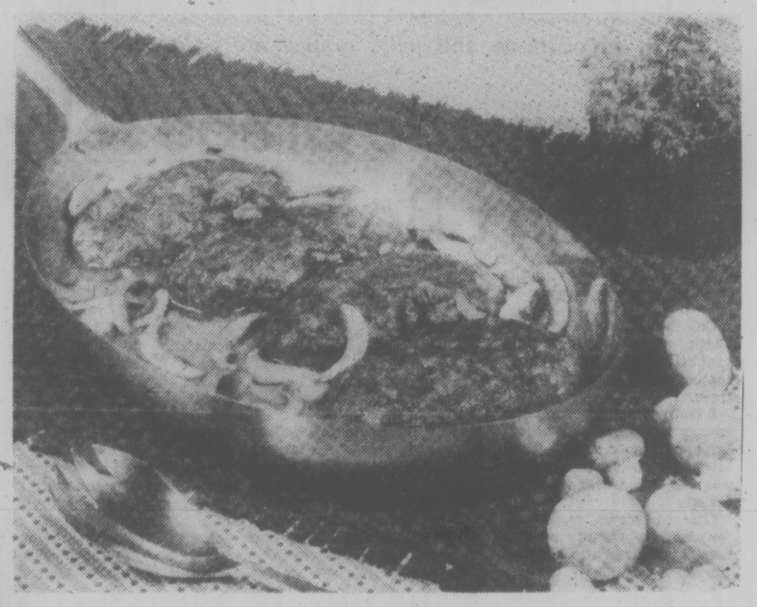
LONDON (AP) — The Tate Art Gallery is in hot water again for spending an estimated $900 of the taxpayers' money for a seven-foot, 10-inch blue plaque with the words "starlit waters" painted one foot high on it in green, and an orange fishnet draped over it.

A gallery spokesman rejected the suggestion of The Times that the purchase of the piece by British "concrete poet" Ian Hamilton Finlay was a waste of money.

The work produces "a rich resonance by minimal means," the spokesman said.

People had reviled the works of the French Impressionist painters 100 years ago, and now they revered them.

The Tate, one of Britain's leading art collections, gets an annual government grant of $1 million. Six months ago there was a newspaper outcry because it paid an estimated $8,200 for 120 bricks arranged as a sculpture by U.S. sculptor Carl Andre. It also recently purchased British sculptor Barry Flanagan's Blankets, consisting of five burlap blankets dyed blue, brown and cinnamon and folded and stacked in a neat pile.



Hot and spicy, mini-rarebits are easy on the budget

Mini-Rarebit Loaves

1 pound ground beef round
1 egg
18 crackers, finely rolled (about ¾ cup crumbs)
¾ teaspoon onion powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon thyme leaves
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
4 teaspoons prepared spicy mustard
1 1-3 cups coarsely grated natural Cheddar cheese
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chili sauce
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
Parsley sprigs optional.

Thoroughly combine first seven ingredients and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; divide into four equal portions. Shape each portion into a 6x4½-inch rectangle; spread each with 1 teaspoon mustard. Combine cheese, parsley and remaining two teaspoons Worcestershire sauce; spread 1-3 cup cheese mixture over each rectangle and fold over edges, pressing to secure firmly. Brown lightly on all sides in a skillet. Reduce heat to low; cover and continue to cook 15 minutes. Brush loaves with chili sauce and cook an additional 5 minutes. Remove loaves from skillet. Heat butter or margarine in skillet and saute mushrooms until tender. Garnish with parsley sprigs, if desired. Makes 4 (about 5-ounce) servings.

Vegetables Are at Their Best

By RUTH FREMES and ZAK SABRY

Perhaps you have a vegetable garden or a few fruit trees in your backyard. Or you've noticed roadside stands selling fruits and vegetables along the highway. Farmer's markets are flourishing and farms are harvesting an abundance of fresh produce.

This is the time of year when fruits and vegetables are really fresh—perhaps just picked this morning. The price is low. The quality is high. Now's the time to buy.

Make fresh fruit and vegetables a large part of your diet now — that way you can take advantage of the food when it's at its most nutritious. But the question is what produce is the best to buy? What fruits and vegetables give me which nutrients? Should I just buy some of everything in sight?

Of course, you'll be guided by your own taste. If you have a passion for peaches and apricots you'll tend to buy more of them than, say, spinach or pears. We would recommend that you buy produce that you can preserve easily, so that what you don't use right away, in its fresh state, you can put away for the winter months ahead. But all fruits and vegetables offer a wide variety of essential vitamins and minerals.

Nutritionally, the green vegetables — lettuce, spinach, beet greens, broccoli, cabbage, celery, asparagus and sweet pepper — are the most valuable. They contain rich amounts of vitamins A and C, and folic acid, an important B vitamin. According to the Nutrition Canada survey, these three vitamins are not present in adequate amounts in the diets of many Canadians.

Like the green vegetables, the yellow, orange and red vegetables and fruits contain vitamins A and C. These are foods like carrots, pumpkins, turnips, sweet potatoes, peaches, cantaloups, tomatoes, cherries, strawberries, raspberries and, though they're not grown in Canada, oranges, grapefruits and tangerines.

All fruits and vegetables are part of plants: roots, stalks, leaves, fruits, seeds. They contain all the nutrition that the plant needs to survive, which explains why they are such good food value for us. As well, fruits and vegetables are low in calories: an average-sized tomato or peach has about 35 calories, a cucumber or sweet pepper 15, half a head of lettuce 30 calories, a cup of strawberries (about 15 small strawberries) 50, and half a cantaloup 60 calories. Except for avocados, fruits and vegetables are almost fat-free.

Besides being a valuable source of vitamins and minerals, fruits and vegetables provide us with fibre that is essential to the process of digestion, to prevent constipation and to cut the risk of diseases such as cancer of the colon, coronary heart attack, appendicitis and diverticulitis. And they're rarely refined or heavily processed — except in the case of potato chips, instant potatoes, french fried potatoes and onions. They're a perfect, natural, nutritious food.

Don't limit your enjoyment of these essential foods just to the time when they're growing fresh. Now, while they're plentiful, stock up and preserve the produce by storing it in a cool, dark place, by canning or by freezing. If you're careful about the preserving methods you use, you'll save much of the nutritional value of the fruits and vegetables for the winter months ahead.

Write to your provincial department of agriculture — there should be a representative in your community listed in the phone book. He can send you the government pamphlets on canning and freezing. It's the best source for this kind of information — all the methods have been thoroughly tested and approved.

Once you've got your instructions, be sure to follow them to the letter. Remember that you have to sterilize the jars and their contents for canning. You'll need a large pressure cooker — if you don't own one, borrow one from a friend, or get together with three or four other people interested in canning, and buy one together. You won't use a pressure cooker often, so it's an expense that's better shared.

Some vegetables like lettuce, cress, parsley and spinach are best eaten fresh.

Some, like broccoli, brussels sprouts and corn are best fresh but freeze easily and well.

Other vegetables like beans, peas, carrots, onions and tomatoes are at their most delicious when just picked but keep their flavor equally well when frozen or canned.

Some, like peppers, tomatoes and onions are best when fresh or made into relish although they can be frozen in chunks and used in casseroles or soups later on.

Fruits, in our opinion, are always best fresh. Berries and melons can be frozen without sugar and used in a fruit salad. Tender fruits like peaches and pears can be frozen or canned. However you eat them, fresh or frozen or canned, then cooked, fruits and vegetables should be a large part of your diet all year round.

your health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have high blood pressure. The pills that I am using sometimes make me nauseated and uncomfortable. Is the rice diet still being used to reduce high blood pressure? — Mr. B.B.

Dear Mr. B.:

For many years, two observations about high blood pressure has interested scientists. The first is that people in some nations, who rely heavily on rice as a staple food, have been remarkably free of high blood pressure and heart disease.

The second, although incidental to your question, is interesting. Some primitive tribes who have had no exposure to noise seem to be free of these diseases of modern civilization.

One of the execellent byproducts of a rigid rice diet was its low caloric value and its reduction of cholesterol content in the blood. Both of these factors are important to the maintenance of the health of those people afflicted with high blood pressure.

Your problem seems to revolve about your inability to comfortably take the new drugs that are so effective in the reduction of high blood pressure.

Since there are so many variations of these drugs, it is hardly conceivable that one of them cannot be found to produce its effect without upsetting your stomach and gastrointestinal tract.

By trial and error, your doctor will help you. Some of these drugs when taken with meals, with yogurt, with cottage cheese, with a gelatin dessert or in conjunction with tranquilizing drugs, will maintain their efficacy without unpleasant side effects.

Most important, however, is that you do not give up drugs for the control of your high blood pressure without exploring every one of these avenues.

Is there any true medical reason why a young girl should avoid sports or swimming during her period? At my daughter's school there is a firm rule against it. — Mrs. L.S.

Dear Mrs. S.:

Many myths have persisted for years about this particular subject. Scientific truth has had difficulty displacing these myths.

Unless there are severe abdominal cramps which interfere with such activity there is no danger in participating in sports, in moderation.

As far as swimming is concerned, the limits established are for esthetic reasons rather than medical danger. It is understandable that swimming in pools, rather than lakes and oceans, should be given greater social consideration.

There's Nothing Different About 'Gourmet' Crepes

tiny bennett

In North America, pancakes are flapjacks, griddle cakes that rise in the cooking and are strictly a breakfast dish with syrup, bacon and sausages, while a pancake in Europe, better known as a crepe, is quite different. Made simply from eggs, flour, water, milk, butter and salt, it is cooked thin, brown and crisp and is used both for desserts and entrees.

In England when one speaks of pancakes, this means crepes and it is a traditional dessert to serve on Shrove Tuesdays.

A popular dish, in England the cooked pancake is dusted with sugar, given a squeeze of fresh lemon, rolled and served with more sugar and additional fresh lemon as garnish.

On South Carolina's Fripp Island a chef rolled precooked crepes around solidly frozen rolls of peach ice cream, sauteed each in butter, flamed with peach brandy and served them smothered with hot peach preserve.

It all sounds gourmet, difficult and expensive, yet in common with most gourmet food, it is simple and inexpensive.

This batter is standard for desserts and entrees and is made as follows:

CREPES BATTER:

Into a blender put one cup cold water, one cup cold milk, four eggs and ½ teaspoon salt. Add two cups sifted all-purpose flour, four tablespoons melted butter and blend at full power for one minute. Remove blender jar, scrape down any flour and blend again for a few seconds. Cover and refrigerate for a minimum of two hours — the batter should be about as tick as light cream, and if you feel it's a bit heavy, lighten by adding one teaspoon cold water at a time and beating again.

Lacking a blender, beat briskly with a wire whisk and strain out any lumps.

Crepes, with the exception of those intended for serving as an English style dessert, are best cooked in advance, since they will be re-heated with the filling beneath the broiler. English dessert crepes are best cooked and served one at a time so they come to the table hot.

To cook crepes, lightly brush a seasoned skillet with cooking oil and heat on a fairly hot ring until the oil starts to smoke — I use an omelet pan. Remove the pan from the heat, pour in a bare ¼ cup of batter into the centre and tilt in all directions to get the thinnest possible layer. If there's runny batter lift after this, tip it back into a jar.

Return to the heat and after about one minute, shake and bang the pan to release the crepe, lift an edge and if it is lightly browned, turn or flip it over and finish the other side for about 30 seconds. The second side only goes a spotty brown if kept inside when rolled.

Slide the crepe onto a plate and repeat, using less batter if the first ¼ cup measure proved to be a little too much . . . Think thin and crisp.

Stack the crepes on a plate and when convenient, roll cooked chopped seafood, chopped chicken, turkey, beef, veal or lamb that has been moistened with a little sauce. Fit the crepes into an attractive oven dish, mask with a fitting sauce and after re-heating in a 300 degree oven 25 minutes, brown the top under the broiler and serve. I once beat the potato crust of leftover Shepherd's Pie into the meat, beat in some brown sauce, filled the crepes, masked with very thick brown meat sauce and finished in the oven and under the broiler for what must have been the cheapest gourmet dish I've ever served.

A can of cream of mushroom soup thickened with flour or arrowroot makes for a fast sauce base at low cost and is superb for adding say curry powder or other distinctive spices to marry with the filling.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Many parents are disturbed because in some places it is now possible for adult adopted children to "unseal" their records and find out who their biological parents are.

This is an answer to my prayers because somewhere in the world is a 21-year-old girl I gave up for adoption because I was an unwed mother who wanted my child to have a better life than I could give her at the time.

I hope my daughter wants to know her "real" mother. I want her to know that I have no desire to replace the woman who raised her. I just want my daughter to accept me as her "other mother." I wonder if she realizes that I could have done what many other girls in my position have done — had an abortion. Instead I chose to risk my own life in childbirth in order to give her life.

Perhaps my daughter would like to meet me just to say, "Thank you." — HER OTHER MOTHER.

DEAR OTHER: Please read on for a letter from a mother who has been on both sides of the adoption table.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 17 I had a baby girl out of wedlock. I gave her up for adoption because her father couldn't marry me. (He was married.)

I became a registered nurse and subsequently married a very fine physician. We seemed unable to have children, so we adopted a baby girl. Within a year I gave birth to a baby girl. Two more children followed.

I have never forgotten the baby I gave away, but I hope with all my heart she does not seek me out. The woman who adopted her and raised her from infancy is the only mother she's ever known and is her "real" mother in every sense of the word.

I know, because I am also the mother of an adopted child whom I love every bit as much as my biological children. If my adopted daughter were to seek out her biological mother, deep down I would be crushed.

If my biological daughter were to suddenly locate me, I can see nothing but problems for her, me, my family and the parents who adopted her.

I realize that all adopted children are curious about their biological parents, but in satisfying their curiosity, they are bound to open up a lot of wounds and create many problems.

I think one set of parents is enough for any child. What do you think, Abby? — BOTH SIDES.

DEAR BOTH: I agree.

Bassist Generates Humor

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

It seems that the out-size member of the viol family, the double bass, inevitably generates a sense of humor in both its performers and audience. Most concert goers are familiar with world famous double bassist Gary Karr's musical clowning which crops up at every performance.

The humor was in evidence Tuesday at a Shawnigan Summer School concert at UVic's MacLaurin auditorium.

A fluent performance of a duet for violin and double bass by Giovanni Botessini produced some tongue-in-cheek flourishes from the performers and a rash of giggles from the near-capacity audience.

The artists were double bassist Jean-Marc Rollez and violinist Ruggiero Ricci with Denise Massé — the only one who appeared to take the opulent piece seriously — at the piano.

Under the school's necessarily somewhat impromptu arrangement of concerts, program notes are not possible, but for the many intermission time questioners, Botessini was a 19th century Italian who stumbled upon his instrument at age 11 when the only vacancy at the Milan Conservatory where he sought entry was for a double bass.

He subsequently became one of the great double bass virtuosos of all time as well as a conductor and composer of some note.

His duo concertante confronts the two string players with some extreme demands in fingering, harmonics and glissandos, supple bowing and cantabile phrases.

Ricci, whose virtuoso fame needs no recapitulation, was in his element, tossing the scintillating phrases about with flippant ease, bowing the lyrical passages with a deliberate touch of schmaltz.

Rollex, who among other things is soloist of the Paris National Opera, matched his partner in brilliance and produced some beautiful sound of cello-like timbre.

He was considerably less at ease in a concerto by the same composer with Masse doing the orchestral part at the piano. A slip at the start unsettled both performers and their co-ordination was never totally satisfactory thereafter.

Ricci and Andrew Dawes, the latter being the Orford String Quartet's first violin, opened the concert with a vivid, superbly executed performance of Prokofiev's Sonata for two violins, Opus 56. The matching here, in tonal color and texture, authority and brio was notable.

A percussive and immensely powerful performance by pianist Robin McCabe of Mussorgsky's Pictures at an Exhibition, occupied the second half of the program.

McCabe can produce olympian thunder from the keyboard and appears to have almost unlimited resources. The opening Promenade seems almost too ponderous, too massive in tone causing one to wonder what she could bring to the culminating grandeur of The Great Gate of Kiev.

No problem. There was plenty of substance, breadth and power with which to build climax upon climax, rivalling the strong color of the well known orchestral version.

Clean, precise and delicate fingering made the contrast of the Ballet of the Chicks a fine contrast to all the rich nuances of this long and comprehensive suite.

Company Director Negligent—Judge

MONZA, Italy (UPI) — A city judge has made accusations of possible criminal negligence against the director of a Swiss chemical company in connection with a poison gas cloud that contaminated parts of northern Italy and caused more than 500 prsons to become ill, judicial officials said today.

The officials said Judge Rinaldo Rosinni sent a telegram Tuesday to Guy Waldvogel, director general of the Givaudan Co., accusing him of allowing the Icmesa chemical plant at nearby Seveso to operate without adequate safety precautions.

If convicted, Waldvogel could face a prison term of up to 10 years.

Rosinni has also asked the international police organization, Interpol, to begin investigating the case, the officials said.

The Icmesa plant, a subsidiary of Givaudan, was the scene of an industrial accident July 10, in which a safety valve burst causing a chemical reaction porducing deadly poison dioxine.

ANTLER TONIC A HOT SELLER

SEATTLE (AP) — The man who supplies a third of the world market for reindeer antlers says he couldn't live without a potion made from them.

But Jung T. (Jonny) Wang doesn't like to call the concoction an aphrodisiac which is what most people consider it.

"Only partially, in a small way is it true that it's a sexual stimulant," Wang said.

"When you build up your health you also increase your sexual power. It's good for your over-all health."

Each summer for the past 14 years, Wang has gone to Nome, Alaska, for the annual reindeer roundup to buy the antlers. This year he bought about 12,000 pounds of horns.

Wang won't say exactly how much he pays the native Alaskans for the horns, although he acknowledges it's about $5.50 each.

He ships them to San Francisco where they are dehydrated and exported to herbalists in Tokyo, Hong Kong, Taiwan and Korea.

Traditon demands that the herbalist slice the antlers in the presence of the buyer, who takes the slices home and brews the potion there.

Wang, a native Korean, said the potion is popular in Asia, with as many as two-thirds of the people using it. The Russians are also heavy users, "but they're more secretive, you know."

The concoction is considered solely an aphrodisiac by Westerners. But according to the Russian article of Tibetan Medicine, it is a "tonic remedy . . . effective especially in the treatment of podagra (gout), deafness, convulsions accompanied by rigor, blood stagnation, hermorrhoids, bladder stones and spremotorrhea."

Wang says he drinks a cup a day of the brew he makes himself.

"We slice the horns in fresh form, put them into gin or vodka, add herbs such as ginseng root and boil it until the blood comes out.

"I use it very much, all year round. I couldn't live without it."

Although based in San Francisco, Wang said he has no plans to market the potion in the United States.

"I don't need any problems with the Food and Drug Administration," he said.

"I don't want to have to claim anything. And its abilities have never been medically proven."

Prop Falls, What Then?

SPOKANE, Wash — You're flying 3,500 feet above the ground and your one and only propeller falls off. What then?

"I just glided down," says the man who went through it Tuesday.

Luckily for Ronald Chrzanowski of Rialto, Calif., he was over Felts Field when his prop and he went their separate ways. The U.S. Federal Aviation Administration called it a perfect landing.

The prop was found intact on the city's east side. The connecting flanges had sheared away.

BUFFALO, N.Y. — It was apparent to police that the honeymoon was over.

Officers Robert Swanson and Dennis Adams were on routine patrol early Tuesday when they came across a formally attired couple punching and kicking each other in the middle of the street.

The officers said they separated a 32-year-old woman and her 19-year-old husband and the bruised couple returned to their home.

Swanson said the couple were married Monday.

GENOA, Italy — Quirino Del Medico, 23, was ransacking an apartment when the owner returned. He hid in a closet.

The owner noticed the disarray and called police. By the time officers arrived Del Medico was suffering claustrophobia and began thrashing around.

Police opened the cupboard door and arrested him.

TOKYO — A 30-year-old ex-convict tried to get into former premier Kakuei Tanaka's estate today. He told police he wanted to talk Tanaka into committing hara-kiri because of his involvement in the Lockheed scandal.

Police said Ryotaro Taniguchi, who recently completed a 12-year sentence for homicide, climbed Tanaka's outer wall with a stepladder, but police seized him when he tried to scale an inner wall.

Taniguchi was not armed, police said. He was charged Actress Sophia Loren will unwith trespassing.

PRINCE GEORGE — dergo elective surgery later this year causing a postponement of Jocasta, a movie to be shot in central British Columbia, Bob Gray, production manager, said Tuesday.

He said the actress, currently completing a film in North Africa, will undergo minor surgery in the near future. He did not indicate the nature of surgery, other than it was "elective" and not serious.

NEW YORK — William Redfield, an actor who appeared at age nine in the Broadway musical "Swing Your Lady" in 1936, and whose most recent film appearance was in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," died Tuesday of a respiratory ailment complicated by leukemia. He was 49.

Faded Flowers Should Be Cut

Each day in the garden we come across plants which depend on human intervention to enable them to continue the display for which we value their presence. This week it has been several border carnations that have been giving a fine show of color since early June.

Equally pleasant has been the fragrance for which I bought them last year as seedlings but it was scarcely noticeable until this year's prolific bloom.

Left to themselves, these plants would flower for a shorter period, producing a few seeds, and using up their last resources as the seed ripened in early October to drop into the moist cool soil.

Whether germination would take place in spring would be a matter of chance, depending on the many seed eating creatures around and the weather in winter and spring, but it is likely that a few seedlings might result and one or two survive.

However, gardeners have over the centuries developed ways of working with nature by interfering with natural processes and diverting natural energy into accomplishing results we consider desirable from a human viewpoint.

This summer as the carnation flowers faded each one was removed, being careful to leave the developing buds. This resulted in many more blooms for each stem since it was not size that was wanted, but continuation of bloom for garden fragrance.

As a stem finished blooming, it was removed at a joint as low down on the plant as could be easily reached with the fingers.

Because these border carnations are being grown in half-gallon cans for moving about the border where they are wanted during summer, they have received two feedings of liquid alginure — one at the end of June, the second a month later.

Normally in an open border soil they would get only one feeding, in June after the first flowers opened and many buds were seen to be established. Otherwise much growth might result with fewer flowers.

Just now, all the plants have many strong unflowered growths at the base indicating a good foundation for next year's plants. As September begins, a watch will be kept for lengthening stems indicating late bud formation.

In our uncertain climate carnations rarely manage to open blooms of good form and fragrance after the middle of September when nights become cool and the threat of frost is in the night air.

All the lengthening stems will therefore be cut off at a joint as low as possible without taking more of the basal leaves than necessary. Don't damage the tufty bunches of leaves.

The aim is to have bushy, dense, healthy plants to go through winter. This they will do quite well in a freely drained border. The only protection they would need if a real cold spell developed is arching small branches of evergreen to filter frost and biting wind. This protection does not make the roots soft.

Left to themselves, border carnations may be lovely but shortlived; with a bit of helpful interference by humans they are likely to give their beauty of color and fragrance for many years.

JAGUAR AND IMPORT REPAIRS
743-2849 Mill Bay B.C.

Jaguar made history at Le Mans because they were stronger than the rest of the world's best.

And they won with stock parts.

Jaguar sedans are equipped with a race-proven power train but are gentle to drive around town. So why not sample real leather, African walnut trim and a car built to last?

Tough Inflation Fight In Australian Budget

CANBERRA (UPI) — The Australian government introduced a tough budget Tuesday designed to administer some bitter economic medicine to a country still suffering from a bad bout of inflation.

Treasurer Phillip Lynch, presenting his first budget since his government was elected last Dec. 13, bluntly told the house of commons that the government's aim is to bring the inflation rate, currently running at about 13 per cent, down to a single digit level in one year.

However, Lynch asked for an increase in spending on defence, particularly on U.S.-built ships and aircraft.

Lynch said defence spending will reach $2,831 million for the 1976-77 financial year — an increase of 17.6 per cent over the last financial year.

The details of the equipment program, which the government is now completing, will be revealed in about one month in a special white paper. They will include, commentators say, more U.S.-built patrol frigates and Lockheed Orion P3C maritime reconnaissance aircraft.

Pointing to even bigger programs getting under way, such as a project to replace Australia's aging French-built mirage fighters, Lynch said major equipment programs which would involve heavy increases in the years ahead would be announced.

"The present government is determined to restore and maintain an adequate Australian defence capability," Lynch said. "This will require increases in defence expenditute over the years ahead."

Over-all, the budget represents a reaction against the heady social service expenditure of the previous Labor government, which sent the over-all deficit rocketing up to $4.6 billion last year.

Spending cuts initiated and planned will trim some $1.3 billion off this figure, even though no significant increase in direct or indirect taxes were announced.

In addition, Lynch said only a modest rise in money supply of 10 to 12 per cent is planned, as against last year's damped-down 14 per cent.

The result will be that unemployment, which is historically the highest for Australia at around 5.5 per cent, will show little improvement in the coming year.

KAMLOOPS MOPS UP

KAMLOOPS (CP) — City work crews here are sweeping streets and flushing storm sewers as a result of record rainfalls Monday and Tuesday.

The city received 130 calls because of runoffs and flooding since Monday morning, Neil McGregor, city public works director, said Tuesday.

"Things are pretty quiet today, we have received no estimate of damage," he said.

The weather office reported a record rainfall which began at 3 a.m. Monday. By midnight, 48 millimetres of rain had fallen, which was followed by another six millimetres Tuesday morning.

Unions Rattle Bank Doors

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — A small independent union is rattling the doors of one of Canada's largest banks.

The Service, Office and Retail Workers Union of Canada said Tuesday it has applied to the federal Labor Relations Board for certification as bargaining agent for the 20 employees at a downtown branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

"It's a big breakthrough," said union vice-president Jean Rands.

"If certification is granted, it will be the first time in English Canada a bank has been unionized."

But another union, The Canadian Union of Bank Employees, has also applied for accreditation of two bank branches in southern Ontario.

Ms. Rands said her union is now conducting a membership drive at other banks throughout the Vancouver downtown area.

She said a 1975 study of 67,000 women empoyed in the nation's eight largest banks showed that more than 48,000 were making only $585 or less a month.

"There is no reason they should be so badly paid. Banks are certainly making enough in profits."

Canadian banks have traditionally been low-wage industries relying on a large pool of unskilled workers, primarily women. Women make up almost three-quarters of chartered bank employees, but are not represented in senior management and have little representation at any management level.

A recent study for the Canadian Bankers Association and the Advisory Council on the Status of Women showed that bank policies toward women employees have improved in the last few years, but it will be many years before the effect of past discriminatory policies can be erased. In 1975, 37 per cent of male bank employees earned more than $15,000 per year, while only 0.5 per cent of women employees earned this much.

While bankers claim salaries for these employees have been upgraded to be competitive with those paid for similar jobs in other industries, the industries with which comparison is being made are themselves basically non-union.

Low wages and lack of equal opportunity for women are two of the issues responsible for the union attempt, according to a union spokesman.

Bankers are understandably worried about the union organizing attempts. If they are successful, the whole structure of the industry could be changed.

Unions which forced the banks to pay higher wages would hurt profit margins and might force the banks into greater competition among themselves and with other financial institutions.

The movmeent of more women into management which would probably follow successful unionization might help break down the "old boy network" which tends to control the banks and through them, the Canadian economy.

Muggings Soar In Paris Subway

PARIS (AP)—Muggings and other crimes of violence are escalating in the Paris subway, known as the Metro. Meanwhile, a recent gun battle involving security men has left some passengers more jittery than ever.

"It's a jungle and the first responsibility lies with the armed men the government is sending there," a leftist group said after a policeman and a subway guard died in an exchange of bullets near the Eiffel Tower. An autopsy showed the guard had been drinking.

The guard, in plain clothes, was checking to see if two passengers paid their fares. An argument broke out and other passengers fetched two uniformed policemen. When one of the policemen tried to intervene, the guard opened fire, killing him. The policemen's partner then shot and killed the guard.

Subway officials said the guard's job was to protect subway property, not check whether passengers had paid fares. That task belongs to policemen sent into the Metro to counter muggings and other crimes which have escalated by 33 per cent in the last year to more than 1,200.

Police routinely check passengers for identification, sometimes manhandling young men and others they consider obstinate.

"It's a show of French police power," said one young man stopped by police then released. "They do it all the time just to show their muscles. To tell you the truth, I'm more afraid of them than the robbers."

Despite fears of police overkill, the priority problem on Paris' Metros and buses is mugging, and sme victims are arming themselves with blinding chemical sprays, iron bars and wooden clubs.

A bus dispatcher said some of his drivers carry chemical sprays after having been mugged several times.

While the problem is far below the proportions of New York City — which reported 3,949 attacks in its subways last year — it is much greater than London, which estimated 400 violent incidents in 1975; Tokyo, which reported only 10 violent crimes; and Munich, which keeps no figures because it doesn't consider the situation noteworthy.

Reasons given for the increase in muggings are chronic unemployment among French youth, justice regulations which free criminals for good behavior after serving only a small part f their sentences, and automation which has removed about 3,000 mass-transit workers from subway platforms the last four years.

Duncan Woman Killed In Alberta

LEDUC, Alta. (CP) — RCMP today identified Catherine Myrtle Aubin, 20, of Duncan, as the woman killed in a two-vehicle collision Monday morning, near this community, 20 miles south of Edmonton.

The woman, who was moving to Lloydminster, Alta., from B.C., was killed when the pickup truck she was riding in was hit broadside by a tractor trailer unit northbound on Highway 2.

Two other passengers in the vehicle, both of Duncan, remained in University Hospital in Edmonton today.

Lyle Aubin, 20, was in serious condition, while Jinine Imbeau, 12, was reported in critical condition.

Quake Funds Sought

A group of Filipinos and Canadians is campaigning for help from Victoria residents for Monday's earthquake victims in the southern Philippines.

Reports from Mindano Island say the tremor toppled concrete buildings, spawned a 15-foot tidal wave. More than 1,800 people were killed.

Gines Rivera, an architect with the provincial department and a senior member of the Victoria Filipino community, asks that donations be sent to the Victoria and District branch of the Red Cross Society, 1046 Fort Street.

Rivera said the money will be sent to the Red Cross authorities in the Philippines for distribution to the thousands left injured and homeless.

He said Operation Bayanihan (Operation Sharing) will start within days. Letters will be sent to the provincial government, local municipalities, service clubs and businesses this week.

"We hope the provincial government will make a substantial contribution," he said.

HE CAN'T MOVE, BUT WORKS HARD

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — When the people of nearby Pawnee are in trouble, they turn to a man who always lies flat on his back in bed.

The man is Pawnee's fire, police and ambulance dispatcher — Richard Schultz. He handles distress calls 24 hours a day from his bed in his home because he can't get up.

Schultz is paralyzed in his legs and spine and can't even turn his head.

A victim of rheumatoid arthritis, Schultz has been bedridden the last 30 of his 47 years. The ailment dashed his teen-aged hopes of playing major league baseball, leaving him "almost suicidally depressed."

"The worst thing that can happen to a handicapped person is to have nothing to do," Schultz said, "and for five years, I just laid in bed. I was fairly miserable."

Then Schultzhit on the idea of re-typing manuscripts for budding authors. "After they had struggled with something, they didn't want to do it all over again so they paid me to type a clean version. Sometimes I'd fix grammar."

Schultz also tried writing "pulp stories" for confession magazines, the last big market for short fiction. Half a dozen were published.

After 15 years of the work, Schultz got bored. Then he began handling ambulance calls to Pawnee funeral homes.

"They were looking for someone who could do it 24 hours a day, every day, and I was a logical choice," Schultz said.

Two years later, the Pawnee volunteer fire department asked Schultz to take their calls. Recently the police joined in and finally, he was asked to take city ambulance calls as well.

"Even though these alarms come in at all hours, I still get my sleep," Schultz said. "Usually at night I can put five or six hours together and then I nap during the day.

"After a while I learn to wake up, handle a call, then go right back to sleep," he said. "Sometimes I have to look at the log to see what I did."

Schultz said the work is gratifying and Pawnee's 2,500 residents feel the same way. They gave him the town's first citizen award last month.

40% OF PROFESSIONALS FLUNK FRENCH TESTS

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 40 per cent of the 172 Quebec professionals who took French-language competency tests in July have failed, an official of the French Language Board said Monday.

Roland Piquette said the failure rate would probably be similar in tests taken this month.

Under regulations of the province's Official Language Act, all candidates for admission to Quebec's 38 professional corporations are required to pass board tests.

Piquette said 49 of 105 nurses who took the tests in July failed, as did 10 of 34 doctors examined by the board.

In today's deal, which came up in a team-of-four match, a slight slip by the defenders proved costly, and enabled South to fulfill his game contract.

SOUTH

◇ Q 5
♣ 10 2

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
4 ♣	Dbl.	5 ♣	Pass
Pass	Dbl.	Pass	5 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣.

North's double of West's pre-emptive four-club opening bid was for "take-out." His second double was for penalties, but South decided that North had good support for South's spades; and so he bid five spades.

The club king opening lead was ruffed in dummy, after which the two top trumps were cashed in the hope of catching the queen. As is evident, the hope failed to materialize.

Next came a low heart off the board and East made a fatal error: he won the trick with his ace. No matter what East now returned, South would have a fulfilled contract, for he would be able to discard his losing diamond on dummy's fifth heart. In the actual play, East returned a diamond, on which South put up the queen, which won the trick. Declarer's only loser from here in was a trick to West's queen of trumps.

Had East played a low heart (instead of the ace) on the heart lead off dummy, West would have captured the trick by trumping. West would then have led a diamond, and East could not have been prevented from winning a trick with the diamond king. In essence, the defenders had two heart stoppers, the master trump and the heart ace, but the difference between who won the first trick and who won the second meant the margin between victory and defeat.

When the deal was replayed, the bidding proceeded identically to that at the first table, except that South passed North's second double. Against the five-club contract North opened the king of spades, and at trick two led a heart. Dummy's ace won the trick, West discarding the four of diamonds.

It now became a routine matter for declarer to ruff out his two remaining spades. Thus the contract was fulfilled, declarer's only losers being a spade and a diamond.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Thursday, August 19

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You might be better off close to home or base of operations. Travel plans subject to change, perhaps deceptive descriptions. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio persons could be in picture. You again insight to what a loved one wants, needs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money situation is more promising than it might appear on surface. One who says otherwise has ulterior motive. Refuse to back down — without adequate, confirming information. Legal opposition could be a "bluff."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cycle is such that you produce, get results, make an impact. Capricorn, Cancer persons could figure prominently. Be aware of basic rules and regulations. Older person lends benefit of experience. Your efforts get more attention than in recent past.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Finish rather than start — close transaction. Relationship is tested. Behind scenes meeting could bring about desired results. Avoid actions based on impulse. Give logic "equal time." Aries, Libra figure prominently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Get fresh viewpoint. Quarrel with one close to you could help clear air — don't make too much of it. Reunion or "making up" will be delightful! Another Leo — and an Aquarian — could be part of scenario. A wish is fulfilled, although it takes a circuitous route.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Bothersome details, red tape — you overcome and make mark at elevated position. meaningful compliment received from professional superior. You finish negotiations, gain more security, find where you stand and gain valid, exciting glimpse of potential.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Highlight humor, versatility — you get news which could involve travel, publishing. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius may be part of montage. Open lines of communication. Be sure you are being accurately depicted, quoted. Philosophical insights are gained.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Money, possessions — these areas are spotlighted. Count your change — be specific about details. Check medical insurance, protect yourself in care of emergencies. take nothing for granted. Make inquiries. You're entitled to answers. Know it and act accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Obtain valid hint from Scorpio message. Avoid tendency to confuse illusion with actuality. Changes occur in relationships. Marital status is emphasized. Legal matters are called to your attention. Gemini figures prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Low key approach is best — avoid forcing issues. Steer clear of direct confrontations. Tact, discretion are essentials. Family member requires "careful handling." The more diplomatic you are, the better for now. Taurus, Libra could figure prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Look beyond surface indications. Heed "inner voice." Follow through on feelings or hunch. Accent on affairs of heart, emotional responses. If circumstances are right, you might fall madly in love!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Nothing occurs halfway — it will be all or nothing. If you're expecting fun-and-games, re-examine motives, costs. Time factor is more significant than usual. If single, you are "pressured" with regard to marriage. Married or single, questions do arise concerning property.

IF AUGUST 19th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are original, temperamental, creative, independent. If single, this could be a marriage year. Most significant months of 1976 for you: March, September and December. Married or single, you travel and make changes, express yourself and gain wider recognition. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life.

FUN WITH FIGURES

"You said you've got about 70 kids in your club," declared Ken. "How many boys?"

Cathie smiled. "I thought I told you that too," she replied. "If a fifth of the girls were boys and one quarter of the boys girls, and if a third of the girls we would then have were boys there'd be seven more boys than girls."

You figure it out.

6,000 Travel On Concorde

LONDON (CP) — Six thousand persons had flown on British Airways' supersonic Concorde airliner between its introduction to regular service in January and the end of July, the airline says in a news release.

British Airways says that up to July 26, just over 3,500 had travelled on Concorde flights between London and Bahrain.

Solar Energy Not a Priority Say Federal Gov't Scientists

WINNIPEG (CP) — Solar energy is not yet a high priority with the federal government, scientists from the National Research Council said Monday.

J. R. Sasaki of Ottawa said the federal government this year has allotted about $700,000 for solar activities, the same amount as last year.

Sasaki said Canada so far has about 20 buildings heated by solar energy, using a total of about 8,000 square feet of flat plate solar collectors.

"We expect that to double in the next few years," he said, and drew a laugh from his mostly-American audience at a conference on solar energy.

The conference, which has drawn about 2,000 delegates, has been told that U.S. investment in developing solar and other renewable resources has grown rapidly and now is in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Sasaki said the council is financing a number of demonstration projects, one of which is the solar collectors now being installed on the roof of the Manitoba legislature.

He said some provincial governments have begun looking into solar heating, and Ontario is building a 30-unit senior citizens' home to be heated by solar power.

In the private sector, there are 12 solar-heated homes in various stages of construction across Canada, he said.

Phil Cockshutt, a council project co-ordinator, said the federal government felt in 1973 that solar energy would not be needed for another two or three generations.

He said the Arab oil embargo in the same year got solar research underway. But on a federal list of energy priorities, solar and other renewable energy sources rank fifth out of five.

Higher priority is given to energy conservation in general, maintaining adequate oil and gas supplies, using coal as an alternative to oil and gas, and nuclear power.

Officials of the United States Energy Research and Development Association told the conference a major problem with solar energy is cost. With variations in climate and building types, there is no single solution.

Ron Scott said early commercialization of solar energy products is needed if they are to work. But Fred Morse said manufacturers are reluctant to modify their components to handle solar energy without a visible market.

Scott, the association's assistant director of solar heating and cooling, said better energy conservation methods, such as improved home insulation, are needed before the switch to solar energy can be made.

Morse said researchers are in the "stone and water stage of energy research," referring to water tank and rock bed storage, the only two methods of storing solar energy that are well understood at present.

Another association official, Paul Maycock, said he expects solar energy will become a billion-dollar industry before the end of the century. He said solar energy makes sense for the economy, the environment," and for our grandchildren."

GARRISON DAM HALT URGED

OTTAWA (FP) — Two Tory MPs from Manitoba have called for a halt to work on the controversial Garrison diversion project in North Dakota until the International Joint Commission has completed its investigation into the project's impact on Manitoba waters.

Dan McKennzie (PC-Winnipeg South Centre) joined groups such as the Manitoba Environment Council in calling for a moratorium on the project pending completion of the IJC report.

However, Jack Murta (PC-Lisgar) called on the prime minister to intervene.

Fishermen to Get More During Off Season

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Changes in unemployment insurance benefits which could put an extra $8 million a year in the pockets of 20,000 Canadian fishermen were announced here Tuesday by Federal Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc.

LeBlanc said benefits for fishermen who qualify will start earlier and be available to most fishermen for longer than under the previous regulations.

The new plan, to come into effect this fall, will allow fishermen to start drawing unemployment insurance benefits Nov. 1 rather than Dec. 1 as in past years. The final week of eligibility would remain the same, the week of May 15.

Fishermen who have worked at least eight weeks now will be able to draw benefits for the full period, he said.

In the past, fishermen were allowed five weeks' benefits for each six weeks of work. In theory that allowed payments for 24 weeks but in practice few fishermen received more than 12 weeks benefits, he said. Payments usually ran out in mid-winter.

Advancing the date of the sart of payments will help fishermen in Newfoundland and the Gulf of St. Lawrence, he said.

The new program is to be reviewed in three years.

Labor Talks More Difficult

OTTAWA (CP) — The Anti-Inflation Board has become "the invisible fourth party" in the collective bargaining process, Jean-Luc Pepin, chairman of the Anti-Inflation Board, said Tuesday.

PEPIN

In a speech to the Association of Labor Mediation Agencies, Pepin acknowledged that the federal controls program has made the job of conciliators — the professional third parties in collective bargaining — more difficult.

He said with the wage controls covering approximately half the country's 10 million workers, there is "no doubt the compensation guidelines have affected the framework of collective bargaining."

Pepin said one positive side effect of the anti-inflation program is a freer flow of information between labor and management representatives.

"It is . . . becoming increasingly difficult for employers to avoid providing the union and other employee representatives with the detailed information which they are required to submit to the Anti-Inflation Board," Pepin said.

Gray Slams AIB Profit Rollback

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal MP Herb Gray accused the Anti-Inflation Board Tuesday of being insensitive to consumers and called on its chairman to make public the names of companies that make excess profits and the products involved.

Gray, member for Windsor West and former consumer affairs minister, made public a copy of a letter he had sent to Anti-inflation Board chairman Jean-Luc Pepin.

In it, he complained about a board-approved plan for food giant General Foods Ltd. of Toronto to dispose of $1.4 million of excess revenue without lowering prices to consumers. Instead, prices for five unidentified product lines are to be lowered for supermarket chains and wholesalers as a means of refunding the excess revenue.

Gray claimed the compliance plan filed by General Foods should be changed to compel the company to identify the products on which prices are to be lowered and to ensure that wholesalers and supermarket chains pass on the reductions.

He was also critical of General Foods' claim that it could not reveal the products' identity for competitive reasons.

"The company's unwillingness to voluntarily disclose or willingly identify the products in question smacks of anti-competitive reasons rather than competitive ones," Gray said.

The names of all these companies and the products on which prices are being lowered should be made public because this would be a means of forcing retailers to pass on the reductions, Mr. Gray told Mr. Pepin.

'GOV'T ROBBING WAGES'—UNION

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — "The government is robbing the employees of their negotiated wages," says a union official representing 111 Newfoundland auto mechanics whose contract pay increases were cut Monday by Donald Tansley, administrator of the Anti-Inflation Board.

Tansley also ordered the two companies involved and the employees to pay fines totalling $50,000 for overpayment.

Len Dooley, president of Local 855 of the Transport and Allied Workers Union, said the union and the companies will coperate in appealing the reduction.

The union reached agreements in January with Hickman Motors Ltd. and City Motors Ltd. for wage increases ranging between 19.6 and 25.5 per cent.

The increases would have brought wages to $6.45 an hour but the Anti-Inflation Board asked that the rate be rolled back to $6.15.

The union appealed the rollback and was awaiting a reply when Tansley's order arrived Monday advising the union and the companies that wage increases should be cut immediately to eight per cent.

Western Oil Flow Reduced

OTTAWA (FP)—Western Canadian oil producers will have to leave 494,000 barrels per day of production in the ground during September, according to the National Evergy Board's latest domestic producibility calculations.

The September "shut in" is 9.3 per cent higher than the August figure of 452,000 barrels a day.

It is largely the result of a 4 per cent drop in total domestic demand for western Canadian oil predicted by the NEB.

While total producibility is expected to remain about the same in September compared to August—at 1,964,000 barrels a day compared to 1,965,000 barrels a day iin August—domestic demand is predicted to fall to 1,020,000 barrels a day in September, compared to 1,063,000 barrels a day in August.

QUE. TORIES ASK GAMES AID

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party called on the federal government Tuesday to absorb part of the cost of staging tthe Montreal Olympics.

The Quebec Conservatives said in a statement that Canada, as a whole, has benefitted from the Games.

They said inflation—a factor in the $1.4 billion cost of the Games — was a federal responsibility.

The federal government has contributed to the cost of staging the Games through sales of commemorative Olympic stamps and coins.

Prime Minister Trudeau has repeatedly rejected requests by Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa for a $200-million federal contribution to help pay for the Olyympics.

The Quebec Conservatives also put in a word for the province's milk producers, calling on Ottawa to remove an $8.60 penalty per 100 lbs. of overproduced milk.

The statement said removal of this and other penalties would save many Quebec milk producers from bankruptcy.

Breakaway Air Controllers Called Victims of Pressure

MONTREAL (CP) — While Quebec members of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association were deciding whether to form a breakaway union Tuesday, the association's president was discussing the situation with regional directors.

Jim Livingston said the directors would discuss comments made Monday by Quebec director Paul Bibeau, who called for a separate union of French-language controllers.

Livingston said he believes a Quebec union is actively organizing the controllers' disaffiliation move.

"I can only assume he (Bibeau) has bowed to some pressure from the hard-core group in Quebec and decided to join in the public relations exercise, which is what this is," said Livingston.

He said he was confident the controllers will decide that a national union is better than a separate group.

Bibeau met with French controllers Monday night to discuss the formation of a breakaway union for the province's 300 French-language controllers.

Brown To Stay Around

Communications consultant Dave Brown — the man studying government information services — will likely be around for a while in government employ.

Brown's study, commissioned by the Social Credit government, will probably be in the hands of the provincial cabinet by the end of the month.

But even after the $22,000 report is turned over indications are that Brown won't be leaving the government.

Although he will have no official role after the study is completed, Brown indicates he will "likely" be involved in the implementation of his recommendations if they are accepted.

"I certainly hope to have the chance to be involved in synthesizing the ideas," Brown said Tuesday.

Brown, a former Socred advertising consultant has been working on the report since late January at a salary of $150 a day.

He was originally appointed Jan. 20 by cabinet order for 90 days, but his term has been extended several times since then.

The latest extension — to Aug. 31 — should be the last, he said.

Brown's study includes public relation, advertising, government publications and all press services provided by the government departments, corporations and agencies.

Brown said he thinks Premier Bill Bennett was optimistic in thinking the study could be finished in 90 days. A similar report for the Manitoba government took a year to complete.

Brown said he has also been getting involved in other tasks, although they are not officially part of his job. The other tasks include the occasional writing or rewriting of press releases.

"I've pretty well got it all together now," said Brown.

Ford Sweeps Ahead

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Gerald Ford has apparently clinched today's nomination by winning a crucial vote at a late-sitting, often unruly session of the Republican party convention here Tuesday.

His supporters put down, by 11 votes — 1,180 to 1,069 — the attempt by Ronald Reagan to force Ford to name his vice-presidential choice before the nomination is decided tonight.

It was a symbolic test of strength between the candidates, each of whom had predicted he would win the nomination on the first ballot.

The Republicans, divided by strongly-felt emotions, had the rowdiest night since their 1964 convention, when similar emotions prevailed about the nomination of conservative Barry Goldwater.

Proceedings came to a standstill several times because of demonstrations and the convention broke up following a hot-tempered scuffle involving Ford and Reagan supporters.

There was another round in the clash between the candidates' wives. There were boos and jeers on both sides during debate on the rule, known as 16C, which would have required Ford to announce his vice-presidential choice by 9 o'clock this morning.

The most likely choice, now to be made by Ford on Thursday, assuming he wins the nomination as expected, is Senator Howard Baker of Tennessee.

But there may be an attempt to get Reagan on the ticket, something that up to now he has said there was "no way" of persuading him to do.

Ford's rule-change victory crushed the Reagan forces' main defence against what now seems a certain decision by the convention to send the 62-year-old president against Democrat Jimmy Carter in the November presidential election.

The procedural vote exceeded the strength claimed by the Ford delegate-counters and shattered the claim by Reagan manager John Sears that the former California governor had 40 to 50 secret supporters hidden in the convention ranks.

SIX PROJECTS EXCLUDED

Colwood Freeze Backed by Gov't

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The provincial government and Capital Region Board have drafted a compromise plan to freeze temporarily, land development over most of 1,500 acres in Colwood and Langford.

Board chairman Jim Campbell said today the proposal exempts about six housing schemes already started but covers the majority of land the board is concerned about.

The area involved is bounded approximately by Happy Valley and Sooke Roads, Wishart, Applegate, Metchosin Roads and the southern boundary of the Colwood-Langford electoral areas, a line roughly between Briarwood Lane and Winter Road.

The 850-acre Colwood Development Project, a long-term housing project for up to 22,000 people unveiled by Dunhill Development Corporation earlier this year, lies at the centre of the area the regional board wants temporarily frozen.

The compromise proposal is the third attempt by the region to keep the development lid on the land until its own regulations can ensure co-ordinated building, with acceptable greenbelt and sewage disposal programs for the whole area. Two previous attempts were blocked by the provincial goverment.

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis told the board earlier this year that an all-encompassing freeze was impossible because some subdivision schemes had reached a "substantial commencement" stage and could not be stopped by what in effect would be retroactive legislation.

If the revamped bylaw which goes before the regional board later today is approved, it would establish the 1,500-acre block as a "development area," with the exception of the half-dozen subdivisions under way.

That designation would allow the region to negotiate land-use contracts with any developers who met its terms. The bylaw would remain in force only until the end of next March.

This time the bylaw is assured approval by the provincial government, possibly as soon as Thursday's cabinet meeting.

VOLCANO SPEWS GAS

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — The Soufriere volcano continued to pour out clouds of deadly sulphur gas and ash today, and the scientists observing it said they still believe a catastrophic eruption is coming. But they were unable to predict when it will happen.

The outpouring of gas, steam and ash covered the top of the volcano and prevented the scientists flying over the crater.

N. Koreans Axe Down U.S. Soldiers

SEOUL (AP) — About 30 North Korean guards armed with axes and metal pikes killed two United States Army officers and wounded four American enlisted men and five South Koreans during a clash in the demilitarized zone today, the United Nations Command announced.

Military sources said three North Koreans also were believed killed, but there was no confirmation of that.

The UN Command said the two American officers were brutally murdered in an unprovoked assault.

North Korea, however, said its guards acted in self defence after "U.S. aggression troops" armed with lethal weapons beat them.

The Pentagon in Washington said the identities of the slain men would be released after their families were notified.

A pike, generally used in prebayonet times, is a long wooden shaft with a metal head, sometimes with a pick on the side.

The UN Command gave this account of the attack:

The two U.S. officers, a South Korean officer and several other U.S. soldiers were escorting five Korean service corps workers who were trimming trees in Panmunjom, the truce village in the centre of the buffer zone between North and South Korea.

Two North Korean officers and several North Korean guards came to the area in mid-morning as the South Koreans were trimming branches from a tree in the joint security area. The tree was about 35 to 40 yards from a UN Command checkpoint at the south side of the Bridge of No Return, over which prisoner exchanges took place after the Korean armistice.

After some discussion during which one of the North Korean officers expressed objection to the tree trimming, the North Koreans demanded that the South Koreans stop the work.

Shortly after, a North Korean vehicle brought additional guards, and one of the North Korean officers was heard to tell them to kill the Americans and South Koreans. The attack followed.

It was the second violent incident in the demilitarized zone this month. On Aug. 5, the UN Command reported a six-minute exchange of fire between North and South Korean troops, but no casualties or damage was reported.

PASSENGER TURNS STRIPPER

LONDON (Reuter) — A British Airways pilot reduced the temperature aboard his jumbo jet today in an unsuccessful attempt to make a male passenger put his clothes back on.

The man, from the Gilbert and Ellice Islands in the Pacific, did not respond and travelled all the way from Frankfurt to London sitting naked.

The man, aged about 30 and travelling from Hong Kong, removed his clothes shortly after takeoff from Frankfurt. A steward tried to cover him with a blanket, but he threw it aside.

Police in London took the man away in handcuffs shortly after the airliner landed there.

"It was better than the in-flight movie," one passenger said.

Premiers Meet

EDMONTON (CP) — The 10 provincial premiers were greeted by nearly 100 pickets today as they entered Government House to open the 17th annual premiers' conference.

Signs reading "Edmonton workers against wage controls," and "make the rich pay" were waived at the premiers, who were also handed a statement from the Edmonton general strike committee attacking the program.

Inside Government House, more than 60 delegates, including the 10 premiers, gathered to hear Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed welcome them.

Among the issues to be discussed during the conference is that of bringing the British North American Act to Canada from the Parliament in Westminster.

It is expected Canada's constitution wil play a more important role at the conference than official statements in advance have indicated.

Death Toll Tops 5,300 In Philippines' Quake

Times News Services

Fresh earthquakes shook Brisbane, Australia and Japan south of Tokyo today as the official death toll from Tuesday's earthquakes and tidal waves in the Philippines soared to more than 5,300.

No serious injuries or major damage was reported from either the Australian or Japanese earth tremors although two houses were destroyed and another 238 damaged on the Izu peninsula, 75 miles southwest of Tokyo. The seven-second Australian quake caused some cracks in house walls.

In Manila, the national disaster co-ordinating centre said 3,103 deaths have been confirmed and that there are at least 2,282 missing, 688 injured and 28,716 homeless following Tuesday's catastrophes.

The casualties were concentrated in the towns and cities along Mindanao island's 500 miles of coastline around the Moro Gulf, on the northern side of the Celebes Sea.

The Philippine air force was flying tons of medicine, food and other supplies to Cotabato, on the eastern shore of the gulf, and Zamboanga, across the gulf at the tip of the Zamboanga peninsula. They were among the hardest-hit cities.

Navy ships stationed in Zamboanga were transporting relief goods to other stricken areas along the coast.

Casualties were reported in the provinces of North and South Zamboanga, Basilan, North and South Lanao, Cotabato and South Lanao, Cotabato and Misamis Oriental, and the cities of Zamboanga, Basilan, Cagayan de Oro and Cotabato.

Other provinces in the central Philippines and on southern Luzon Island also felt the tremors, but there were no reports of casualties in those areas.

MONTREAL (CP) — Diver Sergei Nemtsanov, the Olympic Games defector who decided after three weeks in Canada to return to his Soviet homeland, will fly back to Moscow later this week, the Soviet consulate said today.

Baths Discouraged

QUIBERON, France (AP) — The three-month-old European drought has led to such a severe water shortage in this Britanny fishing and vacation area that authorities urged inhabitants today to refrain from baths, showers and all other non-essential uses of fresh water.

New Construction Tie-Up?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A further disruption in the B.C. construction industry appears imminent as Local 170 of the Plumbers, Pipefitters and Steamfitters Union prepare to walk off the job.

Chuck McVeigh, president of Construction Labor Relations Associaiton (CLRA) said he had been advised by Stu Cleavely of the plumbers union that the local's 250 members might withdraw their services from the jobs of 15 of CLRA's contractors at 4 p.m, Thursday.

Cleavely said the members met last week and voted to reject the Kinnaird report as amended by CLRA, which represents 850 B.C. contractors.

He said CLRA has not asked for a meeting and unless something is settled, there will be a plumbers' strike Thursday.

McVeigh said the plumbers have been in a legal position to strike for the last two and a half months and that one of the contentious issues in the dispute is downtown parking privileges for plumbers.

Cement masons said last week they were upset over a proposed wage discrepency between their union and the iron workers and would walk off the job sometime this week.

CLRA and the cement masons met Monday, however, and signed a memorandum of agreement which the union is to vote on tonight.

3,000 Residents Flee Lethal Spill

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — About 3,000 Virginia residents today were ordered to leave the shores of Chesapeake Bay after a barge carrying 1,000 tons of chemicals capsized just offshore.

The chemicals were sulphuric acid, which can produce a poisonous gas when mixed with water, and Oleun, an oily, irritating chemical used to make nylon fibers.

An emergency was declared and persons approaching the scene were advised to wear protective clothing and breathing apparatus. Marine traffic was warned to stay clear of the area.

The U.S. Coast Guard said the barge appeared to be leaking. A spokesman said the acid could corrode ships and boats moving in the area and "it is lethal" to marine life.

The spokesman said the 125-foot barge, owned by the Allied Chemical Co. of Hopewell, Va., was under tow by a tug when it capsized.

Allied Chemical also manufactured the pesticide kepone and has been charged in connection with the dumping of the chemical into the James River, which empties into the bay.

The coast guard said about 80 per cent of the barge's cargo was acid and 20 per cent was Oleun, which produces a sharp choking odor. Mixed with water, it produces heat and an irritating mist.

The Coast Guard dispatched two vessels to the area to monitor the spillage.

Ottawa's Bilingual Program Lambasted by Report

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A highly critical report on federal public service language training — which costs about $310 million a year — says that less than 10 per cent of graduates have achieved the threshold of bilingualism by the end of their courses.

The report, prepared under the direction of Dr. Gilles Bibeau, of the University of Montreal, adds that with only rare exceptions do graduates have the background needed to continue by themselves to perfect their second language skills.

It recommends that levels of competence below the bilingualism threshold be eliminated.

As soon as the harshly critical report was released Tuesday, Treasury Board President Jean Chretien rejected its major criticism.

He said he could accept neither the assessment of failure, nor several key recommendations.

But he admitted the government shares some of the concerns expressed by Dr. Bibeau and his colleagues. In fact, it has already undertaken an active review of government programs in bilingualism.

The report says the norms now required and, to a large extent, those achieved since the beginning of intensive continuous courses in 1973, do not in any way constitute a means of bilingualizing the public service.

"Rather, they allow the creation of lists of public servants with the label of 'bilingual' a label which has only the most minimal relationship with the possibility of communicating in the second language," it adds.

While 53,584 positions have been identified as bilingual, there are only 40,568 full time employees in bilingual positions, the report says.

Some 46 per cent of the incumbents of bilingual positions have been tested by the Public Service Commission and are certified as bilingual. Another seven per cent have stated they are bilingual but without having been tested.

This would indicate that approximately 53 per cent of the incumbents of bilingual positions are now bilingual, leaving some 19,000 incumbents who will require language traingi.

The report declares that neither the identification of bilingual positions nor the identification operation itself corresponds to real needs in government departments and agencies.

The identification of bilingual positions should be completely redone, this time not starting from some vague desire to provide service, but rather basing it on the true needs of the population.

The report adds that French language units within the public service are far from having achieved the effect hoped for.

The ineffectiveness of French language units, usually resulting from a numbers problem, provides little opportunity for language school graduates to continue using their second language.

The report's harshest criticism, however is directed at the level of language capability which qualifies a public servant for a "bilingual" label.

The report indicates that more than 30 per cent of Anglophone language students

Here's Battery with Perfomance

By The Associated Press

If it weren't for Mark Fidrych, Bruce Kimm might not even be playing in the major leagues.

If it weren't for Kimm, Fidrych might not have won his 14th American League baseball game for Detroit Tigers on Tuesday night.

Kimm, the ninth hitter in Detroit's batting order, hit Frank Tanana's first pitch of the eighth inning into the upper deck in left field to give Fidrych a 3-2 win over California Angels.

The homer was the first in the major leagues for Kimm, who got his chance with the Tigers early this season when other catchers were hurt but stuck around largely because he and Fidrych worked so well together.

The game drew 51,822 fans, the largest crowd of the year at Tiger Stadium. In his last 10 starts, home and away, Fidrych has drawn 476,489 spectators—an average of 43,317.

In Tuesday's other American League games, Kansas City Royals edged Cleveland Indians 4-3 on George Brett's steal of home in the 10th inning, Oakland A's nipped Milwaukee Brewers 5-4, New York Yankees shaded Texas Rangers 2-1, Baltimore Orioles trounced Minnesota Twins 10-3 and Boston Red Sox split a doubleheader with Chicago White Sox, losing the opener 2-1 and winning the nightcap 11-7.

In National League games, Atlanta Braves shaded Cincinnati Reds 3-2, Philadelphia Phillies whipped Montreal Expos 11-3, Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed New York Mets 4-3, St. Louis Cardinals routed San Diego Padres 9-4, Houston Astros turned back Chicago Cubs 8-1 and San Francisco Giants edged Pittsburgh Pirates 7-6.

Fidrych fell behind 2-0 as Ron Jackson homered for California in the fifth, but the Tigers tied it in the sixth on a walk to Kimm, Ron LeFlore's triple and Alex Johnson's sacrifice fly.

Fidrych wound up with his 16th complete game in 19 starts and improved his record to 14-4. Tanana completed his 19th game in 25 starts but his record fell to 14-9.

Brett stole home with two out in the bottom of the 10th. He singled with one out, stole second and continued to third on a wild throw by catcher Rick Cerone.

With Dave Nelson at bat, Brett broke for the plate and was two-thirds of the way home before reliever Dave LaRoche noticed him and he slid safely under the pitch.

It was the fourth successive victory for the Royals and enabled them to remain eight games ahead of second-place Oakland in the West.

With the A's trailing 4-3, Phil Garner walked with one out in the seventh, stole second and scored on Bill North's single. North took second on the throw to the plate and came home with the winning run on a single by Bert Campaneris.

New York's Graig Nettles hit his 19th home run of the season on rookie Tommy Boggs' first pitch in the bottom of the ninth inning to break a 1-1 tie.

Lee May drove in five runs with a homer, triple and single as Baltimore won its fourth in a row.

Boston's Bob Montgomery drove in five runs with a three-run homer and a two-run double in the nightcap while Rick Burleson had seven hits in 10 at bats during the twin bill. However, Chicago won the opener as Pat Kelly singled home one run and then doubled in the ninth and scored on a single by Bill Stein.

Hapless Alouettes Shake Up Roster

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes, winless in their last four Canadian Football League games, made a series of roster changes Tuesday in a bid to improve the club.

Defensive end Mike Fanucci, an American, was traded to Calgary Stampeders for future considerations.

Fullback Steve Ferrughelli, who joined Montreal in 1974 from the National Football League, was sent to Edmonton Eskimos in exchange for John Beaton, a Canadian defensive halfback.

Offensive tackle Pierre Gabinas, on the injury reserve list with a groin injury, was added to the roster and linebacker Brad Cousino, who played college football at Miami of Ohio, was brought in for a five-day trial.

Also expected to come in on a five-day trial is linebacker Steve Booras, who played eight games for the Alouettes in 1970 and was in Toronto Argonuts training camp this year.

Montreal coach Marv Levy denied Tuesday's player shuffings was designed to "shake up the troops."

"I wouldn't call it a shakeup. It's not that kind of a move. We'll announce things when they happen."

Levy also said the moves should not be interpreted as a knock against any of the departing players.

"I'm not faulting anyone. I'm just trying to strengthen the team. I'm not thinking in terms of fault."

The Alouettes currently have 19 Canadians and 13 Americans on their roster.

Tennis Favorites Advance Easily

SPOKANE (AP) — The top three contenders for the Western Division American Express Card Challengers tennis title have moved into the second round on the tour's final stop without swinging a racquet.

Matt Mitchell of Stanford University and Dick Bohrnsted of Redlands, Calif., drew byes for Tuesday's first round play.

Bohrnsted has 40 points gleaned in five previous tourneys. Mitchell has 38.

Peter Pearson of San Francisco, with 34 points, won over Norman Werner of Dearborn Heights, Mich., by default.

Other seeded players advancing by victory or default were Paul McNamee of Australia, Butch Tomlinson of Encino, Calif. and Dave Sherbeck and Tony Graham of Los Angeles.

The two point leaders after the tournament will be admitted directly into the draw at the U.S. Open in Forest Hills, N.Y.

Tiler to Coach Portland Team

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Brian Tiler has been named as head coach of the Portland Timbers of the North American Soccer League.

Tiler, currently assistant coach, will succeed Vic Crowe, who earlier announced plans to retire at the end of this season. Ray Martin will take over as assistant coach for the 1977 season.

Clippers Move

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Clippers, members of the American Hockey League since 1962, have announced that the club will join the Southern Hockey League for the coming season. Operating independently last season, the Clippers lost about $250,000 and finished last in the standings.

Dayliner on the move . . . a ghost train now

There's no chance of claustrophobia aboard the Dayliner these days

Aboard the 70-Seat Dayliner

You Ride Almost Alone With Memories of the Past

—Max Low photos

French Creek Bridge . . . unsafe and deserted

Strange the magic attraction trains have always held for small boys and girls.

I remember as a youngster in New Zealand being captivated by the old-fashioned, smoke-belching monsters that rattled through the countryside, pointing their arrow-shaped cow-catchers ahead of them. And I remember, often, the excitement of running out of steam on a steep stretch of track; of slipping back a little until stopped by screeching brakes; and of waiting while they sent to the nearest station for an extra engine to help push us over the hill. Marvellous!

Last Friday I took a trip on a train again. And it was a weird sensation. Not only was I returning to the train-riding days of my boyhood, but I was also stepping back in time to those years when the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway ran a bustling train, alive and vibrant and packed with passengers.

In your mind, you can see them — the passengers, in their long clothes and big hats. But the passengers are no more. When you board the train in Esquimalt, it's like boarding a ghost train. You sit in an almost empty carriage for the three-hour trip to Parksville, accompanied only by memories of days gone by.

There was only a little old lady in a black hat sitting alone in the 70-seat diesel rail car when I boarded the Dayliner at Shawnigan Lake.

But I kept awake by chatting with a couple of old timers, conductor Ed Lee of Duncan (he has been with CP Rail for 37 years) and engineman Don MacLachlin of Victoria (35 years on Island trains).

And I learned a little more about the sad railway line no one wants to run.

Construction began on the railway from Esquimalt in 1884 and the original stretch to Nanaimo was completed in 1886. In 1905, CP Rail acquired the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway and took over operation of the line in 1912.

Yet, rather strangely, the name has never been changed. The latest schedule still lists the line as being run by the E and N. Perhaps CPR has never been too proud of its little up-Island line.

In 1969, the CPR applied to the Canadian Transport Commission's Railway Transport Committee for permission to discontinue its passenger service between Victoria and Courtenay which it had operated since 1914. That application was denied and CP Rail was ordered to "maintain acceptable standards in the service."

But in June last year, the company declared French Creek Bridge, just north of Parksville and a second bridge at Tsable River unsafe and closed the Parksville-Courtenay section of the line from July 1.

CP Rail admitted to the CTC that it was not able to apply for abandonment of the northern 44-mile section of the line because of a marginal profit shown for that portion. But it stopped running trains and asked that it not be forced to replace the bridges. It also applied again for permission to end all E and N passenger service over the entire line from Victoria to Courtenay.

There has been no formal ruling yet on that second request but CP Rail was told following CTC hearings that it must reconstruct the bridges (something the company estimates will cost it $2.2 million) and to do all that is necessary to reinstate rail service between Parksville and Courtenay.

At the hearings, CP Rail had its knuckles rapped for allowing the bridges to deteriorate. And, in a 41-page decision, the CTC accused the company of illegal conduct in the closing of the northern section of the line and warned that any unnecessary delay in resuming service will bring changes.

CP Rail vice-president Leslie Smith says the company is going to obey the order. But he also says the company is studying ways of appealing the ruling. He warns that freight rates may have to be increased 40 per cent to pay for the bridges.

Meanwhile, the ghost train continues its shorter journey and CP Rail doesn't go out of its way to attract passengers.

It's a sad state because for a railway buff it's a pleasant journey.

You chug along at a comfortable 45 miles and hour around the winding track that takes you hundreds of feet above the road over two high trestles near Goldstream, rumbling through a tunnel in the Malahat, and cruising through the kind of forest scenery you don't always see from the highway.

And yet you would need to be a railway buff to bother with it for the ticket prices are all the discouragement you'd need. There's only one Dayliner trip up and down daily (leaving Esquimalt at 8:15 a.m., reaching Parksville at 11:20, and then returning between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m.) And it costs $10.05 for a one-way ticket.

In contrast, Vancouver Island Coach Lines offer six trips daily to and from Parksville and for an adult one way it's only $5.20.

Though the Dayliner will stop almost anywhere — at the tiniest of stations and even at some lonely spots where the line crosses a road — on my trip there aren't many people flagging it down.

A boy rides from Cobble Hill to Duncan; a woman and her small daughter take the short hop from Ladysmith to Nanaimo.

But, when we finally slide into the quiet station in Parksville, there are only Don at the controls, Ed with very little to conduct, and me . . . and the little old lady in the black hat.

City Faces Suit Over Vote Cards

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The Fairfield Community Association will take Victoria city to court over clerk Morran Walle's refusal to issue voter registration cards in bulk.

Association president Sid Langfelt today charged Waller is violating the Municipal Act in refusing to give the assocation cards to distribute to its members.

Langfelt said he has been refused twice, once on July 27 and again today when he appeared with lawyer Bob Milne before Waller.

Langfelt said Section 38 of the Municipal Act requires a city clerk to furnish applications to anyone who requests them.

"And that's applications in the plural sense," he said. "Waller is going beyond his office in refusing to allow us to take more than one or two cards out."

Waller, in an interview, said anyone asking for a card will get one, "but it's only for the applicant and his family . . . these cards are not for bulk issuance."

He said he interprets the act to mean a clerk must provide a card to any person applying—"but that suggests only one person at a time."

. . . refuses

Langfelt said his association had offered to set up booths to encourage everyone to register before the voters list closes Aug. 31. But the city turned down the offer.

Snapped Waller: "They're not ging to run my office. If I want help I'll ask for it.

"In this kind of job you just can't have voluntary help. I would have no control."

He said it is a simple matter for a person to check to see if his name is on the voters list. All it requires is a phone call to city hall. If the voter's name is missing, a card, together with an addressed return envelope, will be mailed out.

Langfelt said the clerk's office had given bulk quantities of the cards to the James Bay and Fernwood Community Association about 1½ months ago.

However, Waller said they had been given out by mistake, and a junior clerk had been reprimanded.

A spokesman for the municipal affairs department refused comment on what a city clerks responsibilities are with respect to handing out batches of cards to persons requesting them.

He indicated however Waller's interpretation of the act, although "fairly rigid" is reasonable.

Saanich clerk Gordon Hayward agrees with Waller that control over registration is vital. He said he has handed out bulk quantities of cards in the past to the Association of Women Electors which has aided the municipality in registering voters, and that on those occasions there were never any problems.

In Esquimalt, a municipal spokesman said bulk orders of cards would probably be granted, provided the group making the request is "responsible".

In Oak Bay, municipal clerk Jean McQueen was unable to say whether she would approve such requests.

"All I can say is I would consider the request if I ever got one, that is," she said.

Thursday Closing For Safeway Stores

Greater Victoria's 10 Safeway stores will close at 6 p.m. Thursday until further notice, area manager Jack Fidler said today.

Business was so hectic Monday and Tuesday, he said, that supplies have dwindled. Stores in Ladysmith and Duncan will also close Thursday.

The 250 fulltime employees here will continue to report for work for clean-up duty until layoff notices go into effect Saturday, he said.

One store at Powell River closed Tuesday and indications are the rest of the province's stores will shut by Saturday. Some in Vancouver are expected to remain open until early next week.

Meanwhile, customers continued the rush today for perishable goods marked down to half price as the result of a lockout which began 12 days ago at MacDonald's Consolidated Ltd. warehouses. The firm supplies Safeway stores.

FIDLER
. . . hectic wind-up

There are no new meetings scheduled between the company and the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, representing 800 workers at warehouses and Safeway brand production plants.

Union representative Al Peterson said the union has no interest in requesting an industrial inquiry commissioner, but would rather settle the contract dispute through two-party negotiations.

The company, however, he said, has further stalled talks by asking for assistance through the Labor Relations Board.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you please tell me, in PSI, how much air pressure there is in an average new tennis ball? — R.G.

A. Tennis balls are of two kinds, the traditional one with resilience provided by a gas under pressure in the cavity, and a newer design embodying elasticity in the cover, one maker of which refers to it as "permacore," which never goes soft. Packaging does not show under what pressure balls are sold, but we suggest you write to the manufacturer's agent for Slazenger, of England: Kennedy Ltd., 636 West Sixth Ave., Vancouver.

Q. Could you please give me the address of the Suttons Seeds Company in England?. B.W.

FLOUR UP; BREAD NEXT?

Yeast makes bread rise, but this time flour may cause the upward movement — in price.

Wholesale cost of flour increased 55-cents a hundred pounds this week, and the increase will likely be passed along to the retail customer.

Flour has been selling for about $12 a hundred pounds wholesale.

Len Miller, regional manager of McGavin Toastmaster, said the 55 cents "is a significant increase and could be reflected in the (retail) price of bread."

McGavin Toastmaster is the parent company of McDonald's Bakery in Victoria.

Miller said the company's entire costing procedure would have to be studied before price increases were considered.

And then any hike would have to be submitted to the federal Anti-Inflation Board.

Bread went up three cents a loaf in Victoria June 29 following an increase in January.

Current suggested retail prices of McDonald's bread are 64 cents for a 24-ounce loaf and 45 cents for a 16-ounce loaf.

City Rejects Blanket Ban on Housing Demolition

Victoria city council Tuesday rejected a proposal for a total ban on housing demolition.

The proposal was made by five neighborhood associations which have banded together under the name Communities United for Action in an effort to block destruction of useable family housing to make way for apartment, townhouse and condominium construction.

CUA delegates were told at a council caucus meeting the city cannot at this time consider a blanket moratorium on housing demolition.

Mayor Mike Young said the city is preparing an official community plan, to include some downward rezoning of higher density residential property, for presentation to the provincial government Nov. 1.

Some members of the delegation expressed disappointment at the reception given their presentation.

One said the group had failed to convince council of the urgency of the situation, in which 274 living units had been knocked down or earmarked for demolition since Jan. 1.

"If it were your homes that were being demolished it would be different," he said to aldermen. "We are the ones on the front line. I've lived in a home being demolished and had to find another place for my family."

Young said a response to the brief would be drawn up for CUFA after there had been reference to the city Advisory Planning Commission.

He also asked for a schedule to expose the new community plan, perhaps area by area, before it is presented in final form.

Young said he was extremely concerned about the loss of housing but reluctant to comment on immediate steps as the group proposes.

"I don't think the atmosphere should be conducive to destroying homes that are habitable," the mayor said.

Lawyer Bob Milne, a James Bay resident and counsel for the group, said the proposal would have the effect of a disincentive to development by removing the apartment-type zoning in areas now occupied by houses.

Group spokesman Max Hopper, of James Bay Community Association, said demolition permits are now issued without requiring a developer to put forward a proposal for the new use, and that leads to block-busting.

Young said council policy is already opposed to block-busting, and that rezoning does not follow demolition as a matter of course.

Milne said there is precedent in other parts of Canada for massive rezoning while development plans are being prepared, thereby blocking demolitions.

The mayor drew a distinction between massive and carte blanche, and while he agreed with many of the suggestions, he said if action is taken "indiscriminately, effectiveness would be lost rapidly."

A woman said the real problem is economic, that new housing taking the place of old houses "is beyond the purse of the people displaced."

Ald. Ron McKenzie said the city would be courting economic disaster if it refused demolition permits. (There are very narrow restrictions on granting permits.)

It is "courting social disaster" to eliminate housing people can afford, ehe woman replied.

Hooper said it appeared the council missed an important point, that the nature of the city is what had attracted many people to Victoria, including thousands of tourists. They are not drawn by the Empress Hotel and the Wax Museum, he said.

"What they're destroying today is the very thing the tourists come to see — the atmosphere. . . ."

Western Oil Flow Reduced

OTTAWA (CP)—Western Canadian oil producers will have to leave 494,000 barrels per day of production in the ground during September, according to the National Evergy Board's latest domestic producibility calculations.

The September "shut in" is 9.3 per cent higher than the August figure of 452,000 barrels a day.

It is largely the result of a 4 per cent drop in total domestic demand for western Canadian oil predicted by the NEB.

While total producibility is expected to remain about the same in September compared to August—at 1,964,000 barrels a day compared to 1,965,000 barrels a day iin August—domestic demand is predicted to fall to 1,020,000 barrels a day in September, compared to 1,063,000 barrels a day in August.

QUE. GRITS ASK GAMES AID

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party called on the federal government Tuesday to absorb part of the cost of staging tthe Montreal Olympics.

The Quebec Conservatives said in a statement that Canada, as a whole, has benefitted from the Games.

They said inflation—a factor in the $1.4 billion cost of the Games — was a federal responsibility.

The federal government has contributed to the cost of staging the Games through sales of commemorative Olympic stamps and coins.

Prime Minister Trudeau has repeatedly rejected requests by Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa for a $200-million federal contribution to help pay for the Olyympics.

The Quebec Conservatives also put in a word for the province's milk producers, calling on Ottawa to remove an $8.60 penalty per 100 lbs. of overproduced milk.

The statement said removal of this and other penalties would save many Quebec milk producers from bankruptcy.

Breakaway Air Controllers Called Victims of Pressure

MONTREAL (CP) — While Quebec members of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association were deciding whether to form a breakaway union Tuesday, the association's president was discussing the situation with regional directors.

Jim Livingston said the directors would discuss comments made Monday by Quebec director Paul Bibeau, who called for a separate union of French-language controllers.

Livingston said he believes a Quebec union is actively organizing the controllers' disaffiliation move.

"I can only assume he (Bibeau) has bowed to some pressure from the hard-core group in Quebec and decided to join in the public relations exercise, which is what this is," said Livingston.

He said he was confident the controllers will decide that a national union is better than a separate group.

Bibeau met with French controllers Monday night to discuss the formation of a breakaway union for the province's 300 French-language controllers.
